ROBERT SUES ALLEN, CHARGING SLANDER

Lucas Asserts State Welfare Is Run for Job Holders

MURDAUGH REFUSED TO CUT SALARIES, PROBERS ARE TOLD

Former Director Disobeyed Board's Orders to Reduce Expenses, Captain Spencer Asserts

LACK OF AUTHORITY CITED BY CHAIRMAN

Georgia Law Should Be Amended, He Says, Vesting Power in Board.

By The Associated Press.

Captain Frank W. Spencer, member of the State Board of Public Welfare, charged yesterday Lamar Murdaugh, former welfare director, "flagrantly refused to carry out orders of the board" to cut salaries in his department.

The accusation by the outspoken chief pilot of the port of Savannah before a house economy investigating committee followed closely an assertion by Board Chairman Arthur Lucas that he believed the present social security program was being operated for benefit of political office holders rather than for persons in need of assistance.

Rapid-fire examination by the committee developed charges by the board that Murdaugh:

1. Assumed authority of determining salaries and fixing personnel.

2. Informed the board the attorney general had ruled the welfare body could act in an advisory capacity only.

3. Purchased supplies and equipment without consulting the board, until that body adopted a resolution making consultation mandatory.

4. Authorized transfer of $94,500 from the Welfare Department to a fund for constructing a new state office building without authorization of the welfare board.

5. Delayed "two or three months" in complying with a board request for a list of per-

PRESENTMENTS KEPT SECRET FOR LAWYERS' REPLY

Jury Report 'Missing' Until Bar Body Prepares Attack on Contents Opposing Two New Courts.

By HERMAN HANCOCK.

Mystery stalked yesterday through the halls and corridors of the Fulton county courthouse.

It was a mystery of vanishing grand jury presentments, walking presentments, elusive presentments. It defied all effort.

When searchers thought they had run them to earth, they were balked once again—the presentments were still missing. The game of hide and seek went on with seekers stumped for about two hours—then came success.

Fulton county grand jurors returned special presentments to Judge Paul S. Etheridge, opposing proposed establishment of two new court divisions for the county and calling on representatives in the Georgia assembly to use influence to defeat the measures.

Bar Body Got Them.

Judge Etheridge said he turned the documents over to Judge John D. Humphries, senior judge. Judge Humphries said they would be on file presently. A further sweeping search revealed that members of the executive committee of the Atlanta Bar Association were closeted with the much-sought-after presentments in Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy's chambers.

Everything was all right then, because the lawyers issued a statement championing the new court divisions and the presentments were turned over to Bill Spratling, court clerk, for filing.

It really made a better story, however, because the presentments and the statement of the association were released practically simultaneously, with Spratling making the presentments available and W. H. Sibley, president of the law body, releasing its side of the question.

Thus the two Fulton county groups were shown to be at loggerheads over the proposed creation of a new division of the Fulton county superior court and over establishment of a new division of the criminal court of Fulton county. Grand jurors opposed the two courts on the grounds of economy for the county. The law-

End of Spanish War Awaited Momentarily

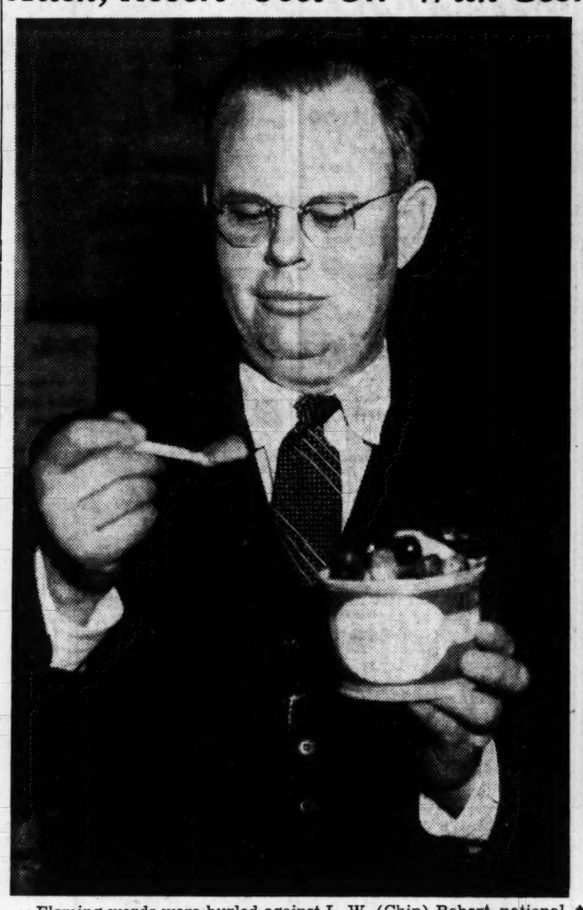

LONDON, Feb. 16.—(UP)—Viscount Halifax, British foreign secretary, indicated tonight that the end of the civil war in Spain is expected "momentarily."

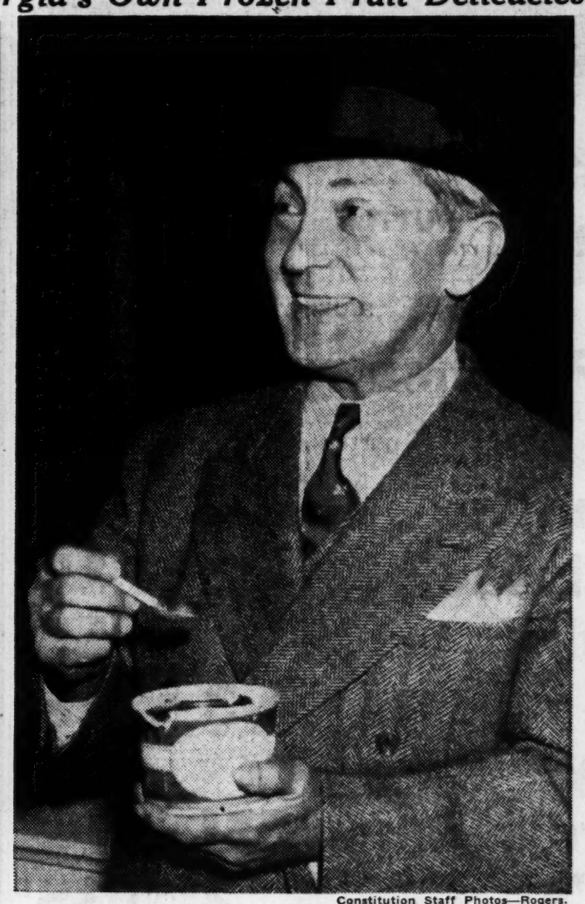

He expressed the opinion at a private meeting of Conservatives and the foreign affairs committee of the house of commons, attended by all members of the cabinet.

He said that Generalissimo Franco, of the Insurgent forces, still was insisting on unconditional surrender, while the Loyalists were holding out for "conditions."

Lord Halifax confirmed that the British government had decided in principle to recognize the nationalist regime but emphasized that he was unable to acquaint his listeners with the details because nothing was settled definitely at the moment.

Allen, Robert 'Cool Off' With Georgia's Own Frozen Fruit Delicacies

Constitution Staff Photos—Rogers.

Flaming words were hurled against L. W. (Chip) Robert, national Democratic executive committee secretary, yesterday in the house of representatives by Representative DeLacey Allen (left), of Dougherty county, and Robert replied with a suit against Allen for $50,000, but both men took time out to cool off with frozen fruit delicacies prepared by the Georgia Experimental Station. Allen ate his with the senators at lunch. Robert took time from the economy committee hearing to taste his. "It's darn good," he declared. The frozen fruit plus grape juice were provided as a buffet luncheon demonstration of the station's capabilities. (Story on Page 5.)

ANGRY LEGISLATOR WAIVES IMMUNITY, INVITES FIST FIGHT

Charges Robert Used Treasury Office To Obtain Contracts; 6 Per Cent Fee on State Hospital Work Lashed; $50,000 Suit Claims Good Name of Engineer Damaged in Nation.

Verbal and legal bombshells were hurled with feverish rapidity in the DeLacey Allen-L. W. (Chip) Robert war over Robert & Co.'s state hospital contract with the welfare department yesterday on Capitol Hill.

Developments in the blazing controversy included:

1. Robert filed a $50,000 slander suit against Allen in the Dougherty county representative's home town because of Allen's charges on the floor of the house Tuesday.

2. The Dougherty legislator in a 45-minute speech again tongue-lashed Robert, waived legal immunity and challenged Robert to fight him with or without gloves at Grant field.

3. Robert, secretary of the national Democratic executive committee, again defended his 6 per cent architectural and engineering contract before the house economy committee.

4. Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau came to Robert's defense with a terse statement that the Atlantan "resigned from his position as assistant secretary of the treasury voluntarily and honorably."

Robert Files Slander Suit

ALBANY, Ga., Feb. 16.—(AP)—A $50,000 slander suit brought into the courts today the swiftly developed controversy between L. W. Robert Jr. and State Representative DeLacey Allen.

Robert, dapper consulting engineer and secretary of the National Democratic Committee, asked this sum in damages from the Albany lawyer and former state American Legion commander on the ground Allen made "false, malicious and defamatory statements" against Robert.

The action, filed in the Dougherty superior court, was based on a speech made on the floor of the house of representatives Tuesday in which Allen accused Robert of "stealing the taxpayers' money" through a contract Robert & Company holds for work on the $5,000,000 expansion program at Milledgeville.

"False and Malicious."

The petition sets forth Robert's relation to Robert & Company and contends Allen's statements "were false and malicious and were known by the defendant to be false and malicious" and they had greatly damaged Robert's "good name and reputation among the citizens of his community and of the entire United States."

Although the suit was based on Allen's speech of Tuesday, a representative of Robert said it probably would be revised to include fresh accusations made in another speech by Allen on the house floor today.

George and John Westmoreland, of Atlanta, filed the action in Robert's behalf.

Robert Statement.

When the suit was filed here, Robert released in Atlanta a statement which said:

"I have today filed suit in Mr. Allen's home county of Dougherty for $50,000 damages for slander. Mr. Allen undoubtedly will try to evade the trial of this suit on its merits by hiding behind his legislative immunity, unfortunately, regardless of what he now may say.

"However, I wish to give him the fullest opportunity to make good, if he can, any vestige of truth in the false and outrageous charges he has made. Or, when he evades the responsibility to do so by taking refuge behind his immunity, let him by that action show the people of Georgia how little value may be placed in his statements."

Robert's suit sets out these specific statements which he termed slanderous:

"That on the 14th day of February, 1939, the defendant, in a certain speech made by him in the county of Fulton, state of Georgia, made the following false, malicious, defamatory and slanderous statements of and about and concerning the plaintiff in regard

Allen Continues Heated Attack

By The Associated Press.

Representative Allen charged in a speech on the floor of the Georgia house yesterday that L. W. (Chip) Robert Jr., secretary of the Democratic national executive committee, resigned as assistant secretary of the United States Treasury "to avoid a national scandal."

Allen announced to the house he was waiving legislative immunity to answer Robert's challenge to make his charges without that protection.

He said he was informed that while Robert was assistant secretary of the treasury "his agents went over the setate and the country so fast telling people that if you want to get money from Washington you will have to go through Robert & Company, and the scandal become so rotten, so filthy and so contemptible that the G-man sent agents to investigate."

"I have been informed that every county and municipality had been told that they had to go through Robert & Company to get money out of Washington," Allen shouted. "But the reverse is true now and Robert & Company is still traveling under that false representation."

Robert then "publicly resigned" to avoid further reprecussions, Allen contended.

"That's the man," said Allen,

OPPOSITION OF ICC ANGERS RAMSPECK

'Time for Congress to Act,' Georgian Says as Rate Body Fights Move.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Representative Ramspeck, Democrat, Georgia, declared today the Interstate Commerce Commission's unfavorable report on legislation to provide national equality in freight rates convinced him even more firmly that "it's time for congress to act."

The ICC took no absolute stand in the matter, but a letter to Chairman Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, of the senate interstate commerce committee, made it clear the rate-making body frowned on plans to upset the existing structure.

Ramspeck, chairman of a west-south bloc of house members on the freight problem, said the ICC was trying to defend the attitude it had taken for 50 years.

"They think, as the railroads do," Ramspeck declared, "that freight rates are untouchable things and that congress ought not do anything about the existing structure.

"The Interstate Commerce Commission has had 50 years to do something about these discriminations, and nothing has been done. I think it's time for congress to act."

Robert S. Parker Favored For Federal Reserve Post

Directors To Meet Saturday to Name New Bank President.

Robert S. Parker is No. 1 choice for the presidency of the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank among the directors who will meet Saturday noon to select a successor to the post vacated by the recent death of Oscar Newton, The Constitution learned last night.

Frank H. Neely, chairman of the board of directors, was out of the city yesterday, but reports from Washington and various points of the Fifth (Atlanta) Federal Reserve area, pointed strongly to an overwhelming agreement in favor of Parker's elevation from the first vice presidency to the presidency.

Rumors were abroad in Washington and in Atlanta yesterday that Ronald Ransom, member of the board of governors of the federal system with offices in Washington, would be invited to resign the Washington job and return to his former home in Atlanta to head the local bank.

These rumors were strongly discounted, however, by sources close to Mr. Ransom, who said that, although he might be considered for the post, it was certain that he

Roosevelt Busy on Eve of Journey Southward To Watch Fleet Action

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Virtually recovered from an attack of grippe, President Roosevelt engaged in a round of activity before departing tonight on the first leg of a southern cruise during which he will watch the Panama Canal defense maneuvers.

He held a last-minute cabinet meeting, dispatched two messages to Capitol Hill and made a number of nominations to federal posts.

Departing about midnight by special train, he was scheduled to embark on a warship at Key West, Fla., about 2:30 p. m., Atlanta time, Saturday. He will spend about 10 days in the vicinity of the Caribbean while a divided United States fleet and air force simulate a battle at the Atlantic entrance of the canal.

The chief executive will be away until March 4 when he is scheduled to deliver an address before a joint session of congress commemorating the 150th anniversary of the first American congress.

One of the messages he sent to congress today suggested the writing of a national "energy resources" policy embracing conservation and wise use of coal, oil, gas and water power. The other advocated federal aid for water pollution control.

Just as doctors informed him he was about over the slight attack of grippe that had kept him away from his office for six days, the President was told that his secretary, Marvin H. McIntyre, had been taken ill with intestinal influenza—a malady going the rounds of Washington—and would be unable to accompany him southward. McIntyre entered the naval hospital late today.

PRESERVED SNAKE WRIGGLES TO LIFE; BITES EMBALMER

ELMRENO, Okla., Feb. 16.—(AP) Mrs. Anna Berry told hospital attendants a "preserved" rattlesnake bit her.

Mrs. Berry said she made a hobby of embalming the reptiles in a formaldehyde solution.

Today she picked up a snake which had been submerged 18 hours. It came to life, she said, and struck her on the hand. Attendants said she would recover.

1,950 Insane Patients Are Saved From Fire

QUEBEC, Feb. 16.—(UP)—Fire at the Beauport insane asylum, which started in the east wing this morning, got out of control tonight and forced authorities to remove the estimated 1,500 patients remaining in other building of the institution. The militia was called out to aid in caring for panic-stricken inmates.

When fire started in a third-floor dormitory of the five-story east wing this morning, about 450 patients were removed safely from that section.

One patient, however, died of a heart attack as he tried to escape.

Several firemen were injured in fighting the fire throughout the day and evening. Others suffered frost bite.

Newlyweds Get Good Start, If Names Mean Anything

CLARENCE, N. Y., Feb. 16.—(AP) Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Stenson, newlyweds, got a good start toward marital happiness.

Following the ceremony they had a wedding breakfast at the Lovejoy restaurant. Now they are living in their new home in the village of Bliss.

Actor Dies on the Stage Of 'Knickerbocker Holiday'

Young had the role of Devries, a burgher of old New Amsterdam in the show, which stars Walter Huston.

DR. C. T. WILSON, 66, DRY LEADER, DIES

Methodist Temperance Board Founder Had Been Ill for 3 Weeks.

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 16.—(AP) Dr. Clarence True Wilson, 66, internationally known prohibitionist and Methodist church temperance board founder, died today in Good Samaritan hospital. He had been ill for three weeks of uremic poisoning, complicated by a heart attack.

Shortly after he entered Good Samaritan hospital a month ago, his physicians said his strong recuperative powers might result in complete recovery. He suffered a heart attack, however, and hovered near death for days.

Doctors were amazed at his strength considering that he suffered a stroke several years ago and went into virtual retirement at his home near Gresham, Ore.

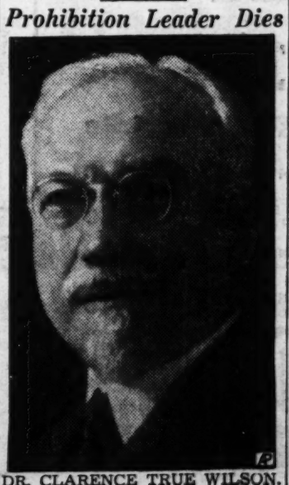

Dr. Wilson, one of the most active fighters in the ranks of prohibition, was born at Milton, Del., April 24, 1872.

He was the founder and for 25 years head of the Methodist church board of temperance, prohibition and public morals.

Growing up with the gradual rise of temperance in the United States, he came to take a leading part in the bitter liquor debates and political clashes of the 1920's and early 1930's, waging his last fight against the repeal tide that

RIVER PROJECTS OKAYED, REJECTED

Engineers Approve Chattahoochee Lock and Dam.

Army engineers have approved a plan to build a lock and dam on the Chattahoochee river 11 miles below Columbus but rejected the idea of providing channels 100 feet wide and 9 feet deep on the Flint and Chattahoochee rivers from Albany and Columbus to the coast.

Colonel R. G. Powell, division engineer in charge of the survey, explained that development of the tributary territory does not warrant such an ambitious program. An appeal from the decision may be made to the board of engineers for rivers and harbors in Washington.

The proposed dam below Columbus would provide a depth of six feet in the river below the city, and facilitate navigation there. It was recommended that the dam be designed to permit a three-foot addition to its crest as the first step in the planned nine-foot waterway.

Twin Bills Seek $4,500,000 Bonds for Coastal Highway

160-Mile, Four-Lane Road Through State Proposed in Both Houses.

Twin bills to authorize a $4,500,000 bond issue for a four-lane highway approximately 160 miles from the South Carolina line to the Florida line were introduced in the Georgia general assembly yesterday.

The proposals would authorize a constitutional amendment to be submitted to the people to permit the Atlantic Coastal highway district to issue the bonds, to be augmented by some $3,000,000 in federal funds.

Senator Hadley Brown, of Brunswick, said the federal government already had agreed to match bond money because of the proposed highway's significance in coastal defense.

Brown and Senators Warnell, of Pembroke, and Dawson, of Hinesville, submitted the bill in the senate. Representatives Gowen, of Glynn; DeFoor, of McIntosh, and others sponsored the companion measure in the house.

The Atlantic Coastal highway district is composed of Chatham, Bryan, Liberty, McIntosh, Glynn and Camden counties.

Two 20-foot strips of highway, with a 20-foot strip between except through cities, were proposed.

The six counties would pay the interest on the bonds but the State Highway Department would retire them, Brown declared. He pointed out the retirement would cost the department "no more than they now spend annually" for maintaining and improving the Atlantic Coastal highway.

"The federal government already has agreed to supply $3,000,000. Although the bill provides up to $4,500,000 could be issued in bonds, it is planned to issue only $3,500,000," Brown said.

The three south Georgia senators also introduced an enabling act to make effective the constitutional amendment should it be ratified by the people in the next general election.

HARRIS THREATENS TO ARREST SOLONS

Warns Absent Legislators He Will Use Force to Obtain Quorum.

Short, stocky Roy V. Harris, speaker of the house of representatives, yesterday threatened arrest for all legislators who fail to stay on the floor of the house so business can be transacted.

Declaring it a shame and a disgrace upon the house and upon the state, Harris was forced to pronounce adjournment yesterday a few minutes after Representative DeLacey Allen had launched another attack on L. W. (Chip) Robert, because there was no quorum present. Only 92 members raised their hands on a motion for adjournment a full hour before the regular time.

"The only thing left to do is adjourn," said Harris, his eyes flashing and his gavel pounding the block on his speaker's desk. "But if this situation occurs again, I will personally take the floor to move a call of the house and will see that every absent member be brought to the floor of the house under arrest."

He explained that the seriousness of the state's condition makes it necessary for the members to be present and work hard. Harris threatened that many "pet" local bills will not be passed if members do not work. He added he may, in the future, "take a roll call vote on attendance and get the newspapers to publish the names of those present."

The 92 members who had stayed cheered.

would not consider surrendering his Washington post to head the Atlanta bank.

The Ransom rumors were accelerated by his presence in Atlanta Wednesday, but it was pointed out that Mr. Ransom came to Atlanta with other officials of the reserve system in Washington to attend the funeral of Oscar Newton and join in the tribute to the late president of the Atlanta branch.

Mr. Ransom's post in Washington pays $15,000 a year, while the reserve bank presidency in Atlanta is said to pay $25,000 a year. Mr. Ransom has three more years to serve on the national board.

Parker Seems Certain.

No other names have been considered by the directors, it is said both in Washington and in local circles. For that reason, it was pointed out last night, Mr. Parker seems certain of election.

The regular meeting of the board of the Atlanta bank was scheduled for the second Friday in March, but a special meeting was called for Saturday to fill the vacant office.

Mr. Parker has been first vice president of the bank since March 1, 1936. Before that he had served the bank as general counsel for a period. He was at one time a member of the law firm of Colquitt, Parker, Troutman and Arkwright.

Mr. Parker said yesterday that he knew nothing of the rumors of his probable election.

Before Ransom went to Washington in 1936, he was executive vice president of the Fulton National Bank.

4 Mayors Missing!--From Portrait List

An "SOS call" for pictures of four former mayors of Atlanta was issued yesterday by Glenn Dewberry, superintendent of the city hall.

Dewberry said he was constructing a frame for pictures of the 36 former mayors to be displayed in the city hall. On investigation he said he was minus pictures of Moses W. Formwalt, mayor in 1848; Willis Buell, 1850; Thomas F. Gibbs, 1852, and John F. Mims, 1853.

"If anyone has one of these pictures or knows where I can get any of them, I would appreciate their getting in touch with me at the city hall," Dewberry said.

GRANDMOTHER'S COOK BOOK

SPOON BREAD.

2 cups water-ground corn meal, 3 cups boiling water, 1 teaspoonful salt, 2 eggs, 2½ teaspoons baking powder, 1 scant pint of milk, 1 tablespoon of sugar, 3 tablespoons melted lard.

Sift corn meal, salt and sugar. Scald with boiling water. Allow to cool. Grease baking dish with melted lard, adding remainder to mixture. Add sufficient milk to make a thin custard-like consistency. Add eggs and baking powder to the cool mixture Bake in a moderate oven for three-quarters of an hour. This is an excellent recipe.

"We have, for some days, been hiding an escaped Confederate prisoner. He came to us worn out and with a bad leg wound. The slaves have been restless all day. One can hear the dreary spirituals from the slave quarters . . . 'Tallest trees grow in Par-a-dise . . .' no doubt true, but depressing. Some Union soldiers came to search for the prisoner. One of the negroes must have informed. I kept the men in conversation, while my oldest son, who is a bright boy for his age, got the man away, by the back door, and into the swamp, where he will at least have a chance of escape."

HOME TESTED RECIPES BY Sally Saver

SALLY SAVER'S FAVORITE RECIPE CONTEST.

In considering favorite chicken recipes don't forget to bring back to the spotlight that universal favorite, chicken and waffles. It's grand for a special Sunday morning breakfast, for luncheon, and especially good for a Sunday night supper specialty. Use one of the prepared waffle mixtures or make up your own with a good and tried waffle recipe and here is the chicken part:

Chicken and Waffles.
Chicken Part.

A young chicken is opened down the back and cleaned. Then lay it flat in a baking dish, skin side down, and into each of the hollows put two tablespoons of butter, half teaspoon of lemon juice and quarter teaspoon salt. Pour two cups of water into the pan and place in oven at moderate heat. After half an hour turn the chicken over, dust with flour and replace in oven. Baste several times with liquid in pan, after chicken has browned. Cook until tender.

When the chicken is done remove it and thicken the liquid in the pan with three tablespoons of flour mixed with a little cold milk. Cook on top unit of range until gravy is thickened—season with more salt if necessary and strain into a bowl. Use the gravy to pour over waffles.

For a delicious way to use chicken for parties and luncheons, Mrs. Don T. Barnes, Box 149, Royston, Ga., suggests her favorite, molded chicken. This recipe serves 30 and may be prepared the day before and lends itself to decorative schemes.

Molded Chicken.

1 hen (6 lbs.); 2 cups celery, cubed.
4 hard boiled eggs chopped; 1 can English peas.
2 Tablespoons chow pickle or sweet cucumber.
2 cups blanched almonds or pecans.
2 cups heavy mayonnaise.
2 cups hot chicken broth.
1 box plain gelatine dissolved in 1 cup cold water.

After gelatine has set five minutes in cold water, add hot chicken broth and mix well. Chop chicken and nuts, when gelatine begins to congeal, add all ingredients, together with the mayonnaise and put into jelly molds to congeal. Serve on crisp lettuce with hot rolls, or cheese straws or fancy crackers.

To give color, cut a fancy flower out of pimientos and place one in each jelly mold before putting your chicken in, then when you turn them out you will have the flower on top. Or you may use carrots. Do not serve with mayonnaise as it has been added. If you prefer, you may leave it out and put on top.

This Cuban dish should be a nice addition to your chicken recipes. Mrs. H. M. Shaver, 1194 Clifton road, N. E., Atlanta, sends it and writes:

"I enjoy the food page of The Constitution very much and this time am sending you my recipe for "Cuban chicken and rice." I am a native Cuban, so the recipe is genuine and delicious. I serve it often and the guests seem to enjoy it every time.

Cuban Chicken and Rice.

1 two-pound fryer.
2 cups of rice
1 onion.
1 No. 1 can tomato paste.
1 small bell pepper.
½ teaspoon salt.
¾ teaspoon paprika.
Small can of tiny peas.
Small can of red pimientos.
2 Tablespoons of lard (hard).

Put lard in a boiler, chop the onions and bell pepper fine, fry them until slightly done, then add the tomato puree, seasoned with salt, pepper and paprika.

Cut chicken in small pieces and put it in boiler with tomato sauce; add a cupful of water and cook slowly for 30 minutes; add the rice and two cups of water; bring it to boiling point and cook together for another 30 minutes very slowly.

The chicken must be cooked 30 minutes before the rice is put in. Serve on a platter and garnish with pimientos and green peas on the top.

Mrs. T. L. Tinsley, 1396 Piedmont avenue, Atlanta, suggests an appetizing casserole dish which may be made in advance of a dinner or party and then reheated and served. Plantation chicken is a great favorite in her family.

Plantation Chicken.

1 cup diced celery.
1 onion minced.
1 green pepper.
1 pimiento.
3 cups white sauce.
1 can mushroom soup.

Cook celery in chicken stock. Fry onion and green pepper in five tablespoons butter few minutes. Add diced chicken, mushroom soup, celery and stock. Pepper and salt to taste. Then cut strips of pimiento, put in last.

Put in 2-quart casserole. Top with mixture of 1 cup soft bread crumbs, mixed with 1 cup grated American cheese. Bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees F., until brown, about three minutes.

If flavor of cheese is not liked, make pastry of 2 1-2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 8 tablespoons shortening. Put on top of chicken and bake till brown.

Doughnuts.
(Makes Three Dozen)

1 cup granulated sugar.
2 eggs, beaten.
1 cup milk.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
1 teaspoon cinamon.
½ teaspoon nutmeg.
1 teaspoon salt.
2 tablespoons fat, melted.
3½ cups flour.
3½ teaspoons baking powder.

Mix sugar and eggs. Add milk and beat thoroughly. Pour in remaining ingredients. Mix lightly. Toss dough onto a floured board and roll out until it is one-third of an inch thick. Cut out doughnuts and fry in deep hot fat.

Potato Soup.
(Four Portions)

2 cups diced raw potatoes.
6 celery leaves
¼ cup chopped onions.
3 cups water
1 teaspoon salt.
2 tablespoons butter.
2 tablespoons flour.
1 tablespoon minced parsley.
2 cups milk.
¼ teaspoon paprika.

Cover and cook over a low heat for 20 minutes the potatoes, celery leaves, onions, water and salt. Press through a sieve. Combine with butter blended with the flour. Add rest of ingredients. Cook slowly five minutes, stirring frequently. Serve in hot bowls.

Steamed Cherry Pudding.

1-3 cup butter.
2 cups flour.
3 teaspoons baking powder.
½ cup milk.
2 egg whites.
1 cup red cherries (drained).

Cream shortening, add sugar. Mix and sift flour and baking powder and add to first mixture alternately with milk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Add cherries; put into individual molds and steam 40 minutes. Serve hot with a sauce made of the cherry juice sweetened and slightly thickened with flour.

Foamy Sauce.

1 egg.
1 cup Superfine powdered sugar.

Combine the cherry juice and Superfine powdered sugar; add the unbeaten white of egg. Beat vigorously until light.

Champion Cherry Pie.

1½ cups bread flour.
1 teaspoon salt.
10 tablespoons shortening.
5 to 6 tablespoons ice water.

Sift flour and salt together, add the shortening and blend. Then add the ice water gradually and roll.

Filling.

2½ cups pitted sour canned cherries, drained.
½ cup cherry juice.
½ teaspoon salt.
2½ tablespoons fine tapioca.
1 teaspoon butter.
1 cup granulated sugar.

Soak the tapioca, Domino granulated sugar and salt in the cherry juice and let stand while pastry is being made, about 15 minutes.

Then mix well with cherries, add the butter and put into pie tin. Bake pie for 10 minutes at 450 degrees F. Then reduce the temperature to 350 degrees F. and bake for 20 minutes. Then turn off oven and let stand in oven heat for 20 minutes before removing from oven.

Bell Salads.

8 halves canned pears.
8 white grapes, seeded.
Pimiento strips.
½ cup crushed pineapple.
½ cup mayonnaise.
8 pieces lettuce.

Chill all ingredients, arrange pineapple on lettuce and cover with pears, hollow sides down, use grapes as "clappers" and arrange strips of pimiento for bows at top. Surround with mayonnaise.

Kitchen Theme: A Brisket, a Budget

If you want to make your food dollar go farther, try some of the better cheap cuts of meat. You can work wonders with stews and pot roasts. Take an Irish stew with bran dumplings or a pot roast of beef. They are low in cost but high in favor, and especially good for a winter meal.

POT ROAST.

2-3 lbs. beef—round, rump or chuck
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup water
½ cup pure molasses
2 tablespoons flour

Rub meat with salt. Sprinkle with pepper. Brown on all sides in hot fat. Place in casserole and cover partially with molasses and water. Simmer two to three hours. Remove meat and thicken the stock with flour.

Carrots, onions, potatoes and peppers can be placed in dutch oven with the meat—about 40 minutes before meat is done.

IRISH STEW.

1¼ cups diced carrots
1¼ cups diced turnips.
1¼ cups sliced onions
1 quart diced potatoes
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup flour
¼ cup water
1 bran dumpling recipe

Cut meat into 1 1-2-inch cubes. Cover with boiling water and simmer about 2 hours. One hour before serving add vegetables, salt and pepper. Make a paste of flour and water and thicken. Top with bran dumplings. Yield: Six servings.

BRAN DUMPLINGS.

1½ cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 egg
1 tablespoon melted shortening
½ cup bran
¾ cup milk

Sift flour, salt and baking powder together. Beat egg until light; add melted and cooled shortening, bran and milk. Add liquid mixture to sifted dry ingredients and stir only until flour disappears. Drop batter by heaping teaspoonfuls on top of hot meat stew; cover tightly and let simmer for 20 minutes without removing cover. Serve hot. Yield: Eight dumplings.

WAGE-HOUR DIVISION TAKES NEW QUARTERS

The wage-hour division of the Department of Labor has moved from the third floor of the Ten Forsyth Street building to the ground floor of the 101 Marietta Street building, A. D. Barber, state inspector, announced yesterday.

Farm-to-city migration from 1930 to 1934, inclusive, dropped to 600,000 from the 3,000,000 figure of the previous five-year period.

There are now 21 flying hospitals—seaplanes carrying medical or other emergency aid to ships at sea—stationed at eight air bases along United States coasts.

CLUB ANNIVERSARY.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Feb. 16.—(AP) Joe Dekle, of Atlanta, national president of American Business Clubs, has accepted an invitation to attend a meeting of the Columbus club Tuesday night. The organization will celebrate its second anniversary. Paul Munro, superintendent of Columbus schools, will make the principal address.

Nicholas L. Kipp, 42, World War veteran, has the distinction of being San Francisco's No. 1 hod carrier. He led nine competitors in a civil service examination and will be the first certified for a city job as hod carrier—if one ever develops.

Robert asserted all these statements were false and malicious.

Solons Feasted On Georgia Food And Delicacies

Frozen fruit and grape juice produced by the Georgia experimental station was served state solons yesterday at a buffet luncheon in the senate chamber.

The senators munched sandwiches, nibbled peanuts, pecans and other Georgia products and wound up eating the frozen delicacies drowned in rich Georgia cream.

DeLacey Allen, Dougherty county representative, and L. W. (Chip) Robert, principals in the battle royal now occupying the assembly, both took time out to eat the Georgia-grown and produced foods.

Chancellor S. V. Sanford, of the University System of Georgia, told the legislators that the solution for Georgia's economic problems lies in the laboratories discovering new methods and means of selling its produce.

The board of regents, of which Robert is a member, sponsors the experiments which resulted in production of frozen fruits and vegetables in this state.

COVINGTON INVITATION IS ACCEPTED BY U. C. V.

COVINGTON, Ga., Feb. 16.—(AP)—Commander James R. Jones, of the Georgia division of the United Confederate Veterans, accepted today an invitation to hold the 1939 state reunion of the U. C. V. here.

The invitation was extended by the Weaver-Thompson Chapter of the Children of the Confederacy and the Covington Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. All organizations here will assist in entertaining the veterans.

IMMUNITY WAIVED IN FIGHT ON ROBERT

"who is going to sue me for what I said about him."

Bursts of applause and shouts from the crowded house and galleries interrupted the fiery legislator's speech, made on a point of personal privilege.

"I said some pretty point-blank things when I introduced the resolution asking for an investigation and cancellation if possible of the Robert & Company contract. I meant them then, and I mean them now. This contract was despicable and damnable," Allen asserted.

(The house has passed unanimously a resolution calling upon the state law department to investigate the contract whereby Robert & Company was to receive 6 per cent in fees for construction up to $5,000,000 at the Milledgeville State Hospital for Insane and "to have it set aside if this can still be done.")

Waives Immunity.

Allen continued.

"And if this octopus from Washington can come down here now and say that when a man is doing his right and duty he can be threatened with prosecution and persecution, then the right of free speech is in a pretty bad way.

"I was challenged to waive legislative immunity and branded cowardly. I waive that legislative immunity and L. W. Robert can sue 'til hell is frozen over and he can be eternally damned before he'll shut my mouth.

"If that gentleman who called me a liar and said I was cowardly wants any personal satisfaction, either with gloves or without, I'll go with him out to Grant stadium and at four or five dollars a seat I believe we can pay the state of Georgia out of debt."

Waving a sheaf of telegrams and letters, Allen said lawyers of his home town of Albany had offered to defend him free of charge "from all prosecution and persecution for trying to represent my state."

He said he was trying "to keep this graft and collusion of men in high places from going on" and that he believed the legislature would co-operate.

He said he was waiving his legislative immunity on the basis that if Robert sued him, he planned to go into Robert's official and public record "from the time he got his start and file a counter suit" against him.

Allen said he was informed that back in 1938 a group of men, including Robert, met in the office of the Governor. He continued that Robert told this group that during the term of Governor Eugene Talmadge he had submitted plans dealing with the state hospital and the latter would not accept them because they called for a six per cent architectural and engineering fee.

He said he was told that Robert said that since he didn't get the contract then, he felt like he ought to have it now.

"Political Architect."

Allen castigated Robert as a "political architect" who "left an Atlanta boarding house in 1933 and went to Washington to take a government job at $7,000 a year" and "comes back six years later, rolling in wealth, his finger in public works projects all over the United States.

"The situation got so rotten that the G-men got on Chip's trail and he resigned his office as assistant secretary of the treasury.

"It is a stench in the nostrils of honest people. His activities have done much to discredit the (national) administration."

"His agents told everybody that Chip Robert was a big shot in Washington and could put over anything. His agents went over the United States telling folks the same thing.

"The result was he got so many contracts in Florida that the architects in that state rose up in arms and demanded to know why Florida counties and cities couldn't get federal funds without going through Chip Robert.

"He finally got ashamed of the situation and took a lot of contracts in the name of one of his employes. Whenever you have to hide behind somebody else's name you are in shady business."

"I'll tell you why so much stink is being raised since we exposed this political chicanery. It is because we are getting close to something that will undermine democracy and destroy public confidence unless we root out the evil and provide a remedy."

Rivers Contract.

Allen then took up the contract signed by Governor Rivers with Robert & Co., in connection with a contemplated building program of the Department of Public Welfare, providing 6 per cent fee on work up to $5,000,000.

"Chip Robert tried to put such a contract over while Gene Talmadge was Governor but Talmadge wouldn't stand for it," Allen said. "So last summer Robert went to the Governor and the welfare board and told them he had worked up a lot of plans for new buildings and had not received any pay. So he got the nice, fat contract for a $240,000 fee.

"And all during the last campaign our Governor went around the state crying over the poor folks in the state hospital and begging for new buildings, but he didn't say anything about that contract with Chip Robert.

"Nothing was said about it while we were considering the hospital authority bill that made the $4,000,000 program possible by issuing bonds.

"That's why the heat was put on us to pass the bill before anybody found out about the contract. That's the main reason why we were asked to raise the bond limit to $3,000,000 instead of $2,200,000, which was the amount of bonds actually needed.

Robert Replies.

"Chip says his services in going to get the federal money did not constitute 'promotion' but that it was merely 'organization.' You can always find words to cover up a situation. If that contract had been honest we would have been told about it when the hospital bill was up in this legislature.

At another point in his talk, Allen said:

"If Jesse James were living now, he wouldn't use a gun, and he wouldn't be riding around on a horse. He would make himself a political architect and get rich quick.

"If I had a young son and I wanted him to make a lot of money without regard to how he got it, I would recommend to him that he become a political architect. It seems to be a fine line of business."

In a radio address last night Robert suggested that Allen put his charges in writing and deliver them to a newspaper with a request that they be printed so that the legislator would not be "hiding behind his legislative immunity?"

He reviewed the dispute briefly, stating he had been "slanderously" attacked in the house in a manner that reflected on the honesty of the engineering firm he heads and that of state officials. He did not mention the name of Allen.

Robert said his firm had handled approximately $350,000,000 in construction contracts in 28 states and to "some small degree, some federal and state contracts."

He said insinuations had been made that he used influence he gained as assistant secretary of the treasury in obtaining the contract with the State Welfare Department.

The party leader then read excerpts from a local newspaper (Atlanta Georgian) column which defended the Robert's engineering firm.

In concluding he said he wished to emphasize that "no part of any fee charged by his company on any contract represents payment for promotion work."

Allen said he understood it was the original plan to borrow $8,000,000 for the hospital program and that Robert would have received six per cent of that money.

The representative said he was further informed that at the time "these professional sob sisters were touching our heartstrings when the Milledgeville hospital authority bill was up, the bonds for it had already been issued and some of them were already signed even though we were told we had to pass that bill as it was, giving a $240,000 fee to that man that hadn't earned it and can't earn it."

"Let's look at some honest contracts," Allen shouted.

He said Dr. S. V. Sanford, chancellor of the University of Georgia Board of Regents, built a $100,000 building for the University System with an architectural fee of only $700.

"Now let's check and see if Robert & Co. has ever taken a job at less than 6 per cent," Allen went on. He said he was told the firm took a Cornelia waterworks job at 5 per cent. He said that he further was informed that at a time when the town of Demorest was planning a similar project, a contract had already been let to an architect; that officials were told they couldn't get the money unless it went through Robert & Co. and that the architect then employed stepped aside and Robert & Co. took it.

Asks Inquiry.

When Allen finished, gray-haired Representative W. O. Strickland, of Haralson, arose to inform Allen that "if the gentleman from Washington gets any damages against Allen in his suit, I would be glad to help pay them on a 50-50 basis."

Strickland suggested that the house call upon the economy committee to "look over the whole hospital set-up" and particularly to determine if $160,000 in "attorneys' fees" had not been contracted.

Representative Jones, of Brantley, also took the floor in the matter, asserting "I can't speak for anybody but myself but I am backing DeLacey Allen in every statement he made."

Meanwhile Representative Carrington, of Barrow, introduced a bill which would require architectural and engineering staffs of the University System to handle architectural and engineering work in connection with any buildings erected from state funds. He said the bill was not designed as a slap at any firm involved in any current controversy.

Even as Allen launched his second attack, veteran Senator Paul Lindsay, of Decatur, arose in the senate on a point of personal privilege to defend Robert against "unwarranted, uncalled for and unjustified attacks in the house of representatives." He said Robert's firm did $25,000 worth of work for Georgia "gratuitously."

"These attacks on Chip Robert bring to my mind the Biblical phrase that 'A prophet is not without honor save in his own land.' I do not see why all these attacks on a fellow just because he is a Georgian and an Atlantan," Lindsay asserted.

Not Critical of House.

He said he had no criticism of the house for adopting a resolution which condemned a 6 per cent fee granted Robert & Co. for engineering and supervision of $5,000,000 worth of proposed building projects for the state.

"I only think they are being dominated over there by some adventuresome spirits seeking leadership without the ability to lead," Lindsay continued.

"Ninety-nine per cent of our success in securing the $4,000,000 to build a new insane hospital is due to the efficiency of Robert & Co. in helping us properly prepare our applications. I have worked with him until 2 and 3 a. m. in Washington preparing details to submit with applications to the PWA for funds."

The senator declared the contract between the welfare department and Robert & Company carrying the 6 per cent fee had to be submitted to Administrator Harold L. Ickes, of the Public Works Administration—"the worst enemy Mr. Robert has."

Asked if there was ever any agreement for a "promotional fee," Lindsay replied "none whatever," adding PWA regulations strictly forbade anyone receiving such a fee.

Senator Abbott, of Louisville, asked if the University System of Georgia did not handle similar contracts for federal aid construction of college buildings with a 4 per cent fee.

Lindsay replied they did and said this was possible because supervision was handled by R. H. Driftmier, University of Georgia engineering expert assigned especially to the system's building program.

Arthur Lucas, chairman of the board of public welfare, told the house economy committee that at a conference in the office of Governor Rivers last March, a representative of Robert & Co. informed them six per cent was the customary fee for such work.

He said that under a resolution of the former board of control, superseded since by the welfare board, the present board felt it was under "moral obligation" to Robert & Co., to award them the contract in the event of any building or construction at Milledgeville because of considerable preliminary work by that firm.

He explained this work was done on "projects that did not materialize."

The board also felt that because of this preliminary work, and the size of Robert & Co., it was in better shape to handle the project speedily, Lucas continued.

Qusetioned by Cleveland Rees as to whether there was any particular rush at that time, Lucas said: "The impression was that there was."

Representative Carmichael questioned whether Georgia had not encountered difficulty in obtaining federal approval of eleemosynary program because the plans were prepared by Robert & Company.

Two members of the board answered "yes" and J. R. Wilson named one high Washington official who he said had been opposed to the plan on this ground. The official's name was later removed from the record on motion of the committee.

Chairman Lucas corroborated Wilson's statement.

The investigating committee asked Attorney General Ellis Arnall to decide if the welfare board has the legal right to use $11,000, received from pay patients, to pay current bills, such as food and other immediate necessities.

The committee was told the hospital was six months behind with some of these bills.

Arnald was asked if the welfare board has a right to sell 186 bales of cotton raised by patients, the proceeds to be used for similar purposes.

The committee asked the attorney general if contracts are binding as to future payments made by pay patients in old buildings at Milledgeville, requiring such funds to be paid to the new hospital authority.

The committee said it was not the desire of the committee or the welfare board to "dodge any moral obligation" but felt the money should be used immediately for necessities.

Tax Law Tightening Is Sought in Bills

One Would Provide for Collection by State Instead of Counties; Exemption Acts Offered

Two bills to strengthen the intangibles tax law were introduced in the house of representatives by Representatives Key, of Jasper, and others yesterday.

One would clarify the act to place definitely in the class of taxable intangibles domesticated corporations. The other would provide for collection of intangible taxes by the State Revenue Commission instead of counties, with the state turning back to the counties their share of the funds.

The latter also provides payments may be made in three instalments and that the revenue commission may call on county tax receivers for a report on any individual's intangibles holdings.

Exemptions Urged.

Tax exemption for industries manufacturing or processing livestock and farm and dairy products was proposed in a bill by Representative Whipple, of Bleckley. It would be a constitutional amendment permitting counties to grant tax exemption for five years to such industries.

Another measure, proposed by Representative McCracken, of Jefferson, would exempt electric membership corporations from taxation. These units are functioning as part of the Rural Electrification Administration program.

Indefinite postponement, tantamount to defeat, was given a measure by Representative Gross, of Washington, to reduce the size of the house to 52 members. There are now 205. A bill, defeated last week, provided for a senate of 10 members.

The senate passed two house-enacted bills affecting Georgia's new homestead exemption law.

One would permit exemptions up to $2,000 evaluation of minister-occupied manses, pastoriums and parsonages. The other would permit a similar claim for exemptions in a case where the house was owned by two persons but only one of them occupied it.

A bill providing for removal of public service commissioners was passed by the senate and sent back to the house, where it originated, for concurrence in an amendment.

As amended the bill would provide public service commissioners could be removed from office only under the general law of impeachment, that is, by proceedings instituted and carried out in the legislature.

It was explained this would in effect repeal the present law permitting the Governor to suspend or remove a member of the Public Service Commission. One senator said this law was passed years ago when the commissioners were appointed by the Governor and not elected by the people as at present.

Other Business.

Other legislative business in brief:

Representative George B. Brooks, of Oglethorpe county, introduced a bill providing for distribution of gasoline tax funds to counties on the basis of the ratio of their rural mail routes to the state's totaling number of rural routes.

Employment of children under 18 years of age would be regulated in Georgia under a bill introduced by Representative Mankin, of Fulton. Children under 16 would be barred from working, except those between 14 and 16 who could be employed outside of school hours.

Domestic service and farm labor would be exempted.

The house defeated a bill proposing reorganization of the State Board of Medical Examiners, which licenses physicians.

Bills introduced in the senate would exempt winter visitors staying in Georgia more than four months of a year from paying state income taxes; prohibit court clerks, their deputies, justices of the peace, notaries public and all county officers from drawing up deeds, mortgages and similar instruments; require a two-year college course for applicants for licenses to practice osteopathy, and providing for seizure and sale of automobiles and other vehicles used in lottery operations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said today in a formal statement handed to reporters that L. W. "Chip" Robert Jr., "left the treasury voluntarily and under honorable circumstances."

The treasury's formal announcement said:

"Having noticed news dispatches reporting statements said to have been made before the Georgia house of representatives as to the circumstances under which Lawrence Wood Robert Jr. resigned his secretary of the treasury, Secposition (in 1936) as assistant retary Morgenthau today made the following statement:

"'Mr. Robert left the treasury voluntarily and under honorable circumstances.'"

ICKES RESERVED RIGHT TO CANCEL ALLOCATION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP)—A PWA spokesman disclosed tonight that Administrator Ickes had reserved the right to rescind Georgia's allocation for the Milledgeville hospital if it developed that a fee was paid for promotional services in obtaining the federal fund.

L. W. (Chip) Robert Jr., secretary of the Democratic national committee, went to Atlanta earlier this week to deny before a committee of the state legislature that his architectural firm had charged a promotion fee in connection with a contract with the state for work on the $5,000,000 hospital building program.

The PWA spokesman said that in a "regular contract" between the state and PWA, Ickes was given authority to withdraw the grant if any person or firm received payment for promoting PWA approval of the application or otherwise engaging in activities "commonly known as lobbying."

This official said Ickes was concerned only with his own contract with the state, and did not see the contract between the state and Robert. He said the administrator had never been called upon to approve the latter document.

He said records showed none of the PWA grant had yet been paid to the state.

A British chemist comments that every year there are about 1,500 new books, 40,000 articles and 20,000 patents, of chemical interest.

Guard Resources, Roosevelt Urges

President Requests Government Funds for Conservation and to Free Streams of Pollution.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP) President Roosevelt sent to congress today reports from the National Resources Committee suggesting long-range programs for abatement of stream pollution and conservation of energy resources—coal, oil, gas and water power.

In messages accompanying the reports, Mr. Roosevelt made it clear that he thought it was high time that broad national policies in these fields were developed.

"Our energy resources are not inexhaustible, yet we are permitting waste in their use and production," he said. "In some instances, to achieve apparent economies today, future generations will be forced to carry the burden of unnecessary high costs and to substitute inferior fuels for particular purposes."

As to ending stream pollution, Mr. Roosevelt said "the time is overdue for the federal government to take vigorous leadership along these lines," although he noted that much already had been done through the public works and work-relief programs.

The committee estimated that it would require expenditure of approximately $2,000,000,000 over a period of 10 to 20 years to end the more objectionable pollution and said the needed works were chiefly treatment plants for municipal sewage and industrial waste.

Commenting on this, the President said the "responsibility rests primarily with municipal government and private industry," but added that the federal government "must lend financial support and technical stimulation."

Asks Central Agency.

"It is my opinion," he continued, "that pending further experimentation with interstate and state enforcement activities, federal participation in pollution abatement should take the general form of establishing a central technical agency to promote and co-ordinate education, research and enforcement. On the basis of recent experience, it should be supplemented by a system of federal grants-in-aid and loans organized with due regard for the integrated use and control of water resources and for a balanced federal program for public works of all types."

Legislator Once Named Lieutenant-Governor, Post Abolished.

By The Associated Press.

Delacey Allen was born in Ripley, Miss., 41 years ago and lived there until he was enlisted in the 319th field artillery and served with this 82d division overseas. The armistice came as he was returning from action under fire in the Meuse-Argonne sector.

DELACEY ALLEN.

He turned toward Georgia after leaving the army, first as a student at Emory and the Atlanta Law school and later at the University of Georgia where he graduated with honors in 1924. Included in his undergraduate activities was varsity baseball playing and his chief hobby now is watching baseball games and he is one of the most ardent rooters for Albany's teams.

After a year in the legal department of the Coca-Cola Company, he went to Albany in 1926 and set up a law practice which he still carries on.

Allen early developed into a leader in American Legion affairs, serving repeated terms as commander of Albany Post No. 30 and one term as state commander.

In addition to serving as a justice of the peace, Allen also was a president of the Albany Circuit Bar Association.

His only state-wide bid for office, in 1936, took a strange twist when he ran for the nomination for Lieutenant Governor and won it overwhelmingly, only to have the voters at the same time turn down a constitutional amendment to create the office.

Short and stocky and somewhat heavier than Robert, Allen is a vigorous speaker, gifted in sharp exchanges on the legislative floor and takes an apparent pleasure in the give-and-take of parliamentary debate. He sometimes prepares his more important speeches and then doesn't follow his text, preferring extemporaneous improvements.

Allen is married to the former Florence Davis, of Macon, but has no children.

By The Associated Press.

Lawrence Wood (Chip) Robert born 51 years ago in Monticello and reared in that middle Georgia town, first attracted attention as an athlete at Georgia Tech. In the four years ending with his graduation in 1909 he set a record still unequalled at the school by winning 12 letters in football, base and track, captaining each team.

L. W. (Chip) ROBERT.

After graduation he turned down a tempting offer to play professional baseball with the Detroit Tigers and entered business in Atlanta. Success came quickly in engineering and other business fields, but his public service had been confined to a position on the state board of regents until he was named an assistant secretary of the Treasury shortly after Roosevelt first was elected President.

Resigning from that post he continued work in Washington as secretary and acting treasurer of the Democratic national committee, recently giving up the latter post.

Rather short, Robert is compactly built. Dark hair streaked with gray combines with carefully chosen clothes and an assured bearing to give him the stamp of the successful executive. He talks firmly and ably, but bears no reputation as an orator.

Married in 1910 to Louise Ayres, two children, Lawrence Wood III and Louisa were born of this union, Louisa attaining national note as a swimmer. This marriage ended in divorce about three years ago and Robert married Evie Walker, Washington socialite and horsewoman. They became the parents of a daughter last January 30.

Robert's chief hobby now is watching Georgia Tech's teams play football, and his manifold business and political tasks have left him little time for golf or other forms of sport.

S. C. HOUSE VOTES PARDON MEASURE

Liquor Fight Opens in North Carolina.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 16.—(AP) The move to divide the pardoning power between the Governor and a board of the constitutional state officers switched to the senate today when the house gave uncontested third reading to the proposal by a vote of 91 to 12.

The measure would call a popular referendum in the 1940 general election on the question of setting up a pardon board composed of the adjutant general, attorney general, comptroller general, state treasurer and secretary of state, and requiring the concurrence of a majority of the board before the Governor could grant executive clemency.

LIQUOR BATTLE FLARES IN N. C.

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 16.—(AP) The biennial "wet-dry" fight flared up suddenly today as opponents of legalized liquor banded together in denouncing a bill which they said would place North Carolina in the "mail order liquor business."

Appearing before the joint finance committee, the drys challenged the wets to a state-wide referendum on the "liquor issue" as provided in a measure introduced earlier this week by Representative Grady Withrow, of Rutherford.

The measure would allow the State Board of Alcoholic Control to establish warehouses in large cities from which individuals in dry counties could order liquor.

INCOME OF FARMERS DECLINES IN FEBRUARY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP)—The Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported today that farmers were getting slightly lower prices for their products in mid-February than a month ago.

Bureau statisticians said declines had been reported on dairy products, grain, eggs, tobacco, truck crops and some other commodities which more than offset price advances on meat animals and some fruits.

Although the general foreign demand situation continued "relatively unfavorable," officials said they expected some improvement this spring in the domestic demand for farm products.

TURNER IS INDICTED IN GRIFFIN ROBBERY

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

GRIFFIN, Ga., Feb. 16.—Forrest Turner, notorious Georgia "bad man" and escape artist, stood indicted today for "robbery by force" in Spalding county.

The grand jury indicted Turner and Leon Fallen on felony charges in connection with the robbery of W. S. Hammock, Griffin filling station manager, the night of December 17, 1938.

Turner meanwhile received, in Augusta, an additional 10 to 15 years to the 79-year sentence he was serving when he escaped last September.

RATE PARITY ACTION HELD IMPERATIVE

South Faces Greater Hardship Unless Given Relief, Doran Says.

The south, long suffering because of freight rate discriminations, now faces even greater economic hardship unless prompt action is taken for rate parity, J. J. Doran, president of the Atlanta Freight Bureau, declared yesterday.

"The Atlanta Freight Bureau wants it understood that it is not unmindful of the railroads' financial condition," Doran stated, explaining that southerners want rate parity with other sections of the nation on a basis that will not work hardship on the carriers. "This section cannot prosper through agriculture alone. New industries are essential for southern prosperity, but the present rate structure acts as a brake on manufacturing expansion in the southeast."

He urged all southern industrialists and others interested to attend the bureau's annual meeting February 25 at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, chairman of the powerful senate committee on interstate commerce, will be principal speaker. He will be introduced by Governor Rivers.

Doran explained that the freight rate-making "philosophy" of the Interstate Commerce Commission has arbitrarily divided the country into territories.

"Rates in the 'official' territory, east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers are lower than rates in other territories. Likewise, lower rates are made on goods shipped into this favored section. The rates vary on different classes of traffic. Rates on certain classes of goods within and from the south are sometimes 60 per cent higher than on similar goods in the 'official' territory."

TUBERCULOSIS BODY RE-ELECTS SHEPARD

Entire Staff of Atlanta Association Renamed for Second Term.

Charles E. Shepard and his entire staff of officers were re-elected for a second term at the 30th annual meeting of the Atlanta Tuberculosis Association.

Dr. H. C. Schenck, director of the Georgia Division of Tuberculosis Control, spoke on "Tuberculosis in Georgia: Suggestions for Case Finding and Control." Miss Mary Dickinson, executive secretary, presented honor awards and Forrester B. Washington reported for the negro division, of which he is president.

Shepard, in his annual report, reviewed the progress made by the various departments throughout the past year. He reported that 6,440 tuberculin tests had been made last year as a result of extension work, compared to less than 2,700 made in 1937, and that the X-ray program during 1938 was the largest in the history of the association. Shepard expressed the association's gratitude to all the organizations and individuals who assisted in the work during the past 12 months, and to the weekly and daily newspapers for their co-operation.

Treasurer's Report.

L. D. Sharp, treasurer, reported that almost $13,000 had been received from the sale of Christmas seals, but that $1,200 was still lacking to reach the three cents per capita quota. He expressed hope that a large part of this deficit would be raised from tardy contributions.

Officers re-elected to serve with Shepard during 1939 include Miss Marion Woodward, first vice president; J. L. Edwards, second vice president; Dr. Elizabeth Broach, third vice president; Lewis D. Sharp, treasurer, and Miss Mary Dickinson, executive secretary, and Forrester Washington, president of the negro division.

New members chosen for the board of directors are Jackson Dick, Slater Marshall, Dr. Edward G. Mackay and Alva Maxwell.

HEARST REPORTERS BARRED BY OLSON

San Francisco Men 'Unfair, Untruthful,' He Says.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 16.—(UP)—Governor Culbert Olson today barred representatives of William Randolph Hearst's San Francisco Examiner from his capitol press conferences, charging the paper with "unfairness and coloring of news for the purposes of sniping unfairly and untruthfully about acts of the administration."

The action apparently was based on a story published in this morning's Examiner alleging that Richard C. Olson, the Governor's son and private secretary, had ordered that a friend, Chester Reid, Los Angeles, be given valuable concessions at the Golden Gate International Exposition.

INCREASED DEFENSE TO BE URGED TODAY

Legion and Masonic Programs Will Be Devoted to Subject.

Increased provisions for national defense will be urged in two addresses today as members of the Reserve Officers Association and other groups continue observance of the sixth annual National Defense Week.

Programs of the American Legion and the Masonic Club will be devoted to discussions of needs for greater army, navy and air forces.

Lieutenant Colonel Fonville McWhorter, Atlanta chairman for Defense Week, will speak at the Legion meeting in the new clubhouse at Piedmont park at 12:30 o'clock. He will replace Lieutenant Colonel Lawrence W. Young, inspector-instructor for the organized reserves in Georgia, who is ill.

Commander Walter LeCraw invited all reserve officers and other veterans to the luncheon meeting. Several hundred are expected.

Lieutenant Colonel John T. Axton, post chaplain at Fort McPherson, will be the Masonic Club speaker, Sam Rothberg, president, announced. His address on defense needs will follow the weekly luncheon at 12:30 o'clock in Rich's tea room.

Lieutenant Commander Jesse Draper, of the naval reserve, was heard Thursday night in a radio interview with Lieutenant Joseph Laube. Pointing out that the navy furnishes the first line of defense, he urged the building of a navy up to treaty strength and second to none.

IN PRICE AND SIZE, the Mercury 8 is between the Ford and the Lincoln-Zephyr. In it is something of each of those cars—yet it can't be fully described in terms of either.

It takes the proved Ford V-8 engine design to larger size, with sturdier parts and more horsepower. It benefits in its dependability and ruggedness from the experience gained in making over 5 million Ford V-8 engines.

Its wheelbase is longer than the Ford's, yet its level ride and sure-footedness trace down to principles of chassis design proved by millions of Ford owners in billions of Ford miles.

It is lower priced by a good deal than the Lincoln-Zephyr. Yet its roominess and smartness throughout are comparable with those of the bigger car.

Mercury 8, in simple fact, is another new Ford-built value. Its extra value stands alone at its price level. It is the newest car of the year!

City Is Pledged 15 Million by Straus

New Housing Fund Virtually Assured by Promise of USHA Administrator on Visit Here.

By JACK J. SPALDING.

Officials of the Atlanta Housing Authority were virtually assured yesterday that their application for $15,000,000 more in federal funds would be approved by the United States Housing Authority as soon as congress appropriates more money for the federal agency.

The promise was made by Nathan Straus, administrator of the USHA at a luncheon given him yesterday at the Capital City Club.

"Atlanta has one of the best rounded slum-clearance programs in the country," Straus said. "It is detailed, well thought out and complete, showing exactly what the Atlanta Housing Authority wishes to do until 1950. There aren't four other cities in the nation that have done as much work, or deserve as much credit as Atlanta."

Hamilton Lauded.

He paid high tribute to George B. Hamilton, chairman of the State Housing Commission, for his promotion and understanding of housing projects in Georgia, and to C. F. Palmer, Philip Weltner and others for the outstanding work that had been done in Atlanta.

Straus had said the day before that the new $15,000,000 application, plus the $14,250,000 program now beginning, and the $5,500,000 Techwood and University Homes would go far toward solving the problem of many of Atlanta's 27,000 ill-housed families. He foresaw the day when Atlanta, like Vienna and Manchester would be a model city, practically without slums.

"Slums cost you money," he said, addressing a group of business leaders who had been invited to meet him. "Taxpayers are beginning to realize this. That is why 155 cities are now co-operating with the United States Housing Authority to wipe out their slums. More than $650,000,000 has been committed by the authority in the form of loan contracts or earmarkings which will soon be loan contracts."

11 Georgia Authorities.

There are now 11 housing authorities in Georgia, and four loan contracts have been made, with Atlanta, Savannah, Augusta and Columbus. In addition three cities, Rome, Macon and Athens have had funds earmarked for them which will be released shortly, the administrator stated.

"Local contributions to this program in the form of exempting the new projects from taxation will be offset many times over by the reduction in diseases, delinquency and crime. Every study of the subject proves that it is more expensive for a city to subsidize its slums than it is to subsidize the new housing which will replace them," he explained.

Straus said that 5,000 new homes are going into construction every month under the present program, and that beginning next summer, 5,000 families a month will move from unsanitary, unsafe, houses in disease and crime-ridden neighborhoods into decent homes.

"The movement will go on with a steady increase in employment in the building trades, and a renewed purchasing power for all those employed directly or indirectly in building. As the housing programs grow, employment will grow, slums will disapear, and the America of tomorrow, providing decent homes for her low income group of citizens will be in the making."

Project To Employ 2,000.

He estimated that more than 1,000 employed in the building trades will shortly be given employment on the new projects in Atlanta and that the number should rise to at least 2,000 in the course of a year.

Straus' address at the luncheon was the last official act of his two-day visit here. Yesterday morning he received a delegation from Macon, including Clay Murphey, chairman of the Macon Housing Authority; W. T. Anderson, editor and publisher of the Macon Telegraph, and Mayor Charlie Bowden, who filed formal application for the $1,750,000 that has been set aside for them.

After the luncheon he left for Columbus, and the remainder of his southern tour. While in Columbus, he said, he expects to visit the old home of his family at near-by Talbotton.

STRAUS IN AUGUSTA FOR SLUM STUDY

COLUMBUS, Ga., Feb. 16.—(AP) Nathan Straus, national housing administrator, accompanied by Mrs. Straus, arrived in the city this afternoon to inspect sites for the two local slum clearance projects and confer with the Columbus Housing Authority.

Following a conference with the Columbus Housing Authority tomorrow, Mr. Straus will be taken on a tour of areas in the city where present and prospective future sites will be inspected. He will then meet with the Phenix City Housing Authority.

Mr. Straus will be honored at a luncheon at noon at which he will speak after being introduced by George Hamilton, state treasurer and head of the Georgia Housing Authority. After the luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Straus will visit Fort Benning where a special program has been arranged.

The Columbus Authority will entertain the visitors at a dinner and reception tomorrow night. They will leave Saturday to inspect sites at Birmingham, Ala.

TWO BROTHERS ARRESTED IN KIDNAPING OF RANCH WIFE

MRS. NORMA MEEKS.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 16. (UP)—Yuba county authorities tonight arrested Robert and Ollin Grimes, brothers from Louisville, Ky., and charged them with kidnaping Mrs. Norma Meeks, 50-year-old ranch wife, from her Rio Oso home last September 1.

The arrests were made outside the federal district courtroom where the two had been arraigned earlier on charges of being fugitives from justice.

They pleaded not guilty to the fugitive charges and were released by Federal Judge Michael Roche on their own recognizance.

The release permitted Sheriff Bert Ullrey, of Yuba county, to seize the brothers, who had been brought here from their Kentucky home by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

Ullrey took the pair to Yuba City for confinement in the county jail. Bail of $10,000 each was set on the charges. The brothers, 24-year-old Robert and 29-year-old Ollin, were unable to post bond.

The two had been taken into custody January 30 in Louisville following a visit there by District Attorney Loyd Hewitt and Deputy Sheriff Dick Kimerer.

There was a third man involved, an older man whom the others called "the boss." Mrs. Meeks said he had ordered the others to kill her before fleeing but they had rebelled.

It was learned that the search for the Grimes brothers started last November. Federal agents returned them here on fugitive warrants. With their return, the FBI withdrew from the case and turned it over to state and county authorities.

GRAND JURORS, BAR CLASH OVER COURTS

asked the grand jury to advise them how they were to meet these requests with present revenues.

Ed L. Almand, chairman, specifically pointed out that the total relief load of the county for 1939, under present estimates, will approximate $1,000,000. J. A. Ragsdale, chairman of the public works committee, expressed the belief that the county is getting more for each dollar spent than it could hope to obtain if it abolished that department and let all road and improvement work out by contract. He showed that the county has about 500 miles of paved roads, 700 miles of all weather roads and another 1,500 miles which the county must scrape and keep in condition for travel.

Troy Chastain, another commissioner, joined Almand and Ragsdale in expressing the opinion that the county is in good financial condition. He justified his contention that the employment of a landscape architect by the county at a salary of $500 a month was economy in the long run and will pay dividends."

County officials told grand jury members that the present cash deficit is only about $300, that there is no bonded indebtedness, and that this record is unsurpassed by any county of similar size in the entire southeast.

Auditor's reports show that the actual county deficit is about $1,500,000, but unpaid tax fi. fas. held by the county absorb approximately $1,200,000 of that figure.

Major provisions of the budget bill, approved by Hendrix and Marion Smith, counsel for the Clearing House Association, follow:

1. Adoption of a tentatively balanced budget by January 1 and its publication in a newspaper; following which public hearings must be held beginning not later than January 15. (This will avoid increases made in past budgets after its adoption unless revenues justify such additions.)

2. Final adoption of the budget at the regular March session of the commission at which time the tax rate for the current year will be made, thus changing the time of setting the tax rate from September to March. The budget will be published within a week after its final adoption.

3. Only revenues from normal sources will be considered in framing the budget, and incomes from real estate sales or buildings will not be included. Proceeds from the latter may be applied to purchasing of other real estate, new construction, or against outstanding indebtedness. Only 99 per cent of previous year's actual revenues may be budgeted in any one year.

4. Gradual liquidation of all deficits, the manner not prescribed, but left to the delegation to determine.

5. If a deficit is incurred by the county after adoption of the budget law, commissioners themselves are held personally liable and can be forced to make restitution to the county.

6. Expenditures of the public works department shall not exceed 35 per cent of the county income, and purchase of all materials in excess of $5,000 shall be published by posting at the courthouse at least two weeks before the purchase is made.

To Relieve BABY'S HEAD COLD Misery

DO THIS: Massage his throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub and tuck him into bed. Next, put a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water; place a newspaper or sheet over the child's head like a tent, covering the bowl too, so the medicated vapors can be inhaled for several minutes. This treatment loosens phlegm—clears air-passages—checks tendency to cough—relieves local congestion. Long after he relaxes into peaceful sleep, VapoRub's poultice-and-vapor action is still bringing relief—and you can get a good night's rest too.

HOW TAX RAISES WILL AFFECT CITY

Possible Increases in County Rates Also Detailed.

On the basis of 1938 tax rates, Fulton county residents living inside Atlanta paid $1.90 per $100 property valuation to the county and state, and those living outside the city paid $2.65 per $100 valuation.

If taxes are increased to 13 mills for the current year, those living inside Atlanta will pay $2; while those outside will pay $2.70. If they are hiked to 13 1-2 mills, city levies will be $2.05 and outlying residents will pay $2.75.

On the 12 1-2-mill basis of last year, the county proper collected $1.25 for every $100 valuation from Atlanta residents, the state got 50 cents and a special 15-cent tax was imposed for schools.

Those living outside the city paid an additional 75-cent school tax with the other charges made to those living inside Atlanta.

If the Fulton county millage is raised the 13 mills, an additional 5 cents will be collected on every $100 valuation, and if it is increased to 13 1-2 mills, the increase will be 10 cents for every $100.

yers championed them as a deterrent to crime.

Commissioners Questioned.

Grand jury action followed a morning session during which members of the Fulton county commission appeared "on invitation" before it and in which serious consideration of county finances was given the right-of-way.

It also developed during the day that Senator G. Everett Millican, of Fulton county, has a draft of a budget bill, which "seemed to meet grand jury requirements," in his possession for introduction in the present session of the legislature.

Ryburn G. Clay, president of the Fulton National Bank and of the Atlanta Clearing House Association, spent considerable time in the grand jury room before members drafted the special presentments, but neither he nor grand jury members would commment on the subject of the conference.

No Probe Expected.

Frank R. Mitchell, foreman of the grand jury, would make no statement, but reports were that the present grand jury will make no detailed investigation of the charges of waste and extravagance and one-man domination against George F. Longino, resigned, but "will confine its endeavor to an effort to keep the county on a sound financial basis and insure its future good fiscal condition."

There also were reports that the grand jury is alarmed at the apparent prospect of an increase in the county tax rate, a circumstance which is said to have caused considerable discussion in past deliberations and one which promises to command much more attention on the present jury.

If any sweeping probe of county affairs is made, it will be left for the March-April grand jury. it was indicated yesterday, since that body is specifically charged under the law to investigate the condition of the county.

In the meantime, the controversy between the grand jury and the executive committee of the bar association stirred interest in courthouse circles.

Solicitor John S. McClelland, of the criminal court of Fulton county, has been mentioned as the probable appointee in the event a new court division is established in that court, and his assistant, Leonard Crawford, and Bond Almand, assistant city attorney, have been mentioned as successors to McClelland.

State Position.

County Attorney Walter C. Hendrix and several other outstanding lawyers have been advanced as appointees in the event the new superior court division is created, which itself appeared doubtful in view of the fact that the state would have to pay $5,000 of the annual salary.

All Fulton commissioners with the exception of Gloer Hailey, inducted as Longino's successor Wednesday, attended the grand jury session yesterday.

They introduced a mass of records showing the new and unusual demands being made on the county for additional services, and

VINSON SUPPORTS JACKSONVILLE BASE

Naval Aeronautics Chief Refuses to Make Choice Between Rival Claims.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Jacksonville, Fla., won support today from Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the house naval affairs committee as the site for a southeastern naval air base.

Vinson declared his choice after a session at which the committee was told congress, not the naval aeronautics bureau, must choose between Jacksonville and Miami, the chief contenders.

Rear Admiral Arthur B. Cook, bureau chief, refused to make a recommendation. He said Miami was better strategically but that the cost of a base at Jacksonville would be considerably less.

Vinson said he would vote for Jacksonville, which a naval board recommended recently for the site, because of the lower cost and the shorter period needed for construction.

H declined to predict how the full house committee would vote. A subcommittee, which inspected both sites last week-end, will meet tomorrow to discuss the question.

Cook said he would recommend Jacksonville if the committee did not see fit to provide more than $15,000,000, but that if budgetary matters were not to be considered the choice would be Miami, where the cost would be about $22,500,000.

"From a pure standpoint of the national defense," he explained, "there is no question that the Miami site is better.

$58,200 PROJECTS FOR STREETS URGED

Paving Requests Sent Council Finance Committee; Larger Buses Favored.

City council's finance committee will be asked to approve requests totaling $58,200 for street improvements following favorable action yesterday by the public works committee.

The requests include $10,000 for emergency work on unpaved streets; $30,000 for a paving program in connection with the Works Progress Administration; $9,900 as the city's share of repaving North Boulevard from Forrest avenue to Ponce de Leon avenue, and $8,300 for repaving North Boulevard from Eighth street to Amsterdam avenue.

"A number of these unpaved streets are in deplorable condition," Chairman George Lyle said. "There are people who haven't been home in a week with their automobiles because of the mud."

The committee also approved Councilman John White's resolution calling upon the Georgia Power company to provide 40-passenger buses for the Piedmont-Ansley Park and Sylvan Hills lines. White contends the present 32-passenger buses are not large enough.

STATE WELFARE RUN FOR POLITICS--LUCAS

sonnel and salaries, and disregarded a board request that he refrain from expanding his staff without consulting the board.

Succeeded by Deen.

Murdaugh was succeeded several weeks ago by former United States Representative Braswell Deen, of Alma, and became assistant attorney general assigned to the State Highway Department.

Murdaugh was not present when the charges were made, and could not be reached for comment.

Asked why the board failed to insist on its authority, Chairman Lucas said he did not know "Where the board could have gone behind the ruling of the attorney general."

"The director informed us the attorney general had ruled it was exclusively his prerogative to fix salaries."

Board members expressed surprise, however, when Chairman Wilmer Lanier read copies of the opinion, rendered by then Attorney General M. J. Yeomans, that "after view of the act I am of the opinion that appointments should be made by the director under such terms and conditions as prescribed by the board. . . The board has general supervision, and the director acts under rules and regulations of the board."

Carried on "Snipe Hunt."

Polled individually by the committee, members of the board said Murdaugh had told them of the contents of the opinion, but had not given them the actual letter.

"I think the board has been carried on a snipe hunt," remarked Vice Chairman James V. Carmichael, of Marietta. Later, Carmichael explained: "I mean the attorney ruled one thing, and the director (Murdaugh) led the board to believe he had ruled another."

Questioned about the transfer of $94,500 in welfare funds for use in connection with construction of a new state office building opposite the capitol, Dr. J. R. Wilson, a board member, said:

"Every time we asked about the building, we were told a commission had been appointed to take care of it."

"Who told you?" asked Carmichael.

"The director."

"You mean Mr. Murdaugh?"

"Yes," replied Wilson. "That's about all the satisfaction I ever got."

Change in Law Asked.

Chairman Lucas told the committee he knew of no other state "in which the welfare director tops the board" and expressed opinion Georgia's law should be amended to vest authority in the board, which in turn would "be amenable to the legislature."

Carmichael asked Lucas if "in your opinion, the social security program as now administered is not being operated for the benefit of political officeholders instead of persons in need of assistance?"

Lucas said that, being "forced to answer the question," he "reluctantly would answer yes."

Earlier, members of the board asserted State Welfare Department administrative costs in many cases "are excessive."

The cost of administering public assistance in Fulton county was cited by Chairman Lanier of the committee as an example of what he said was "excessive cost of administration." Representative Carmichael, questioning Lucas, asked if he believed there was any justification for the high cost in Fulton, which Lucas had estimated "about 16 per cent."

"No, sir, I do not," replied Lucas.

"Do you see any justification for what it is costing the state of Georgia?" pressed Carmichael.

"I do not," Lucas said.

Carmichael asked whether it was not Lucas' opinion that welfare could be better directed by unpaid boards, "instead of those who want to hold political jobs."

"Nail on the Head."

"I think you have hit the nail on the head," replied Lucas.

Pressed further by Carmichael for suggestions of how to remedy the situation, Lucas said he believed if Georgia appointed "a man like Mr. Deen (Braswell Deen, director of public welfare) and made him a free agent, with full authority like the general manager of an industrial organization, he could work this into shape for Georgia in 90 days."

"Isn't it true," asked Carmichael, "that Georgia has it in its power to clean this up?"

"If it really wants to do it, yes," said Lucas.

Carmichael asked Lucas if it was not his opinion "that certain individuals have oversold us on what Washington will do for us" in the matter of providing federal funds.

"I think that has been the case," Lucas replied.

"Do you think Georgia would lose federal funds because it cut salaries in the Welfare Department?" asked Carmichael.

Excessive Salaries.

"I don't think so," was the rejoinder.

"Do you think we are paying salaries that are too high?"

Lucas answered in the affirmative.

Carmichael pressed questions regarding actions of the welfare board last spring in which the board adopted resolutions cutting salaries over $100 monthly by 10 per cent. Later, minutes of the board disclosed this action was rescinded after Governor Rivers summoned the board into session and warned them the action might imperil future federal funds.

"Did anything lead you to believe Washington would withhold these funds if salaries were cut 10 per cent?" asked Carmichael.

Lucas replied there had been no official statement to that effect from Washington but the board acted "on the theory advanced by the state director of welfare (at that time Lamar Murdaugh)."

Carmichael asked if the department setup was approved by the board or whether "it was set up and you were asked about it later."

"That is a fact," Lucas admitted.

He added Yeomans ruled the board could act only in an advisory capacity.

"Then it's time that the legislature gave the board some power," snapped Carmichael.

TAFT, VANDENBERG AND DEWEY LEAD AS G. O. P. HOPES

Ohio Senator and New York Attorney Rose Rapidly During Year, Gallup Survey Shows.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—As the resurgent Republican party heads toward the 1940 campaign, spurred on by last Monday's Lincoln Day rally, Thomas E. Dewey, of New York; Senator Arthur Vandenberg, of Michigan, and Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, appear to be the most popular choices for President at this time among the rank and file of Republican voters.

A new survey by the American Institute conducted only among Republicans shows Dewey leading the field with 27 per cent of the vote cast by those Republicans who have a definite choice at this time. Senator Vandenberg runs second and Senator Taft third. Next in order are Alfred Landon, Senator Borah, Herbert Hoover and Fiorello LaGuardia.

No selected list of candidates was presented to voters, so the replies were entirely spontaneous. A cross-section of Republican voters was asked: "Who would you like to see as the Republican candidate for President in 1940?" The seven leading choices with the percentage vote for each were:

1. Dewey	27%
2. Vandenberg	21
3. Taft	16
4. Landon	7
5. Borah	4
6. Hoover	4
7. LaGuardia	4

While Dewey is an early popular favorite in the G. O. P. race, that race is by no means an open-and-shut affair. Approximately one-half of the Republicans interviewed in the survey said they had no definite choice at this time.

Within the last 10 months the Institute has made three separate tests of Republican sentiment on 1940. One important trend has been the rapid rise in popularity of Dewey and Taft. Last May neither of these two young Republicans received enough votes in an Institute survey to place them among the leading choices. But by last November Dewey, although unsuccessful in his campaign for governor of New York, was in first place, and Taft, who was elected senator, was in third place—positions which they continue to hold today.

Dewey's prestige among party voters has continued with but slight change since the November election. The Dewey figure of 27 per cent today compares with 33 per cent in the Institute's survey of November 27, 1938. Senator Vandenberg, who was the No. 1 favorite in surveys last year, has lost ground to Dewey.

The following table, showing the leading choices for President among Republican voters in the last 10 months, illustrates the shifts and trends in the popularity of party leaders.

May 21, 1938.

1—Vandenberg; 2—Hoover; 3—Landon; 4—Borah; 5—LaGuardia; 6—Frank; 7—Knox.

November 27, 1938.

1—Dewey; 2—Vandenberg; 3—Taft; 4—Landon; 5—Hoover; 6—Lodge; 7—James.

Today.

1—Dewey; 2—Vandenberg; 3—Taft; 4—Landon; 5—Borah; 6—Hoover; 7—LaGuardia.

Besides the seven leading choices in today's survey many other men prominent in political or business life were mentioned. They include:

YOUTH CRUSADE OPENS TONIGHT

Methodists To Stage Rally at Wesley Memorial.

An attendance of more than 1,000 young people between the ages of 12 and 24 is expected for Youth Crusade rally at 7:45 o'clock tonight at Wesley Memorial church.

Speakers and their subjects will include the Rev. Dew Kilpatrick, associate pastor of St. Mark Methodist church, "Here We Stand;" the Rev. Eugene C. Few, pastor of the Druid Hills Methodist church, "Youth Daring To Be Christian," and Roy Sullivan, president of the young people's department of Bethany church, "Youth Is Ready."

Others who will take part on the program are Miss Gladys Abernathy, Charles Sandiford, Roy Berry, Dr. W. G. Henry and Rembert A. Green.

HOMER A. PARRIS RITES WILL BE HELD TODAY

Funeral services for Homer A. Parris, 39, of 1064 Piedmont avenue, N. E., who died Wednesday night at a private hospital, will be conducted at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill.

The Rev. E. T. Wilson will officiate and burial will be in West View cemetery under direction of H. M. Patterson & Son. Mr. Parris, an employe of the Citizens & Southern National Bank, formerly was connected with the Atlanta Trust Company.

SHACKLED CITIES

Whenever the elected officials of a municipality in Georgia, or the people themselves, desire to make a loan, or do anything which they previously have not been granted special permission to do, they must first secure favorable action by the state legislature.

It makes no difference that the matter relates solely to the people of the town or that the effects of it will not extend beyond its corporate limits, the state constitution must be amended before anything legally can be done about it. To amend the constitution in such cases, a two-thirds vote of the legislature, composed of individuals who are not, as a rule, even remotely interested in the matter at hand, is first required. Then, it must be given approval in the next general election. This calls for a vote by the entire population of the state, who are even less concerned with it.

It also not infrequently happens that the members of the legislature, as well as the people at large, act upon matters directly concerning a municipality which the people of that corporate entity, themselves, have not been privileged to vote upon.

The people of the towns and cities of Georgia are beginning to feel resentful against this continued denial of the privilege of conducting their own local affairs. It is high time the members of the general assembly took notice of it.

In a comprehensive exposition of the whole outmoded system of shackled cities, which appeared recently as a series of articles in The Constitution, William H. Smith, well-known Atlanta lawyer, pointed out the path followed by other states. It seems not inapropos to suggest that every legislator, every senator, should make it his duty to familarize himself with its bad effects and, together, work out a remedy, if the state of Georgia is not forever to remain as one of the nation's governmental crazy quilts.

UNITED FOR DEFENSE

The vote of the house, at Washington, on the $376,000,000 army expansion bill demonstrates that, however this nation may divide on matters of purely domestic policy, when the question of defense against possible foreign foes arises it is practically a unit in its determination. The house was 367 for the measure, with only 15 voting against it.

This marks the first time at this session of congress when a presidentially approved program has met with such almost unanimous approval. On strictly American questions such as relief, taxation, industrial regulation, etc., the house has frequently been at variance with the administration. On national defense, both executive and legislative branches are united. It becomes a happy augury for the elemination of differences and for United Americanism should it ever become necessary to face a would-be foreign invader of these shores.

The program provided in the measure is one of undeniable reasonableness and intelligence. The principal item is to increase the army's first line fighting plane strength to 5,500 within two years. It also provides for larger army personnel and strengthened armament to make the Panama Canal impregnable.

It provides for the training of 20,000 new civilian pilots a year, as a manpower reservoir for fighting planes should occasion arise. It provides other important additions to the defense structure of the nation.

Every American hopes, with all his heart, that these instruments of war, this trained man power, will never be called upon to enter modern battle. But all Americans realize that the greatest guarantee against attack, is ability for defense, an ability known and respected by all possible foes.

A plow with radio attached is a new boon to the farmer. Thus equipped, the sturdy tiller of the soil can hear himself being saved in Washington.

For Franco, in war-torn Spain, the real hour of trial lies just ahead. He must try not to look like a gate-crasher at his own victory fete.

"Statistics, carefully compiled, show the southern negro consumes more watermelon than people in other areas." We are only slightly amazed.

Reno points with pride to the fact that marriages there outnumber divorces four to one. It is not said, though, how many of these are on the first bounce.

A committee in Brooklyn appeals to Henry Ford to buy the Dodger ball team, and why not? Anything as quaint should be stuffed and handed down to posterity.

A nice point in ethics arises for the New York bar to ponder: Can a litigant deduct from counsel's fee for what he lent the court?

BASICALLY UNFAIR

Arguments of opponents of change in the railroad freight rate structure of the southeast are, some of them, based upon understandable grounds. Yet there is one striking element in them all. None deny that, basically, the costs of shipping southern products to market average higher than the cost of shipping the same products to the same market from manufacturers in New England and the east. This is so, in respect to many commodities, despite the fact that the length of haul from the south is, in many cases, shorter than from the east.

With this situation existing it remains fundamentally unjust to the southeast to exact a penalty against it in this important item of cost. Any economic situation which favors one section of the country is unfair and unsound and, regardless of difficulties in the way, must be eliminated before the entire nation can hope for the prosperity and development which is possible.

It is possible that a reduction in freight rates, necessary to rectify the injustice, will bear heavily upon railroads already hard pressed to make financial ends meet. Everyone has fullest smpathy for the railroads and realizes the vital importance of their solvency to the economic safety of the nation. Yet even this consideration is not proper reason for penalizing any section of the country.

While railroads as a whole are far from earning, today, a reasonable return on investment, yet recent figures show that the profits, small though they are, are greater in the southeast than for the country as a whole.

It is futile to argue the plight of the railroads or to cite exceptional cases or to speak of the vast network of varying rates involved. Regardless of such considerations, the fact remains that the southeast is handicapped in industrial competition with the east and with New England. And while this situation prevails economic justice is forsworn and sectional privilege still exerts its strangling hold upon the national economy.

ATLANTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

For many years the Atlanta Historical Society, originally composed of a comparatively few civic minded individuals, has been gathering records, books, relics, pictures and other historical material pertaining to Atlanta and vicinity. The headquarters of the organization has been located, temporarily, at a number of different places to suit the convenience of the members.

This was all well and good, at first, but the work has become so enlarged and the amount of material so important and expansive, that permanent and more commodious quarters are essential if the work of recording and preserving the historical facts pertaining to the Atlanta area is to continue.

It is the hope of the society to acquire the old Inman residence at West Peachtree and Sixth streets. An architect has been engaged to work out plans and to give an estimate of the cost of needed improvements. A fund has already been started. The initial contribution came as a legacy from the late Colonel Jack J. Spalding, one of the original group of historically minded citizens.

Up to two years ago, the organization was more in the nature of a group of individuals who gathered, periodically, for their own enlightenment and pleasure, for the purpose of contributing to the group such historical material as had been acquired between meetings. By that time the work had taken on a broader aspect and had increased in general interest to such an extent the society was reorganized as a permanent public institution.

The Atlanta Historical Society and those responsible for its continuation are entitled to a full measure of financial support as well as the thanks of the people of the city. It is only in this way that the valuable historical material already acquired and sought to be acquired in the future can be permanently preserved.

Let us not try to analyze the vote of congress which requires officeholders to pay income taxes. When you take a miracle apart you spoil it.

The senior senator from Virginia discerns a White House plot to remove him from the Washington picture—possibly linked up with this new invisible glass.

So far, the Garner likeness to Coolidge rests on silence. There has been no opportunity to study Cactus Jack's hay-pitching form in a double-breasted serge.

If the London students are sincere who march about with banners reading "We Want America," let them make us an offer, some Monday.

Editorial of the Day

WAR RESERVES.

(From The New Orleans Times-Picayune.)

The suggestion of six senators headed by Senator Miller, of Arkansas, that the War, Navy and other departments survey defense needs with reference to metal stocks is sound. It is apparent, however, that the senators underestimate the cost of gathering such supplies, for the $25,000,000 they have in mind would be consumed in the purchase of only 2,000,000 tons of scrap iron at 1938 domestic prices.

It is the high cost element that warrants shrewd evaluation of actual needs in this respect. When such an authority as Emory E. Smith, commissioner for the World War Industries Board, says that the United States could not enter into a major war for the lack of a sufficient supply of scrap iron, the continued export of that sometimes despised commodity cannot be lightly passed over. The question is bound to arise, however, as to whether the industry that has been built up to accommodate foreign demands for scrap is to be left high and dry, or whether the government is prepared to acquire what is left of its supplies.

Bessemer plants have found a substitute for scrap iron used in their own refining processes, but whether this could be of any possible aid in the manufacture of armor and munitions we frankly cannot judge. The metallurgical division of the Federal Bureau of Mines also has developed a method for the production, from low-grade American ores, of metallic manganese, another element in the manufacture of steel which is vital to defense preparations. Whatever costs less and gets the job done is still a good peacetime motto.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

A PROPHECY CAME TRUE WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—One evening while the senate was angrily considering Louis Dembitz Brandeis' nomination to the supreme court, a little party of his admirers dined together in Boston. The only ones who need be recalled today were Felix Frankfurter, then newly made a professor at the Harvard Law School, and Charles Townsend Copeland, the great "Copey" of Harvard's English department. Copeland, the giver of the party, had chosen an excellent French restaurant of those days and, being well-living men, they dined very handsomely.

After dinner, they returned to Copeland's rooms feeling eloquent. Copeland, an ardent Brandeis man, had invited a few students in. Frankfurter spoke ardently in defense of his friend, who was then under attack by all the principalities and powers. Copeland was moved, perhaps, by Frankfurter's talk. At any rate, when it was done, he rose to address the gathering in his most prophetic tone:

"I am sure that we shall see Brandeis a justice of the supreme court and, what is more (turning to Frankfurter), I am sure the day will come when you will sit there by his side."

Copeland's prediction came true to the letter. Brandeis and Frankfurter did sit together on the high bench, if only for one week. At the week's end, the great justice sent his letter of resignation to the President, yet it must have given him a peculiar pleasure to close his long term of service in such fashion. He was always an encourager of younger men, and he has favored few of his disciples more than Frankfurter.

THE WORK GOES ON For about a year his friends have known that Justice Brandeis was thinking of retirement. His intellectual capacity is as great as ever, but he is as careful in judging himself as a great case. His physical energy has been running low, and the heavy detail of the work of the court was telling on him. He feared to be unable to carry his share—he, who had carried so much more than his share for so many years. And so he decided to go. His manner of going, so simple, so perfectly unpretentious, was typical of the man.

Nor does his retirement mean that his career is over. He is not a man to let his work end until his life ends, and, while his great age takes its toll, he is in excellent health. After the little attack of grippe from which he recently recoverd, his doctors examined him carefully and pronounced him sound and well. His spirits are high, and friends who have seen him in the last few days say that he has never seemed to look forward to the future with more enthusiasm.

He has always done at least three jobs, and in retiring from the court he has relinquished only one of them. He will still be counselor-in-chief to the young disciples who sit at his feet whenever Mrs. Brandeis, who carefully conserves her husband's strength, will admit them to the ascetic Brandeis apartment. He will also continue to advise the leaders of Jewry on his people's problems. In the last year, important Zionists and many others have urged him to take up the Jewish leadership himself, but, although he considered it, it is understood that he is not thinking of accepting an official part.

LATE FRUITING He need take no official part, if the world is to be granted a vestige of sense. His career alone is a sufficient answer to the ignoble imaginings of anti-Semitism. He has served nobly and selflessly, through many years, seeking always to make the world a fit place for the human spirit as he highly conceived it.

Now that he is gone and Holmes is dead, the country will have to wait a while before it breeds new giants. They were dear friends, perhaps closer to one another than to anyone else. Yet they were curiously different. Brandeis, the man of fact and theory, knew what ought to be done, and approved when government did it. Holmes, the philosopher and poet, was too much a Nihilist to believe anything ought to be done, but approved also, because he thought government could do as it pleased within the bounds of human decency. Brandeis used to try to convert Holmes to his facts, sending him cases of books on sociology and economics for his summer reading. Holmes, admiring Brandeis for his industry, still returned to his Dante, his Greek dramatists and his French yellowbacks.

Together, they may be said to have exerted a deeper political influence than any other Americans of the 1920s. The businessmen and politicians who ruled the roost in the boom years have vanished like dust in the wind. Holmes and Brandeis, two old men writing dissents in a cloistered courtroom, have taught a whole new generation. Their lives have fruited late, but richly.

Why, of course she would!

Nazi Sense Of Humor?

Is the following anecdote a sample of the Nazi brand of humor? One of the ironic gags which may be entered in that Goebbels contest for the best jokes of the year?

For obvious reasons the names of those involved in the story cannot be given here. It is vouched for, however, by Julian Boehm and everyone in Atlanta knows that is ample guarantee of authenticity.

The central character in the story was, a year or so ago, the proprietor of one of the larger department stores in Berlin. He is a Jew. Today he is living in the United States, permanently. Is running a small business in New York and is settled there for life.

At the height of the Nazi pogrom against the Jews, this man's store was raided. All his employes were chased out by the storm troopers. His entire stock was confiscated. In short, the place was looted. He was left with absolutely nothing.

Last week, in New York, he received a bill from Berlin, for $18. It was for drayage, to defray the cost of carting away the goods the Nazis stole out of his store!

As a perfect exemple of cruel irony, of absurdity piled upon persecution, he will frame the bill and keep it as a souvenir for his children and his children's children.

Not Conducive To Civic Pride.

While too much credit cannot be given to Bobby Jones for his achievement, as leader of the 1938 Community Chest campaign, of filling Atlanta's quota for the first time in eight years, it is not a matter of civic pride that Atlanta should be excelled, in this vital undertaking, by Birmingham. The comparative records of the two cities, brought out at the dinner last Monday honoring Bobby Jones, should raise something like a blush of shame on Atlanta's collective cheek.

It must be remembered that Birmingham is not as large a city as Atlanta. Its citizens do not enjoy as high an average income as do our citizens. It is an industrial city, with interests not so varied as ours. It should, by all logic, trail Atlanta when it comes to giving to the Community Chest.

What Are The Facts?

Yet, prior to 1938, Atlanta failed to fill her Community Chest quota for eight years. Birmingham failed only one year.

Birmingham sets her quota at a higher figure than does Atlanta. In 1938, this city asked $425,000 and got $447,000. Birmingham asked $465,000 and got $467,000.

In Atlanta 48,000 individuals contributed to the Chest. In Birmingham they numbered their givers at 72,000. The average gift in Atlanta was approximately $10, while in Birmingham it was $7. Considered in ratio with average earnings, this was at least as good a showing for Birmingham.

If the Alabama city can induce 72,000 people to give to the Chest, Atlanta should have 100,000 contributors. She has 48,000. If the proper number, 100,000, gave in the same—and surely reasonable—amount that the 48,000 give, we'd have approximately $1,000,000 for our character building and social welfare agencies. An amount not at all too large.

Bobby Jones, in a brief speech last Monday night, expressed the hope that the total given to the Chest in the 1939 campaign, coming next fall, would be at least $500,000. When you consider what Birmingham does this is a very modest desire.

It is not too early to begin thinking about the campaign to be waged next fall.

Atlantans should wake up, should take an injection of that ancient enthusiasm known as the "Atlanta spirit." If this city can't do as well as does Birmingham, it is time to renounce claims to southeastern leadership and to confess that the "Atlanta spirit" has passed away and in its place has come a plague of "Atlanta indifference."

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Tuesday, February 17, 1914:

"Twelfth-hour developments, following the scorching presentment of the grand jury, handed down Monday, are, to the effect that, unless the county commissioners, who the grand jury practically holds responsible for a state of affairs in the convict camps which makes 'Russian torture look invitingly pleasant,' put into effect at once certain recommended reformatory measures in the matter of handling county prisoners, the commissioners will be indicted."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Sunday, February 17, 1889:

"The Nine O'Clock Club will give an elegant german at the Kimball tomorrow evening. The girls have all had new gowns made for the occasion and the fact that Mr. Joseph Eddleman will lead insures plenty of pretty new figures and a good time for everybody."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

$10,000 For Indignity NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—There was a little backstairs fuss betwen two members of the help in a night club in Miami. Mr. Rudy Vallee was charged with assaulting Rodney Dillard Borden. Mr. Borden is a bus boy. Everybody knows who Mr. Vallee is.

Mr. Vallee was acquitted, Mr. Borden, aged 17, said Mr. Vallee hit him on the arm, bruising him, and swore at him, too.

The dispatch said that, notwithstanding the acquittal, Mr. Borden contemplated suit against Mr. Vallee for $10,000. That, I assume, would be for bodily harm, shock and the indignity of it all. But the physical damage would be nominal, because it was not represented as anything more than a bruise. A boy of 17 receives bruises in football practice and in disputes with other boys and thinks nothing of them. So apparently most of the $10,000 damage occurred to the young man's dignity and in his human right not to be done that way. He is well within his right in demanding reparation.

But I am circling for an opening of the subject of our colossal, incalculable, aggregate treasure as a nation in good repute, dignity, sensitive feelings, physical well-being, inalienable rights, peace of mind and love.

The National Value Total Let us assume, just to obtain a figure, that Mr. Borden, age 17, a bus boy, actually was damaged $10,000 worth in this fracas with Mr. Vallee. According to my estimates, the bruise would be scheduled for not more than six cents, the nominal figure. That would leave a balance of $9,999.94 to cover the invisible wounds to Mr. Borden's spirit and rights. We have 120,000,000 people, so the American nation possesses well over $12,000,000,000,000 in feelings and the human right not to be pushed except with just provocation. And that is the minimum figure, because this victim is just a young boy and the incident, at worst, was only a trifling affair. And, obviously, if Mr. Vallee had kicked the living be-jeepers out of him and sworn twice as loud and long his damage would have been much worse, possibly $100,000.

So $12,000,000,000,000 is the absolute rock-bottom price of our feelings and our right not to be pushed unduly, and these treasures are not extinguished against them but revive and may be damaged again and again.

To those who would sell America short, to the Herbert Hoovers and all such men of little faith in the vast responsibilities of this country, I present this note of rebuke and cheer. To them, also, I cite the fact that the average asking price for a reputation which has been damaged by incorrect statement in print or on the air is $100,000 per incident, which signifies that we possess among us at least $120,000,000,000,000 of wealth in that department. Certain precious feelings and rights overlap slightly on the various legal fronts. They are exposed to risk in physical assault, libelous statement and again in the realm of love, except that in dealing with the cash value of love we must reduce the rights by half, because only ladies may be legally damaged in this field.

Untouched Reserve Our gentlemen are capable of great love and of great anguish if jilted, but their rights in this respect represent an untouched reserve.

So the population must be reckoned at only 60,000,000 in estimating this item. The customary price is $100,000 for each offense, but it must be added that a lady may be jilted again and again. However, this only complicates the picture, so I will settle for $60,000,000,000,000 as the value of love in our nation. It shows the absurdity of the outworn pretensions of the Europeans in this respect.

Then we have the matter of collateral or referred sufferings—another majestic store of wealth which is never estimated in the nation's inventory. This is the suffering which parents sue for when their little boy tries to turn a neighbor's dog inside out and is nipped slightly on the hand. It generally amounts to about $15,000 per parent, but it occurs in a vast variety of forms. All kinds of accidents cause collateral suffering or damage through "loss of service" to persons not directly injured.

This is my actuary's day off, so I cannot foot up the figures, but this rough draft should convince anyone that even when Mr. Roosevelt has spent all the money and all the deficit and all the tangible property of the nation the United States will still be rich beyond figures in treasuries which are imperishable and inexhaustible.

An Athenian once went into an eating house in Jerusalem and ordered the boy who offered to serve him to bring some eggs and cheese.

After the boy had done so, the stranger said:

"I shall give you this coin if you will tell me which of these cheeses is from the milk of white goats and which from black goats."

"That I shall be glad to do, sir," returned the witty lad, "if you will tell me which of these eggs came from a black hen and which from a white one."

Says the Talmud further:

"Those who creep through bushes must expect to meet with briers."

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

A GREAT RELIEF Nathan Straus, administrator of the United States Housing Authority, spoke yesterday of Georgia as being one of the leading states in the southeast, which section leads the nation in public housing.

It came as a welcome relief after months of listening to speakers describe the state and the section as the nation's No. 1 economic problem. After months of hearing about starving sharecroppers and so on, it came as a positive refreshment to sit at Mr. Chuck Palmer's excellent luncheon and hear words of praise from Mr. Straus. Pellagra and hookworm; erosion and illiteracy; the boll weevil and diversification of crops were not in Mr. Straus' excellent vocabulary.

He stood right up and praised the state and the southeast. He liked Atlanta. Not only that but he promised, as soon as the money was available, to let Atlanta's housing authority have another sum, a mere $15,000,000.

It was a most encouraging luncheon. It was encouraging to know that the Atlanta Housing Authority is doing a fine job and that the state legislature cannot interfere. And to sit through one luncheon without a single mention of the President's report by the National Emergency Council was a very great relief. I do not deny the report. I merely have heard it at every luncheon, most dinners and even a few breakfasts for the past five months. I am grateful to Mr. Straus.

SEVEN GEORGIA CITIES Mr. Straus pointed out that seven Georgia cities are busy with slum plans. Atlanta, Savannah, Columbus and Augusta already had funds. Rome, Macon and Athens have funds earmarked. They soon will assume contract form.

This will be of inestimable benefit to those cities. It will have the inevitable result of stimulating private building. It never fails.

In England last year I saw some of the greatest public building projects the world has known. It so happened that more than a million and a half homes had been built with government funds. It also happened more than two and a half million had been built by private business.

In Sweden I saw the amazing development of building. There private firms do most of it under government supervision with their profits all set out before work begins. In Denmark I saw the same type work go on. It is not experimental.

Slums can be eradicated. When slums are eradicated there goes with them much disease, much crime, much human misery. A better citizenry emerges. A city saves money on its hospital, jail, police and juvenile home costs.

HOW SLUMS DEVELOP Someone asked Mr. Straus how slums develop. His answer was in the form of a government building census.

In the past 20 years four out of every five homes built rent for more than $40 per month.

In the same period four out of every five families have been able to pay less than that in rent.

Therefore they have been forced into cheaper and cheaper houses. Slum houses are the inevitable result.

The trouble with an inadequate slum clearance program is that no place is provided for those who move out of the houses destroyed. They must find some other slums. The houses now being planned for Atlanta will rent at a cheaper price than those already constructed. It was pointed out they will be the first under the housing authority. The others were part of a relief program.

Private building does not compete in this type housing. At least it never has. It benefits in that the property about any such section is enhanced in value and will then sell for more and houses and apartments built on it will rent for more.

There really can't be any effective argument against getting rid of slums. The problem is a public responsibility just as much so as is public education, public health and recreation.

IT SEEMED SOUND Nathan Straus has given up his own personal business and his own career to be of service. He impresses as being entirely sincere. His argument as to why the government should spend for public housing seems sound to me. He said, in part:

"Every taxpayer is taxed to maintain the public school system. The cost of keeping a child in school for one year is more than $75. Thus, the taxpayers contribute more than $200 a year to every family with three children in the public schools. The entire public bill for education is now more than 2 1-3 billion dollars per year. That expense burden cannot be justified by the benefit to the particular families that have children in the public schools. It can be justified only by the benefits to the entire community—of eliminating illiteracy and ignorance. Public housing is justified by the benefits to the entire community—of eliminating slums.

"By combining employment with the production of a commodity that is useful and permanent, by stimulating the building industry and the many industries that serve it, and by substituting throughout the land the economic asset of decent houses for the economic liability of decaying slums, the relatively small expense of public housing is one of the cheapest and wisest investments by any government. Public housing will provide a sound basis for continuing prosperity."

Atlanta is a better place because of Techwood and University homes. It will be even better when the new homes are built. The future envisions a really great Atlanta, a better place to live.

The First Step in Fighting An Epidemic Is to Keep Your Own Premises Clean

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

When our boys were fighting and dying in France, Catholic, Jew and Protestant parents forgot their differences in their common anxiety and grief.

In this blessed land, where each individual is the master of his own conscience, these three groups have lived in amnity for many generations. Now, more than ever before, they should be united in spirit, for their religions are equally threatened and will survive of fall together.

Because of the greater publicity given to Hitler's persecution of the Jews, many people have forgotten or never learned of his continuous campaign against the Protestants and Catholics.

Niemoller was not a Jew, but a Lutheran as brave as Martin Luther himself. He was tried for no other offense than his refusal to quit preaching Christ. His judges dared not convict him, but Nazi troops arrested him as he left the court and today he is in a concentration camp, or dead.

Hitler has appointed his own man head of the Protestant church. Official publications ridicule Christianity as the "dogma of equality" and "an Asiatic superstition," and call the Sermon on the Mount "the first Bolshevist manifesto." All the power of organized propaganda is arrayed against those who dare to preach the "Jew Christ."

The Catholics, because they are "international" and because of their great church wealth, are marked for destruction. The chief organ of the Nazi party says: "We are armed to continue the battle against Catholicism until the point of total annihilation."

Catholic organizations have been liquidated and Catholic money confiscated. Catholics are deprived of their jobs. Children are weaned from the church by jeering ridicule.

Why? Why does Hitler fight all religions?

It is his way of saying: "Thou shalt have no other god before me." A dictator cannot tolerate divided allegiance.

Many young people, organized, entertained and made much of, regard Hitler as divine, and shrewd propaganda encourages this belief. Naziism makes a god of the state, and Hitler is the state. He must fight every religion that teaches international brotherhood, for it weakens his hold on the people.

What then? Must American boys hate and kill German boys to save religion? God forbid. Love is not saved by hatred. If we save tolerance, brotherhood and freedom in America, Hitler cannot destroy them.

Treasury Aide Quits In Defense Row

Wayne C. Taylor Disagrees With U. S. Sale of Craft to France, Steps Out as Official.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP) Wayne C. Taylor resigned from a high treasury post today because, it was reliably reported, he felt the United States should not take sides in world rivalries between totalitarian powers and other countries.

The fact that the treasury facilitated the recent French purchases of American-made warplanes was reported to be one of the last straws which prompted Taylor to quit as assistant secretary of the treasury.

It was indicated he also objected to buying silver from China and Loyalist Spain, and to the recent Export-Import Bank loan of $25,000,000 to China.

Leaves Major Gap.

Taylor, a former Chicago broker, was in charge of most of the treasury's budgetary, borrowing and foreign affairs, and his resignation left a major gap.

Piecemeal details of the negotiations surrounding the plane purchase disclosed that the transaction was actively promoted by President Roosevelt—to the point of over-ruling objections expressed by the army.

The senate committee on military affairs heard Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Secretary of War Woodring and Rear Admiral Christian J. Peoples describe their part in the deal for a second time today. In advance of the publication of a transcript of their testimony Saturday, committee members disclosed some portions of what certain witnesses had said.

It was learned that William S. Bullitt, American ambassador to France, as well as Mr. Roosevelt, was active in urging that the transaction be consummated, and that the chief executive disregarded the advice of army officials.

On the house floor, Representative Cox, Democrat, Georgia, asserted congress must make a choice between what he termed an administration-favored policy of internationalism which may lead to war and an isolationist policy which may leave this country the only stable democracy in the world.

Relax Regulations.

He requested that army regulations be relaxed to permit representatives of the French air ministry to inspect a new type Douglas bombing plane—100 of which the government of France later ordered.

The order went through despite the statements of army officials that in their opinion filling it would delay the building up of the air corps contemplated in the administration's rearmament program, and possibly deprive this country of any planes of the type in question.

Modernizing Subs.

The senate naval affairs committee approved a bill authorizing an expenditure of $5,500,000 for the modernization of three submarines, and a measure authorizing the acquisition by the navy of a tanker now under construction of the Standard Oil Company.

Secrecy surrounding the transactions of the committee's inquiry was denounced by Republicans in the senate, but the military committee rejected a motion to make public the record of its investigation. However, it recalled several of its witnesses today under circumstances permitting committee members to tell reporters what their testimony had been.

Army Objections.

Senator Austin, Republican, Vermont, quoted Admiral Peoples, head of the treasury's procurement division, as telling the committee that army officials raised objections to letting the Frenchmen see the bomber and also to the sale itself.

Their contention was, he said, that the purchase might interfere with fast production of planes for the United States army, and that it might result in denying the army its usual priority of one year in the use of the latest types of plane.

Despite the secrecy with which it had been surrounded, a portion of the testimony given by Morgenthau two weeks ago became public. In this, he said the plane matter was first called to his attention by Ambassador Bullitt.

Some committeemen, particularly Nye, Clark, Democrat, Missouri, and Reynolds, Democrat, North Carolina, insisted on knowing under what circumstances the Treasury became involved in the deal. Morgenthau replied:

"I thought I made it plain that that instruction to me came from the President of the United States."

The procurement division of the Treasury was called upon to act, he said, because although it was not then buying planes, it was in daily contact with aircraft manufacturers, which was considered an advantage.

Captain Sidney M. Kraus, naval officer assigned to the procurement division, who accompanied the French mission on its visits to airplane plants, said in answer to similar questions that he did not know how nor why the procurement division was involved.

With regard to Bullitt's participations, the Morgenthau testimony ran:

"The ambassador first brought it (the plane transaction) to my attention. Then, following my usual custom—before I see a foreign mission of any kind I call up the State Department and say: 'Is this an authentic mission and is it all right for me to see them?' . . . I will not see any foreign mission unless the State Department says they are authentic. Mr. Welles (undersecretary of state), after a reasonable time, informed me that this was an authentic mission and on that basis I received them."

Morgenthau also said the credentials of the French mission were signed by Premier Daladier, and the French ministers of aviation and finance.

In addition to Morgenthau, Woodring and Peoples, today's witnesses were: Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war; H. E. Collins, Peoples' assistant, and Charles W. Yost, assistant chief of the arms and munitions office of the state department.

Cox Urges Calm, Deliberate Course In Conduct of Foreign Relations

Charges Defense Plans Have Become Befogged by Propaganda, Hysteria and Resentment; Questions Capabilities of Ambassadors Wilson and Kennedy.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—In an extended speech on the floor, Representative E. E. Cox, of Georgia, today urged congress to pursue a calm and deliberate course in dealing with measures affecting the troubled international situation.

Discussing the administration's foreign policy, the Georgia congressman, second-ranking majority leader of the important house rules committee, warned that our foreign relations are now graver and "fraught with more potentialities of danger to peace" than at any time since the World War.

Urges Appraisal.

American foreign relations and national defense plans have "become so befogged by propaganda, hysteria and resentment," he said, that he felt impelled to urge a careful appraisal of events.

Agreeing with the administration that, up to a certain limit, our national defense needs should be expanded, he said the one common danger threatening the peace of nations is emotionalism, and asked that the government not stress secrecy in our foreign relations.

"It seems to me," Representative Cox declared, "we are faced with the necessity for a clear choice of either an internationalistic or an isolationist policy before we can determine with certainty the necessities and requirements of our military machine. The house and senate committees on military affairs seemed to have one sort of report from military officers and another kind of report from at least two of our foreign ambassadors."

Questions Capability.

He questioned whether two of our foreign ambassadors (Wilson, who was recalled from Berlin some time back, and Kennedy, who returned to England last week) were more capable of weighing the conditions in Europe and judging how imminent war is, than our own military officials. "With their special training, their constant study of these questions, and their vast network of intelligence agents through the world."

"Indeed," he continued "there have been assertions that these ambassadors were recalled to Washington by the administration and sent before the congressional committees as high pressure salesmen rather than as experienced observers and judges of the imminence of war and its probable effects upon this nation.

"We must make a choice of our advisers. Either they will be our military and naval authorities, who ought to be able to advise us very capably, or they should be civilians who might possibly be actuated by something other than cool, dispassionate, logical analysis based upon accurate information."

"No Middle Course."

Cox said he had not considered a middle course between internationalism and isolationism because he was unable to see a middle course.

"We must either take sides or remain completely aloof," he declared, "because if we do take sides we must do so with a full and clear realization that we may be embarked upon a journey that will lead us directly into another world war; while if we take the other course, we may find ourselves standing practically alone as the last great democracy in a world gone mad with blood lust and a philosophy of force."

He addressed himself to the question of foreign relations, he said, in no spirit of criticism of anybody or of any policy. But he did emphasize the fact that the statements and declarations made by certain high officials of our government as well as by members of congress were given a significance abroad which they did not receive at home.

He warned that great confusion had arisen from the secrecy surrounding these foreign policies.

Amount of Secrecy.

"A certain amount of secrecy in the conduct of our foreign affairs by those charged with that function," he declared, "is, of course, necessary and inescapable. On the other hand, it is highly desirable, if we are to maintain that calm and deliberate state of mind which will enable us to make the wisest decisions, that there should be no more secrecy about the conduct of our foreign relations than is absolutely essential to the national welfare.

"We have already witnessed the confusion, the acrimonious debate, the controversy and the emotionalism aroused by secret conferences. Harsh words have been spoken which ought not to have been spoken. Controversies have arisen which ought not to have arisen. Suspicions have been engendered which ought not to have been engendered. If there is any subject upon which there should be the closest, freest, frankest, most sincere co-operation between the administrative and legislative departments of the government to the end of helping to maintain world peace and of keeping this country out of war, it is the subject of our foreign relations and our national defense."

MACON MAY BUILD ANNEX TO HOSPITAL

Children's Ward To Relieve Present Crowding.

MACON, Ga., Feb. 16.—(AP)—The Macon Hospital Commission today moved to build a $35,000 children's ward under a setup which is expected to increase the institution's operating revenue and relieve present congested facilities.

Immediate steps were taken to match a $20,000 federal grant with $15,000 which city and county authorities have agreed to provide.

The hospital itself will incur no debt from the project.

Only existing equipment will be used in the new ward, the commission going on record that there will be no extra expense outlay until funds for such are provided.

Dr. C. L. Ridley, hospital superintendent, told commissioners transferring children to the new quarters will provide additional space for pay, semi-pay and charity cases.

Barcelona, Spain's biggest city, has a population of nearly 2,000,000, counting in its many war refugees.

COPY OF CCC CAMPS IN BRITAIN IS URGED

Anthony Eden Strikes at 'Complacency' Among Idle in England.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Anthony Eden suggested to the house of commons today that Britain copy the United States' CCC camps to relieve unemployment.

The former foreign secretary, speaking on a labor motion to censure the government for its unemployment policy, said a "divine discontent" such as he noted on his recent American visit should replace the "complacency" among Britain's 2,000,000 idle.

Commons cheered Eden's statement, then rejected by a vote of 344 to 146 the labor motion of censure.

Despite the vote, members of all shades of political opinion advocated that the government give closer attention to the unemployment problem.

Eden called for projects like the conservation camps and housing undertakings in the United States.

He said in the United States he observed "in this drive of the younger generation a spirit showing they were determined that what was good enough for their fathers was not good enough for them."

"It seems to me exactly the kind of spirit we have got to capture in this country," added Eden.

Labor Leader Arthur Greenwood, opening debate on the motion of censure, demanded aid for "economic as well as political and racial outcasts."

Greenwood declared the plight of refugees from other countries aroused Britain's sympathy but asked "what of the 2,000,000 industrial refugees in this country."

Sheriff Prepares New Menu For Drunks—Castor Oil

ROCKFORD, Ill., Feb. 16.—(AP) Sheriff Bell posted a new menu for some of the Winnebago county jail prisoners.

Those confined on charges of drunkenness will be placed on a fare of castor oil, bread and water. The castor oil will be for punishment, said the sheriff, who declared he was tired of having the same men in jail repeatedly.

The Pulse Of the People

RETRENCHMENT NEEDED IN STATE

Editor Constitution: Cordial congratulations to you for your editorial, "To Strangle Georgia," in your issue of February 12. It was timely and to the point, especially the first paragraph.

At first glance, like yourself, I felt that the legislature had an almost insurmountable task in raising the necessary taxes to meet the plans contemplated. Studying the matter my mind turned to reducing expenses by cutting out unnecessary and useless expenditures. Turning to page 8, Report of the State Auditor, Supplement 1938, by State Auditor Zack Arnold, I found under title "State Department of Agriculture, Egg Division," that from September, 1937, to June 30 1938, the total expenses of egg inspection, "To personal service," amounted to $208,354.75, and that traveling expenses amounted to $51,200.29, hence the gross expenses for inspection of eggs for less than one year amounted to $259,555.04.

The people should be relieved of this waste of their money. Such laws should be repealed. No doubt other laws of this type can be found in the 327 pages of the aforesaid supplement to the auditor's report.

BERLIN COMMENT CALLED AUTHENTIC

Editor Constitution: I enjoy very much Ralph Jones' daily "Silhouettes," but today he was more interesting to me than usual. I spent a week in Berlin in 1937 and found it just as he says: "It has taken all things happy, laughter things out of life," etc. He writes as if he had spent some time among the people of Berlin.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

A PLAN OF WORK.

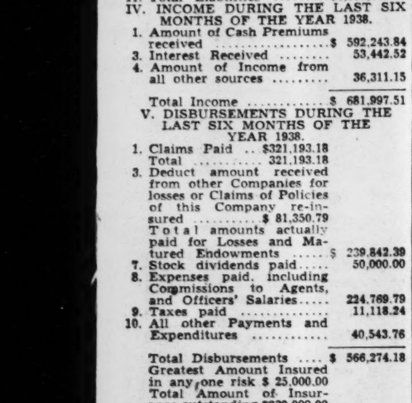

Charles L. Gideons, principal of the Booker T. Washington Evening school in Atlanta, invited me to speak to his faculty Monday evening. In the meantime, Florence Read, president of Spelman College, called me and asked me to come by her home for dinner with President Everett Carlton Herrick, of Andover Newton Theological school, of Boston, and after dinner they went over with me to the meeting at this large negro school, named for one of our truly great Americans.

While waiting in the office for the meeting, I saw on the wall a quotation from Booker T. Washington, which reads, "Plan Your Work and Work Your Plan." This simple, but profound bit of philosophy seems to me to fairly well interpret the work that is being done in this wonderful evening school. Opening the meeting, we listened to a violin solo by Drew Days, Maseeret's "Meditation," with Johnson Hubert at the piano—an amazing exhibit of the mastery of technique, and withal a sense of interpretation that was sublime. They followed this with Borowski's "Adoration." These young men had a plan—a plan to master the violin and the piano, and they worked their plan.

As I talked to those fine men and women composing the faculty of the evening school, I felt I was face to face with people who are deeply committed to a great plan—the plan and program of leading out the minds of their pupils to life's fullest and finest expression, by the will of God.

I was interested to find that they have 1,500 pupils in the evening school, ranging from the first grade through the twelfth, half of them being adults. The friend who escorted me to my car was John Bozeman, a man 52 years old, who works all day and goes to school at night. He is in the eighth grade. In this evening school they teach the regular courses of study with emphasis upon vocational courses in gardening, tailoring, sewing, cooking, home hygiene, etc. They will graduate 125 students in vocational work this year, and 65 in high school work. The day school has an enrollment of 4,000 students. C. L. Harper is the principal of the day school.

The progress of the negro race is one of the bright spots in our southern scene. We may well rejoice that our neighbor race is advancing according to the philosophy of Booker T. Washington—"Plan Your Work and Work Your Plan."

FIGHT OF CITY ON COAL BOARD LOSES IN COURT

3 Federal Judges Uphold Commission, Permitting Regulation of Minimum Price Scale Here.

The city government yesterday lost its legal battle to declare the national bituminous coal commission act unconstitutional and to prevent the board from setting up minimum coal prices. A tribunal of three federal judges in Washington approved the commission, thus denying the city's contentions.

Atlanta, through Assistant City Attorney J. C. Murphy, sought to enjoin the commission from promulgating minimum coal price orders on the ground this would interfere with the city in carrying out its essential functions and deny it due process of law.

Murphy said here that the city probably will seek to carry the case to the United States supreme court. He and City Attorney Jack Savage first will study the written ruling.

Atlanta annually buys about 30,000 tons of coal for the water department alone. Two years ago when the bituminous coal commission set up a minimum price scale for coal, it hiked the price far above the sum the city had been paying in an open market. These price scales were abolished last year.

The city seeks to restrain the commission from again raising the price of coal.

JOSEPH B. KEENAN RESIGNS HIS POST

Assistant to Attorney General Leaves to Resume Law Practice.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP)—The resignation of Joseph B. Keenan, as assistant to the attorney general, was announced by the White House tonight.

The executive offices made public an exchange of letters between Keenan and President Roosevelt, in which the assistant to Attorney General Frank Murphy said he planned to return to the private practice of law.

Keenan, a former Cleveland, Ohio, lawyer, has served on some occasions as the President's legislative representative at the Capitol, notably during the fight over the supreme court enlargement bill of 1937.

BID ON GYMNASIUM.

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 16.—The city board of education has accepted the low bid of $23,418 submitted by G. M. Caskey & Son for construction of a new gymnasium building on the high school campus. The building, to be 112 feet long and 80 feet wide, will contain two basketball courts, girls' and boys' locker rooms, offices for physical education directors, a large room for military and music classes, and a little theater.

Opens New Drug Store

DR. THOMAS C. COX.

New Outlet Situated at 3057 Peachtree Road Has Been Remodeled.

A third drug store in the growing chain of Thomas C. Cox, known to thousands of Atlantans as one of the founders of the firm of Franklin & Cox in 1917, will be opened this morning, as a further indication of business development in Atlanta.

The new store, situated at 3057 Peachtree road, formerly was Maxwell's pharmacy. It has been remodeled completely and equipped with new fixtures, soda fountain and accessories.

Associated with his father in general supervision of the store, as well as the others of the group, is Thomas C. Cox Jr., who entered the business in 1931 when Dr. Cox resumed operations in the retail field.

The first of the new stores was established at Highland and St. Charles avenues in 1931, and proved immediately successful.

It was followed in 1933 with another at 1411 Highland avenue, N. E., with equal success.

CHURCH LEAGUE TO PRESENT PLAY

'Oh, Professor' Comedy To Be Staged Tonight.

The Sunday school and church league of the interdenominational church, Lakewood Heights, will present a three-act comedy, "Oh, Professor," at 8 o'clock tonight in the church auditorium.

FARMER KILLS SELF IN HOME AT DACULA

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., Feb. 16.—Deputy Sheriff T. C. Samples reported a coroner's jury today returned a verdict of suicide after its investigation of the shotgun death of Billie Greeson, 32-year-old farmer, at his home in Dacula early this morning.

The deputy said the victim's mother, Mrs. William Greeson, reported he shot himself through the head after arising to build fires in a bedroom and the kitchen of their home. Coroner P. P. Pirkle, Sheriff J. P. Mason and Deputy Samples went to Dacula for the inquest.

Mr. Greeson is survived by two brothers, John Greeson, of Athens, and Thomas Greeson, of Dacula, and two sisters, Mrs. Belle Stone, of Detroit, and Mrs. Robert Hill, of Dacula.

DEBATE IN ATHENS.

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 16.—John Harris, of Macon, and Bill White, of Greenville, S. C., will meet debaters from the State College of Rhode Island at the University of Georgia Monday night. The debate, on the subject, "Resolved: That the democracies of the world should combine," will be held in Demosthenian hall at 8:30 o'clock.

Adventure, Romance and Music Offered on Screens of Atlanta

'Tail Spin' at Fox, 'Honolulu' at Grand, 'Three Musketeers' at Paramount and 'Young Dr. Kildare,' at Rialto; Roxy and Capitol Present Stage Shows.

Adventure, romance and two musicals—plus two vaudeville shows—are on the theater menu for the coming week. "Tail Spin," with Alice Faye, Constance Bennett and Nancy Kelly in featured roles, is opening today at the Fox. It is film chronicle of the adventures of women fliers.

"Honolulu," with Eleanor Powell doing the hula dance, is the Loew's feature and Don Ameche and the Ritz Brothers make a musical comedy out of the "Three Musketeers" at the Paramount.

"Young Doctor Kildare" has been brought back to the Rialto with Lew Ayres starring and the Rhodes is playing "Made for Each Other," with James Stewart and Carole Lombard.

At the Roxy the feature stage attraction is again the Roxyettes in, this time, "Tiller Dance." The Capitol stage offers Terese Rudolph, the dancer who originated the "Shrapnel Swing."

"TAIL SPIN" OFFERED ON SCREEN AT FOX

"Tail Spin," 20th Century-Fox's melodrama about three women who fly, opens a regular run today at the Fox theater.

With Alice Faye, Constance Bennett and Nancy Kelly in the starring roles, the film deals with women of the sky and their reasons for taking the gamble they can lose only once. Miss Faye is seen as Trixie, the girl who flies because she needs the money. Constance Bennett plays Gerry, who thinks the sky's the place to hide from love, and Nancy Kelly has been cast as Lois, who flies because it brings her closer to her husband, to whom flying means so much.

With these players in the starring roles and each contributing splendid performances, "Tail Spin" is as notable for its acting as it is for its theme.

Heading the supporting cast are Joan Davis, Charles Farrell, Jane Wyman, Kane Richmond, Wally Vernon, Joan Valerie and Edward Norris.

ROXY TO PRESENT THE "TILLER DANCE"

As feature number on their new program of dances, the girls will present their "Tiller Dance." Some years ago theater audiences of New York and London were amazed and delighted at the performance of the John Tiller Girls, a long line of lively and lovely girls who danced in simultaneous symmetry. The routine offered by the Roxyettes is said to be this type of the terpsichorean art. The Roxyettes will also be seen in two other new dances of that high standard which has so endeared them to showgoers.

On the laughter side is Wally Ward and his good-looking partner in an act which a piano, much clowning, some singing and imitations of musical instruments play important parts. Raymond Wilbert makes a number of hoops go through impossible gyrations while amusing the folks with a genuinely funny monologue. The Colstons dance gracefully at first but come to disaster in a mirthful fashion while Dave Monahan plays pranks with music and knocks plenty out of his xylophone.

On the screen, Ken Murray, of stage and radio fame, swings merrily through "Swing, Sister, Swing" while M. Segal's Roxy orchestra do their musical best in the pit. All in all a show the whole family will enjoy to the full.

"THREE MUSKETEERS" AT THE PARAMOUNT

Beginning today the Paramount theater will present Twentieth Century-Fox's musical comedy version of Alexandre Dumas' "The Three Musketeers," starring Don Ameche as a singing, fighting, loving D'Artagnan, and the Ritz Brothers as phoney musketeers more at home with a carving knife than a sword.

Since it was first published in 1844, the story of the Musketeers has been a perennial favorite. In addition to being published as a novel, the story has been serialized in newspapers, dramatized on the stage and filmed for the screen. Twentieth Century-Fox, however, has added songs and comedy for the first time.

Swordplay alternates with horseplay, royal romance and secret intrigue vie for interest with the antics of balmy buffoons, and through it all rousing songs by Samuel Pokrass and Walter Bullock ring out.

The Paramount theater will play the latest issue of the March of Time in conjunction with their regular feature picture, "The Three Musketeers."

The March of Time is featuring as its topics this month, "Young America" and "Mexico's New Crisis." Both of these topics should be of vital interest to the theater-going public.

"YOUNG DR. KILDARE" TO OPEN AT RIALTO

Max Brand's great story of the early career of a young doctor, titled "Young Dr. Kildare," comes to the Rialto theater today for a week's engagement, with Lew Ayres in the title role and Lionel Barrymore co-starred as the elderly doctor whose understanding and sympathy save the young interne when his career seems about to go to smash.

The feminine lead is Lynne Carver, who kets the first big role of her screen career in this M-G-M production. Others in the cast include Nat Pendleton, Jo Ann Sayers, Samuel S. Hinds, Emma Dunn, Walter Kingsford, Truman Bradley, etc. The director was Harold S. Bucquet, winner of the Academy award of last year.

It is a romantic, dramatic recital of the problems, the disappointments and the triumphs that come to a young doctor, working as interne in a big city hospital. Young Dr. Kildare thinks that there is his best opportunity to serve mankind, although by doing so he gives up a rural practice waiting for him at home—as successor to his father—and the girl with whom he is in love.

A girl dancer who survived the bombing of Shanghai, a horse who appeared in several pictures, hoop rollers, jugglers, hand balancers and musicians make up the great aggregation of vaudeville personalities (that is if a horse is rated as a personality) which will be offered on the Capitol stage starting Sunday.

The girl, Miss Terese Rudolph, considered one of the three finest dancers in America, will be offered in tap and toe routines. She was playing an engagement at the Cathay hotel in Shanghai when Japanese planes dropped their bombs. While returning to the states, she was on the S. S. President Hoover, when it was bombed at sea. Her experiences were front page news for many weeks.

The horse is Goldie, to be presented by his trainer and performer, Buck Owens, stated to be the original Lone Ranger. Goldie has acted with Shirley Temple, Jane Withers and was last seen as Lady Q, the race horse with Mickey Rooney in "Stablemates."

Other vaudeville acts include The Three Kings, hand balancers; The Karl Larkin Trio, hoop rollers and jugglers; Herb Schriner, harmonica wizard who originally appeared with the Boro Mineovitch Rascals.

On the screen starting Sunday the Capitol offers "Girls on Probation." Jane Bryan, Ronald Regan, Sheila Bromley are in the cast.

"HONOLULU" OPENS AT LOEW'S GRAND

"Honolulu" opens at Loew's today, chocked full with music, dancing, Hawaiian atmosphere, and a full-bodied romantic comedy plot for Eleanor Powell, Robert Young, Gracie Allen and George Burns.

Robert Young is the spearhead of the story in the dual role of a romantic screen idol and his double. Autograph stars just won't let him alone, so the movie star decides to go to the double's home in Honolulu while the latter contends with autograph-hunters in New York. On the boat to Honolulu, Young meets a young dancer, Eleanor Powell, and her traveling companion, Gracie Allen. On the island the movie star, in order to hide his own identity, has to go through all the complications of the double's life. He is arrested for theft, almost has to marry the double's girl despite his love for Miss Powell, and eventually has to clear things up by sending for the double, whose arrival in Honolulu brings matters to a head.

RHODES HOLDS OVER LOMBARD FILM

The tense and thrilling story of Jane and John Mason, an average, modern-day couple, deeply in love but hounded by opposing economic conditions, is unfolded in the new film drama, "Made For Each Other," which continues today to the Rhodes theater.

Co-starred for the first time, and as a romantic team, Carole Lombard and James Stewart play principal roles, while prominently featured in an unusual supporting cast are the screen notables Charles Coburn, Lucile Watson, Ruth Weston and Donald Briggs.

GUNMAN LINKED TO HOTEL HOLDUP

Police Frankly Baffled by Miami Beach Crime; Loot Set at $125,000.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 16. (AP)—Police, hoping for even a remote clue to the identity of five bandits who robbed the Blackstone hotel safety deposit boxes of $125,000 in jewels and cash, telegraphed Chicago authorities today for information on a notorious gunman they declined to name.

The man was reported seen at the Hialeah Park race track, frequented by Mrs. Antonina Marco, of New York, a hotel guest who reported the loss of $75,000 in jewels and money. Police said the request for the man's photograph, fingerprints and record was a routine check-up on known criminals who might have been here at the time of the raid.

Detective Chief Earl D. Carpenter said no arrest was imminent.

Insurance appraisers, through police, announced that claims amounting to $56,756 had been recognized from guests other than Mrs. Marco. They said they believed her loss would not run as high as the $75,000 she estimated and that eight persons' claims remained to be investigated.

Trains Crash Head-On; 2 Die, 8 Hurt

'Sunnyland' En Route to Atlanta Smashes Into Freight; Dean Noe Escapes Serious Injury.

QUINCY, Miss., Feb. 16.—(AP)—A head-on crash today between a fast-moving Frisco passenger train and a stopped freight train left two men dead and eight others injured, two of them critically. Both engines were smashed.

W. O. Willis, editor of the Amory (Miss.) News, said the collision occurred at 4 a. m. when the Sunnyland, the passenger train en route from Kansas City to Atlanta, an hour and a half late, plowed into the freight train which had stopped on a curve one mile west of here.

Dead were George W. Bowers, about 60, Birmingham, engineer of the Sunnyland, and that train's porter, Laddie Ivy.

In critical condition at the Gilmore sanitarium, Amory, where the injured were taken, were Mac Jones, Birmingham, Sunnyland conductor, brain concussion, and R. L. Dunn, Cordova, Ala., scalded so badly he was not expected to live.

Other injured: W. H. Frost, Memphis, Sunnyland mail clerk, bruises; J. W. Howell, Whitehaven, Tenn., head contusions and injured ribs; Bert Davis, Holly Springs, Miss., Sunnyland fireman, dislocated shoulder; Zuma T. Howell, Memphis, Sunnyland express messenger, injured ribs; Elmo Boutwell, Memphis, Sunnyland passenger, body injuries, and George T. Williams, Dora, Ala., who Willis said was riding the freight, right ear torn off.

Willis said H. C. Wilson, Birmingham, freight engineer, and his crew escaped serious hurts by leaping.

Willis said the engine and baggage car of the Sunnyland were telescoped on the engine and first two cars of the freight. The body of the engineer, wedged in the crushed cab, was not extricated until seven hours after the crash.

An eyewitness account of the wreck was given early this morning by L. L. Hoover, 443 Manor Ridge avenue, who arrived at 12:30 o'clock at the Terminal station.

"I felt a bump that threw me to the top of the berth," he said. "I've got a stiff neck but that's all. As I left the car I heard a man moaning he'd been hit, but I came upon the dying porter and assisted him."

Dean Noe, scheduled to make an address at 6:30 o'clock tonight at the Church of the Incarnation here, canceled the engagement and went to Memphis from Birmingham. He dined with Hoover on the train.

BOARD UNIFICATION IN CITY APPROVED

White's Measures, Which Follow Reed Report, Head for Opposition.

Proposals for one health board for all charitable hospitals in Atlanta and Fulton county, one park and recreation board and one planning and zoning board, instead of duplicating bodies, were approved by city council's ordinance committee yesterday but they appeared to be headed for opposition in council meeting Monday.

Introduced by Councilman John White, they followed recommendations of the Reed report.

Chairman E. A. Minor said the papers probably would be referred to the ordinance committee for further consideration. Councilman J. Allen Couch, who opposed all three, was not present.

Couch and Raymond Torras, engineer for the city planning commission, explained the Reed recommendations on planning and zoning allow the city only one member on the metropolitan commission.

White deplored the present system "of allowing one board to plan within the city limits while another board builds around us."

All three measures would require action of the general assembly.

Loses Glass Eye Hunting, 'Finds' It 18 Years Later

BLUE RAPIDS, Kas., Feb. 16.—(AP)—George Barker lost his glass eye while hunting raccoons 18 years ago.

The other day Louie Cherney was seining in a creek near here. His net brought up a glass eye. Barker claimed it.

Thermometers Plummet Over Eastern Section

By The Associated Press.

Sharply dropping temperatures, in some places as much as 50 degrees in 18 hours, brought an abrupt end to unseasonal springtime in the east yesterday and bitter cold displaced floods as a threat of life.

A woman perished from cold and exposure in Rhode Island, sending the nation's death toll for two days to at least 16. High winds and high waters were blamed for the other deaths Wednesday as the weather mixed a concoction of oddities to disturb residents of the east, south and midwest.

High winds still prevailed on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, endangering small shipping. Several boats were in trouble off New England. Five persons were aboard two craft unsighted after putting out from Santa Monica, Cal., Wednesday.

Sub-zero continued in midwestern states, with a large part of Lake Michigan locked in ice. A Coast Guard cutter which went to aid an ice-bound fishing boat carrying four men was trapped itself but neither craft was considered in danger.

The change in New York was typical of the northeast. From the record high of 62 degress for February 15, the temperature plummeted to 15 yesterday morning. It rose six degrees during the day but another drop to 10 during the night was forecast.

Thief Hits the Jackpot! Gets 2,000 Phone Nickels

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—(AP)—The gunman who held up Frances Matthes, telephone coin box collector, arrived in a hurry, but his departure was slow because of the loot—$100 worth of nickels.

UNION OF NATIONS URGED BY ARANHA

'Great, Strong and Powerful Commonwealth,' Is Plea of Brazilian.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, minister of foreign relations for Brazil, asserted today that the unpreparedness of the American nations "can not fail to whet the appetites which are now rampant throughout the world." He urged the formation in this hemisphere of "a great, a strong, a powerful commonwealth of nations."

"We must realize that we are in a world of forces which are trying to subjugate each other, and that America offers the only expanse of fertile land still unexploited and having an abundance of natural resources surpassing the power of our imagination to conceive," he said in an address at the National Press Club.

The ideologies of totalitarian governments in Europe and Asia, the result of an economic struggle precipitated by overpopulation, threaten to encroach here, Aranha declared. These theories, he said, are "contrary to the basic ideas that were brought to this continent and germinated here," and "we in America should organize ourselves against the invasion."

Schoolboy Shoots Self, Without Aid of Gun

BILLION FOR TENANTS PROPOSED IN BILL

Bankhead Would Issue Securities To Finance Huge New Program.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, proposed today that congress expand the farm tenancy progra mby authorizing issuance of $1,000,000,000 worth of government-backed securities during the next five years.

The Alabama senator, author of the present farm tenancy act, which has been limited to $25,000,000 this year, introduced amendments to accomplish the expansion.

"This would not be a direct or regular expenditure by the government," he said. "Every dollar would be secured by farm lands which now are at a low value. In my opinion, this involves no risk.

"We supplied $2,000,000,000 worth of credit for city homeowners under the home owners' loan program when values were high."

Under the present program, a corporation directed by the farm security administration acquires farm lands and then turns them over to selected tenants who wish to become farm owners. The tenants are given long periods to pay, at low interest rates.

Senator Bankhead said that "only a few thousand of more than 2,000,000 farm tenants have been cared for by the present plan."

Proverbs Parade In Papier Mache Of God of Mirth

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Momus, mythical god of mirth, chose "familiar proverbs and old sayings" as the theme of his parade tonight usherin gin the final days of the carnival season.

Approximately 100,000 residents and visitors jammed the principal streets of the business section to see illustrated in papier mache and tinsel such proverbs as "don't count your chickens before they hatch," "absence makes the heart gro wfonder," "treacherous as a snake in the grass," and "every cloud has a silver lining."

An hour or two before the parade was scheduled to start, thousands took up positions of vantage along the route.

Following the parade, Momus and his cohorts adjourn to the municipal auditorium for the annual ball. Several minor balls were held elsewhere in the city.

Following Momus along the same route tomorrow night, comes Hermes, messenger o fthe gods, in a parade which, it has been rumored, would inaugurate something new in the way of lighting effects.

Need for New Equipment Stressed In Budget Request for Universities

Buildings Under Construction Require Furnishing, Sanford Points Out, Citing Great Worth of System in Development of State.

Calling attention to the need of funds for equipping new buildings, Chancellor S. V. Sanford, in submitting to Governor Rivers the 1938 report of the regents of the University System of Georgia, pointed out "the university system covers the state and not just one campus."

"Let no person for a moment think that adequate facilities exist on a single campus," he said. "It would be a serious step if anything were done that would prevent or deter youth from taking advantage of the opportunities offered. We must go forward, not backward, nor stand still.

"It would be an irreparable misfortune if we sacrificed both democracy and our boys and girls in the name of economy, particularly since every economy possible has been made. Today the only way we have of making progress is through education. It is the only sure guarantee of civilization. If we fail there, we fail everywhere."

Chancellor Sanford's 118-page report included recommendations for the following appropriations from the general assembly: Maintenance, $2,375,000; building program, $500,000; graduate school, $150,000; new equipment, apparatus, machinery, $100,000; school of medicine, $75,000, and repairs, $50,000.

Continuing, Chancellor Sanford stated in the report: "The ever-increasing attendance indicates that the people are pleased with the progress of the university system and have confidence and faith in it."

The present campus enrollment is 12,777 students, and last year the system gave campus instruction to 20,754 students.

MRS. M'GAHEE DIES; TECH HOUSE MOTHER

Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity Chaperon Succumbs After Brief Illness.

Mrs. Mary Eunice McGahee, long well known in church and civic affairs here and the "house mother" of Georgia Tech's Pi Kappa Phi fraternity, died last night at a private hospital after a brief illness.

A native of Macon, Mrs. McGahee was the daughter of Dr. W. C. Lovett, of Atlanta, retired Methodist minister, and had made her home here since 1900. She lived at 143 Fifth street, N. W. She was a member of St. Mark Methodist church and of Mrs. Alonzo Richardson's Bible class.

Other survivors are a daughter, Mrs. W. M. Davis, of Lakeland, Fla.; two sisters, Mrs. Van Fletcher, of Jackson, Ga., and Miss Elizabeth Lovett, of Atlanta, and a brother, R. W. Lovett, of Cleveland, Miss.

Funeral arrangements are to be announced by Brandon-Bond-Condon.

CAMP URGES CLOSE TIE AMONG NATIONS

Foreign Students Hear Attorney at Baptist Dinner.

A closer fellowship among nations of the world was urged last night by Lawrence S. Camp, United States district attorney, at a dinner at the First Baptist church sponsored by the Atlanta Baptist Student Union.

Foreign students attending Atlanta colleges were honor guests at the meeting which was attended by more than 150 persons. Miss Cary Wheeler, president of the union, presided.

Mr. Camp asserted that the welfare of communities as well as nations is gauged by the welfare of individual citizens and said that all a government can do is to provide "equal opportunities for all."

SMALL WATER PLANT BURNS IN JONESBORO

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

JONESBORO, Ga., Feb. 16.—Jonesboro lost one of its water plants yesterday by fire caused either by lightning or a short circuit.

The plant burned was in the rear of the courthouse. It was a small building of iron construction with wood framing. The plant had not been in use for several weeks because of a break in the pump. The machinery, dynamos and pumps were badly damaged by the heat, and the damage will be about $1,500.

The water supply of the city was not interrupted as the new pumping station is adequate to supply all needs.

Another fire yesterday destroyed a home next door to that of Van McKibben on the highway about three miles north of Jonesboro. The fire started during an electrical storm and it is believed it was started by lightning.

STOCK YARD REPORTS $1,000,000 IN '38 SALES

SWAINSBORO, Ga., Feb. 16.—(AP)—Livestock auction sales here, estimated at $1,000,000 last year, are indicating an increase this year. Sales at the Swainsboro stockyard totaled $100,300 in January, almost double the value handled in January, 1938.

Another Swainsboro stockyard also reported lively sales.

More U. S. Deer Than in the Days Of First Settlers

DETROIT, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Ira N. Gabrielson, chief of the United States Biological Survey, said here today that there are more deer in the United States at present than there were when the white man first arrived on the continent.

Organized efforts for conservation of wildlife are responsible, he said.

In addition, he said, the wood duck and the egret, once threatened with extinction, have been saved through protective legislation.

"The advances made in the last five years have given us much hope for the future of wildlife," he said.

CHURCH DECLARED BARRIER TO NAZIS

Former Berlin Pastor Pictures Christian Army as Only Bulwark.

"The Christian church is the only bulwark against Hitler's barbarism in Germany," the Rev. Ewart Edmund Turner, who served as pastor of the American church in Berlin from 1930 to 1934, declared here last night. Speaking in Glenn Memorial auditorium under auspices of the Emory University Student Lecture Association, the Rev. Mr. Turner continued:

"Despite continued persecution of its leaders the church is building a new Christian man, woman, youth and faith.

"The Christian army will be marching on when the name Hitler will not have been forgotten, but when it will have joined the names of Napoleon and Metternich."

The Rev. Mr. Turner concluded by saying that Chamberlain is more a personal hero in Germany than Mussolini, and more of a personal hero in Italy than Hitler because the two nations "fear and distrust each other to such a degree they prefer to trust England."

CROSSING ELIMINATION IS SOUGHT BY GRIFFIN

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

GRIFFIN, Ga., Feb. 16.—The city government and the Griffin Chamber of Commerce have launched a joint campaign to eliminate one or more "dangerous" railway crossings here.

The Central of Georgia has been petitioned to consider eliminating the road crossing on North Hill street, the East Solomon street crossing on the East Griffin highway; the Thirteenth street crossing at the Griffin Mills, and crossings at Experiment.

LIONS CLUB ORGANIZED BY 35 IN FITZGERALD

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

FITZGERALD, Ga., Feb. 16.—The Fitzgerald Lions Club was organized yesterday with 35 charter members.

W. A. Adams was elected president, Judge D. E. Griffin, Dr. C. A. Holzendorf and O. W. Fletcher, vice presidents; David Jay, secretary; W. A. Boggus, treasurer; I. P. Wimpee, Lion tamer, and Emmett Haskins, tail twister.

The board of directors is composed of Isidor Gelders, chairman; A. A. Boggus, O. W. Fletcher, J. A. Jones, M. D. Robitzsch, Dr. A. L. Stewart, S. M. Smith, B. W. Twitty, Frank James and George Gray.

HOSPITAL TRUSTEES SUED FOR $210,000

Mrs. Idella Holloway Nisbet Names Jesse Parker Williams Board.

By The Associated Press.

Suit for recovery of $210,000 from trustees of the Jesse Parker Williams Hospital Corporation under the will of the late Mrs. Cora B. Williams, whose estate is estimated as high as $3,000,000, was filed yesterday in Fulton superior court.

The action was filed by Mrs. Idella Holloway Nisbet, whose husband, J. L. Nisbet, of Tallahassee, Fla., was for many years an employe of Mrs. Williams' husband, and later became her fiscal agent.

Mrs. Williams' will also named Nisbet sole executor of her estate, consisting of vast land holdings in Georgia and Florida and practically all the stock in the Georgia, Florida & Alabama railroad.

Because of his faithful service, the suit states, Mrs. Williams, in 1923, executed a written contract, acknowledging an indebtedness of $210,000 to Nisbet for services rendered and signed it as president of the railroad and president of the J. P. Williams Land Company, the Lanark, Fla., Land Company and the Lanark Improvement Company.

Yearly payments of $10,000 each were to begin upon the sale of 50 per cent of the railroad stock. The suit alleges all the stock has been sold, but no payment of principal or interest has ever been made.

Mrs. Williams died March 22, 1924, and in December, 1927, the suit alleges, Nisbet assigned the contract to his wife, who now claims the full amount plus interest is due.

After setting up trust funds for two relatives, Mrs. Williams' will created another trust for the remainder, estimated at $2,500,000, for the memorial hospital, to be administered by a board composed of W. E. Mitchell, vice chairman and acting chairman; C. F. Palmer, Clark Howell and Eugene Harrington, of Atlanta. Mr. Nisbet was a member and chairman of the board of trustees at the time of his death.

The suit states that the estate has been liquidated, the executor has been discharged and all remainder turned over to the trustees for administration, the final executor's return being made to the Fulton ordinary in 1932.

In the final administration, however, the $210,000 claim was not present, nor passed upon, therefore was not affected by various court orders, the suit contends.

MRS. C. B. MINOR DIES AT AGE OF 54

Funeral Services To Be Conducted Today.

Mrs. C. B. Minor, 54, of 496 Park avenue, S. E., died yesterday morning in a private hospital after an illness of four weeks.

A native of Norcross, Ga., Mrs. Minor had made her home here for more than 30 years. She was an active member of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

Surviving are her husband; three daughters, Mrs. J. A. Davis, Mrs. H. M. Morris and Mrs. L. H. Whitlock; her mother, Mrs. G. W. Timms; a sister, Mrs. J. W. Hambrick, and three brothers, H. S., G. W. and L. W. Timms.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Park Avenue Baptist church by the Rev. L. E. Smith and the Rev. Jesse D. Booth. Burial will be in Hollywood cemetery under direction of Henry M. Blanchard.

Poker Nosing Out Bridge In Popularity of Women

CINCINNATI, Feb. 16.—(UP)—Contract bridge is losing ground as the nation's most popular game because the women think poker is more fun, a survey showed today.

The survey, conducted by the United States Playing Card Company and the Association of American Playing Card Manufacturers, showed that bridge still ranks first with the women, but stud and draw poker are gaining favor.

Beware The Cough From a common cold That Hangs On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Creomulsion not only contains the soothing elements found in many cough remedies, such as Syrup of White Pine Compound with Tar, and fluid extract of Licorice Root, but it also has fluid extract of Ipecac for its powerful phlegm loosening effect, fluid extract of Cascara for its mild laxative effect, and most important of all, Beechwood Creosote nicely blended with all of these so that it will reach the source of the trouble from the inside.

Thousands of people, who really know their drugs, use Creomulsion in their own families, realizing that this excellent preparation aids nature to soothe the inflamed mucous membranes, to heal the irritated tissues, and to loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm. Druggists also know the effectiveness of Beechwood Creosote and they rank Creomulsion "tops" for coughs because in it you get a good dose of Creosote emulsified so that it is palatable, and may be taken frequently by both adults and children with remarkable results.

Creomulsion is generally found satisfactory in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritation, especially those stubborn ones due to common colds that hang on for dreadful days and nights thereafter. Don't worry through another sleepless night—use Creomulsion. Even if other remedies have failed, your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not satisfied with the relief obtained.

Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product, and the relief you want. (Adv.)

Carnival Spirit Will Prevail At Seminary Tomorrow Evening

By Sally Forth.

AN ATMOSPHERE of anticipation fills the halls of Washington Seminary this week as plans are being completed for the annual junior carnival scheduled for tomorrow evening. Ranking first in arrangements for the affair is the voting for a queen to reign over the carnival, the identity of the winner to be revealed just before the coronation ceremony that will open the affair. Her majesty's throne will be surrounded by a huge red heart appropriate of the valentine season and a canopy will be formed overhead by varicolored balloons.

The "candidates" for the role of queen are Claire Johnson, Ione Mercer, Catherine Tift and Connie Beeland, and each girl has her own manager, whose job is to boost her favorite through proper publicity and stump speeches. Votes are cast at one penny each and the polls will remain open until a few minutes before the crowning ceremony.

After the queen ascends the throne her carnival court will plunge into a variety of entertainment for her royal highness, including such modern events as a fashion show of 1939 spring frocks to be modeled by upper classes. The variety dance numbers will be directed by Nancy Keeler as a special compliment to her young sister, Barbara, a member of the Seminary's junior class.

The latter half of the time allowed for the carnival will be devoted to unusual entertainment, such as "games of chance" sponsored by the Dramatic Club in competition with the "A" Club, whose members will present "games of skill," and will participate in a turtle race to be run in the school gymnasium. The Careers' Club will present a well-known palmist for the entertainment of the guests, and the boarding students will sponsor a floor show.

An old-fashioned taffy pull, and homemade pralines will be sold by the Travel and Art Club. A popcorn stand, candied apples, an organ grinder, etc., will add to the gaiety of the carnival.

DATE books and textbooks compete for favor in the activities of Bungie Fuller, popular student at Finch School in New York. News has just arrived that Bungie's name appeared on the dean's list this quarter. This honor, as you know, signifies an unusually high scholastic rating in all subjects, and is conferred upon only a few members of the student body. This is Bungie's first year at the fashionable eastern school, but it is evident that she is "making a grand start."

In spite of her fine scholastic record, the popular freshman finds time to enjoy numerous social frivolities. She spent the past week end attending the gala winter carnival at Dartmouth College in Hanover, N. H., where skiing and ice skating were features of the entertainment.

GLIMPSED at the cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Paine for their son and daughter, Captain and Mrs. William Saffarrans: General George Van Horn Moseley and General and Mrs. Stanley B. Embick among high-ranking army officials welcoming the honor guests from Hawaii. . . . Douglass Paine Saffarrans looking as slim and chic as she did during her debutante days here. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smith Jr. receiving congratulations upon the arrival of their baby daughter, Laura. . . . Mrs. Preston Bigelow, of Boston, the former Nina Hopkins, and Countess Bernard de Seyies, the former Alice Stearns, reminiscing over school days here with Mrs. Charlie Cox, Harry Stearns, Frances Ellis Couper and Mrs. Harold Ebersole. . . . Frances Weinman Latimer's beauty emphasized by a small black hat trimmed in Spanish mantilla style by black lace veil. . . . Mrs. Dan Conklin wearing modified Dutch shoes. . . . Ellis Gay, now of Middletown, Ohio, being welcomed by his many Atlanta friends. . . . Mrs. Ewell Gay, a new member of the Cherokee Garden Club, discussing her planting plans with Mrs. Paine.

Sorority Initiation.

The Alpha chapter of the Kappa Alpha Delta sorority will hold an informal initiation at 2 o'clock Saturday at the country home of Miss Jane Coffer.

Formal initiation will be held at 3 o'clock Sunday at the home of Miss Betty Moore, 803 Cumberland road.

Crepe Myrtle Club.

The Crepe Myrtle Garden Club met to observe the fifth anniversary at the residence of the president, Mrs. L. E. Walthal, Delmar avenue, recently.

After the reading of the history of the club, contests were enjoyed.

Mrs. U. C. Digby won the prize for the most attractive pot plant.

There's a Common Ground for Parents Who Wish to Understand

Avoid an Ugly Chinline By Exercising Muscles

By Ida Jean Kain.

Let's take a critical view of that fragile line from the tip of the chin to the dimple in the throat . . . that's beauty's Achilles heel for both the fat and the thin girls. One gets a double chin and the other is apt to have a stringy neck.

Why does this happen? Because the muscles which form seven-eighths of the throat column do not get the required toning and the muscle tissue sags, dragging the skin down with it.

Dieting does not do a thing for your throat. Unless you thin girls gained a great deal of weight, you wouldn't be likely to round out the throat contours—and even then you would run a risk of getting a double chin. But when the overweights begin reducing, almost the first place to show the loss is the throat, which takes on a crepey appearance.

The way to avoid all this is through exercise. You must build up the muscle tissue so that the throat column is firm and rounded, and the line will be clearly defined and lovely. You can keep it so with a little daily exercise and lovely head posture.

The most positive proof that the throatline can be kept young indefinitely was given by a middle-aged acrobat. It was part of her thrilling appearance to be sus ended at the top of the big tent, an iron bit grasped in her teeth. Her life depended for a few minutes every day on the muscles of the jaw and neck—and her throatline was breath-takingly beautiful and as young as any girl's in her twenties.

You're no acrobat, of course, but you can take chin exercises. Every night and morning when you brush your teeth, do an exercise or two. Just tense the muscles and turn the head slowly around over one shoulder, tile the head backward, and slowly move the head around to the other shoulder. Any woman has time to do that much chin exercise—and it will make a difference. Finish by dashing cold water over the chin to further stimulate the circulation and tone the skin.

All general exercise will count toward improvement of the throatline if you remember to keep the head up. Here is a good one, primarily for the waist, but with an extra thought for the throat: Stand in good posture with the arms stretched high overhead. Keep one arm where it is, but slowly work the other higher, stretching up clear from the hips. As you continue pushing up with this hand, turn the head to that side and look up at your fingers. Keep climbing—"higher!" Repeat 12 times, very slowly, alternating sides.

Stand with feet fairly wide apart and swing the arms across in front of the body and at the same time tilt the head back and look at the ceiling. Fling the arms out at the sides, shoulder level or higher, and lower the chin to a right angle with the throat. Repeat the exercise six times, later ten.

If you have not already attended to it, send for the "Twenty-Day Diet" for reducing. Write to Ida Jean Kain, care The Atlanta Constitution, enclosing a stamped return envelope.

More About This Wheat Germ Business

By Dr. William Brady.

One reader sends an inquiry about "Dr. Brady's wheat germ" which, it seems, is offered to people to whom I have recommended wheat germ. I know nothing about it.

Another sends a clipping in which a firm offers wheat germ "as advised by Dr. Brady." I know nothing about that, either. No one has my consent to use my name to persuade people to buy anything. Of course I'm not the only Dr. Brady in the country, and a pirate may readily claim he did not intend that people think I approved his goods. When you see my name so used you may be sure it is not Ol' Doc Brady who runs the health column in this newspaper.

A dentor—gullible fellows, the dentors—writes a letter to tell me about a fancy wheat germ which costs, believe it or not, one berry per pound tin, or maybe the container is pure aluminum or Sterling silver. Anyway the dentor has been persuaded to believe the dollar wheat germ—a dollar a pound, not a dollar a bushel—is a superior article and probably contains more vitamin B complex than common wheat germ purchased from a grist mill at from three to six cents a pound.

Cartons of wheat germ retailing for 40 cents for 2 1-2 pounds have been on sale in large drug stores in the far west for some years.

An eastern milling company sells a fine wheat germ meal for 20 cents a pound, the customer paying the parcel post or other delivery charge.

Wheat germ is probably the best natural source of vitamin B complex for anybody or everybody.

Although I was not brought up in a sawmill, I like to chew some plain wheat whenever I can get some to chew, and I am equally fond of raw wheat germ. It is fine food, raw or cooked, for any one. Why people hesitate to eat it freely is one of the odd things about American life. Notions, not knowledge, govern the eating habits of the public.

Three or four ounces of wheat germ daily assures a pretty adequate ration of vitamin B complex, even if none is obtained in other foods.

Eat wheat germ as you would eat any cereal. Or mix it, raw or cooked, with any cereal or other food. Or incorporate it in any recipe calling for flour, in place of one-half of the flour the recipe calls for. Ordinary cooking or making destroys only a small portion of the vitamin B in wheat germ, wheat bran, or plain wheat.

There isn't room here to attempt to list all the complaints that vitamin B complex prevents, alleviates or cures. All we say today is that wheat germ is good wholesome food for anybody.

Knowing What To Do Lends Charm

A happy meeting when Dick greets you at the station! Knowing the etiquette of out-of-town dates, you're poised, sure of yourself.

Such a lot of questions when you're asked to be a boy's guest for a college week-end, or when you're visiting your beau's home town. What part of your expenses do you pay? Where to stay? What's proper?

Your beau pays for such things as taxis, dinners, dances, games—but railway fare, hotel bills are your responsibility.

When you stay at your beau's fraternity house, you're in the care of the college chaperons. If you are staying at a hotel, your beau may take you there. On dates, he calls for you in the lobby—you say good night there too.

Shall you accept if your beau asks you to stay at his own home? Yes—when his mother also invites you.

Always you're a wante guest when you know your etiquette. A party at the country club? Your escort lets you out at the door before he parks his car. Dining at a restaurant? Let him do the ordering. At the movies? Stand aside while he buys the tickets.

Easy to win admiration with pointers from our 40-page booklet, 'Etiquette for the Teens." Tells what's correct for dates, dinners, visits, motoring, movies—for girls and men.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, ETIQUETTE FOR THE TEENS,' to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

The hibiscus shade of make-up takes its name from the beautiful flower by that name, so prevalent in Florida—the shade which seems to blend with all nature.

New Hibiscus Red Is Make-Up Shade That Blends Well With Many Colors

By Lillian Mae.

This is a season for many shades of make-up, to go with the many wardrobe colors. But perhaps you feel that you can't afford to have more than one complete set of make-up at a time or for general convenience would like to have one all-round blending one.

After all, the makers of beauty preparations foresee all our needs and at times, seem to even read our thoughts. Nice, isn't it?

One very fine firm offers a new hibiscus shade of beauty preparations—a shade which takes its name from that very beautiful Florida flower which seems to blend with all of nature's shades—light, dark and every sunshine shade. If it blends with nature's shades, then it just has to fit in with the colors costumers and designers are planning for feminine beautification.

The rouge and lipstick blend with purple and accent rust. They bring out beautifully, the best that's in black, navy and brown.

The eye shadow makes eyes softly alluring in a natural sort of way. And a nail enamel in a particularly lovely shade, puts the finishing touch to this all-round shade of makeup.

Phone me if you would like to know the name of this very fine line I'm recommending—and I'll tell you also where in Atlanta you may purchase the items. If you do not live in the city, write me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Do You Cover An Honor With Honor?

By Harold Sharpsteen.

Because so many players mechanically "cover an honor with an honor," it is often well for declarer to give them a chance, particularly when the play of the adverse honor proves advantageous to declarer.

The following part-deal is a fair illustration and may serve to aid beginners and average players the next time a similar situation presents itself in actual play.

(Declarer)

The bid is four hearts. Defenders have already cashed two spade tricks, West returning a small diamond, won by South's ace. South can afford to lose but one more trick. Adverse bidding has told South nothing.

TACKLES TRUMPS.

Sizing up the trump situation, South notes the heart queen-eight-four-two are outstanding, offering two ways to finesse, either of which may be wrong. He should play for a drop. Yet South, holding a singleton diamond originally may be at least suspicious hearts will break 3-1.

Should West, however, be the type player who covers an honor with an honor, there is a fair chance of smothering the outstanding queen with dummy's heart king, if West holds the queen.

South offers West the opportunity by leading the heart jack from his own hand, up to dummy's king.

But West plays the deuce. What should South now play from the dummy? South should go ahead with his plan now to drop the queen, trusting the suit will break 2-2. South plays dummy's king. Now assume East plays the heart 4.

Returning a low heart from dummy, South will now learn more about the trump situation when East plays.

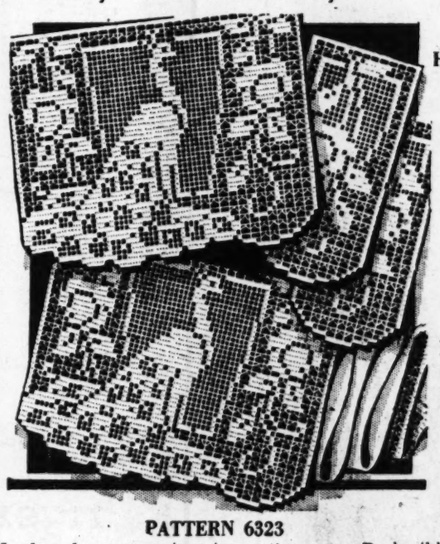

"Cover an honor with an honor, when you believe it will promote a lower card for your hand or partner, by forcing adverse two high cards to fall with your honor on the same trick."

'Til tomorrow . . .

Woman's Quiz

Q. Of what use is Vitamin B to the body?

A. It is necessary for good appetite and also for normal muscle tone in the digestive tract; an absolute lack of this vitamin brings on a muscular paralysis or the disease known as beriberi.

Q. How are nut meats blanched?

A. Cover the nut meats with boiling water and let them stand five minutes in a covered dish. Drain and then quickly rub off the skin covering with the fingers.

Q. Since some lipstick stains are set by soap, how may they be removed before laundering?

A. Sponge the stains with carbon tetrachloride.

Boys Welcomed By Parents Of Girls

By Caroline Chatfield

Not many years ago in a medium-sized town six or eight neighborhood friends happened to have six or eight little girls very nearly the same age who entered first grade together and were a clubby little crowd from the beginning of their careers. By the time they were 12 years old the boys were toting their books home from school, ringing their telephones in the afternoon, and on Friday nights coming, as one father put it, strung together like Alpine climbers to ring the doorbells.

Fathers and mothers welcomed the boys as naturally as they would have welcomed the girl visitors, made friends with them, joined in the games, promoted their good times and stood waist deep in their fun and frolic. Every week end there was some sort of informal get-together at one home or another, always one of the oldsters present to see that the house wasn't wrecked or the garden torn up with the excited prancing of the young colts.

Boys and girls went to dancing school together, learned to swim, skate, ride, play indoor and outdoor games as a group. There wasn't a question of twosing in the corner, parking in the car, formal dates and club dances. They were normal children playing guessing games and charades in the living room, gamboling on the screen, always under the sympathetic supervision of grownups.

When the girls were old enough for beaux and boy friends, there they were ready made, family approved, because of long acquaintance. And in the words of one of the mothers, "The girls hardly knew when the boy ceased to be playmates and began to be beaux." They passed through childhood, girlhood into young ladyhood and subsequently into marriage, with transitions as smooth as silk and as right as rain. Nobody ever heard a bit of ugly gossip about any one of them nor an intimation of an indiscretion committed along the way.

Accidental? No, indeed. Lay the laurels in the laps of the fathers and mothers who had the wit and wisdom (and the willingness) to go along with their youngsters as playmates, companions, sympathetic counsellors and chaperones.

Perhaps this experience is unique and can't be duplicated by all parents; for obviously times have changed in a decade and social life is informal in a small town in a sense it cannot be in the city. However, hearts beat the same in every age. In village, city, great and small, there's a common ground of understanding for fathers and mothers who want to play safe and their little daughters who want to play with the boys. It's up to the parents to find that meeting ground.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

THINGS A HUSBAND CAN'T TAKE: His wife's lowrating his mother; her family in his hair; her friends always on his phone; her accusing questions.

Furniture Used By George Washington

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

It's pretty hard to think of George Washington without a halo. The mists of time have a way of gathering around a great man's head and obscuring the picture of him as an everyday mortal.

Lots of Pigeon Holes.

But Washington comes alive for me when I see pictures of rooms in Mount Vernon or look at furniture that he actually used. Such as the handsome mahogany secretary to be seen in the American Wing at the Metropolitan museum. It was used by Washington in New York and Philadelphia—a dignified piece with a solid wood panel front and at the top a broken arch framing a carved bust. And of course lots of pigeon holes and small drawers.

In desks of those old days, there were always the most intricate array of cubby holes and drawers, many so secret that they sometimes wouldn't be discovered for years after an owner's death. For, remember, banks and safety vaults were all but unknown.

Another secretary that belonged to Washington was a tambour type—of the sort Sheraton is responsible for. These were straight across the top and in place of the slant top they had sliding doors. (The ancestor of the roll top desk by the way). Washington's will mentions it "my bureau (or as cabinet makers call it, tambour secretary)."

Means Desk.

Apropos of the word "bureau," it originally meant a cloth cover to use on a table when writing. Properly it means desk—hence the phrase "bureau of information," and in France it's the word for office. Goodness knows how the phrase attached itself to the chest or dresser—it's so used only in America.

The beautiful furniture made in America during late colonial days and the early years of the republic was largely inspired by 18th century English designers. But it had an unmistakable hand of Ameica on it, so it has its own individuality. How lucky are we today that so much of this handsome furniture is available in dignified reproductions that contribute so much graciousness to present-day life.

My Day: Work Can Be Fitted To the Individual

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

ELMIRA, N. Y.—After attending George Holmes' funeral yesterday, I left Washington on the 1 o'clock plane in order to do a few things in New York city before Mrs. Morgenthau and I took the night train to Elmira, N. Y. I will tell you tomorrow about the play we saw last night and the interesting things which we are seeing today. I want to tell you now about a letter which has come to me, and which I feel brings home a point which so many of us fail to realize.

The letter, in part, says: "Just at present the infantile paralysis drive is on. The papers are full of it and we hear it on the radio constantly. I earnestly hope that the drive will reap a great sum to help care and cure unfortunate victims of the disease. The majority of people feel as I do and many will donate sums of money. But how many will, if they were asked, be willing to give these poor victims a chance to earn a living when they have recovered?

"My daughter was stricken in the 1916 epidemic and, as a result, her left arm is partly paralyzed. In spite of her handicap she studied stenography and typing and found employment as a legal stenographer. Illness caused her to give up her position and now she cannot get another one, the reason being 'her arm.' Because her references and work seem satisfactory, she is able to secure positions, but after the employers notice that her left arm is paralyzed, she is asked to leave.

"If her work does not suffer as a consequence of her paralyzed arm, why should she and others in a like position be so cruelly penalized sometimes by those who consider themselves 'charitable'? They will give her money but not a helping hand."

This was made vivid for me in going through the employment offices in Washington the other day. In each division they have a special individual who gives his attention solely to the interviewing of physically handicapped people. He has to make every effort to interview employers and practically sell the handicapped individuals before he says anything about their handicap. Usually he finds they can hold the jobs satisfactorily if they are once engaged, and kept for a long enough period, so that the mere fact of a visible handicap does not react against them. It is true that in some cases a person has to be in evidence a great deal and the handicap is disfiguring. It may be impossible for an employer to employ them in that kind of work. In many cases, however, work can be fitted to the individual and, since these people must earn a living under a greater handicap than the average person, it seems only fair that we should carry our interest into this employment phase, as well as into the primary curative phase.

Seen and Heard on Studio Sets

By Sheilah Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 16.—"Rose of Washington Square." . . . In two installments—part one. . . . At least 20 men are gathered around a peach and cream bed. In it lies Alice Faye, clad in a skimpy, tight nightgown. A couple of males arrange Alice's pillows. Someone else wants to know is she comfortable. In fact, the only man there who seems utterly indifferent to the beautiful lady is her leading man—Tyrone Power—who meditatively sucks a straw in a soft drink bottle.

Director Roy Del Ruth finally decides that everything is okay for a "take." A prop man squirts a mixture of glycerine and menthol into Alice's lovely blue eyes. Tyrone sits on the bed, puts his arms round Alice's neck and tells her how sorry he is for not being worthy of her, etc. The "take" seems just about perfect, but the eagle eye of Cameraman Karl Freund (who has done such good work with Garbo, Crawford, et al) discovers a wrinkle on the pillow that was not there yesterday. The scene is reshot. Then another take is necessary because Alice has opened her mouth too wide. "Get the feed bag for Miss Faye," one of the 20 males wisecracks. "Sir," says Tyrone, giggling, "you are talking of the woman I love."

Part Two—"Rose of Washington Square" is now being shot outside on the back lot. The weather is very unusual today—i. e., extremely cold, with a sharp, icy wind. Luckily for Alice, she is allowed to be fully clothed, with a velvet and ermine wrap over her evening gown. Tyrone is still wearing his tuxedo and top hat of the bedroom scene. . . . Gregory Ratoff has replaced Director Del Ruth. Ratoff wears a naval officer's cap, a thick scarf and heavy coat. It is always funny to listen to him direct. He calls everyone darling, or precious, or sweetheart—regardless of sex, and every "take" is "vonderful, vonderful," no matter how many times it is reshot. He even takes the blame when his players make a mistake, saying, "It was my fault, I'm sorry, darling."

Boss Zanuck arrives on the scene and Ratoff rushes up to him and shouts, "Did you hear the laughs last night—there were a million of them (at the sneak preview of Ratoff's "Wife, Husband and Friend")." "Didn't you know?" says Zanuck unsmilingly, "we planted the theater with studio people—that's why we got the laughs." Ratoff's face drops several inches—until Zanuck winks at him.

"Susannah of the Mounties." . . . The hardest-worked mother in Hollywood—Mrs. George Temple—is at her usual post—i. e., a few yards from Shirley, telling her how the scene should be played and half-acting it herself as she watches her famous daughter. "Slower, Shirley, slower," commands Mrs. Temple. Shirley obediently slows up her dialogue. Then she looks at her mother as if to say, "How was that?" "Much better," says Mrs. Temple.

Mrs. Temple has not been very well. She is tired and already making plans for a three-month summer vacation with Shirley. "She wants to go to England," Mrs. Temple tells me. "But I'm afraid conditions in Europe are too unsettled. I wouldn't like for us to get caught in a war." Second choice is Bermuda. "But then there is the problem of taking a house and bringing our servants. Hotel life is impossible for us."

A new problem will shortly arise in the Temple household. Shirley's older brother, 23-year-old Jack is going places with a young lady, and it is more than probable that, one of these fine days, Jack will be leading this or another girl to the altar. And Shirley will, of course, want to be flower girl," says Mrs. Temple—adding, "but it wouldn't be fair to the bride—Shirley would get all the attention." There is only one thing to be done—and Mrs. Temple agreed with me. Jack will have to elope and wed without the usual trimmings. Seems a bit hard on his bride, though, doesn't it?

Skating Silhouette By Barbara Bell

Even if you don't go in for roller-skating, you'll certainly want a sports outfit like this (1673-B) and if you do roller skate, you can't get along without it. The very full circular skirt and little fitted jacket comprise a sports type that will be extremely smart during the coming season. And such a becoming type! The jacket is darted in to make your waist look very tiny, and it buttons smartly straight up to your chin. The high-shouldered sleeves are young and smart. They go beautifully with the rippling width of skirt.

This design is surprisingly easy to tailor, professionally finished though it looks. Your pattern includes a step-by-step sew chart explaining every move of the making. Tweed, velveteen, flannel and suede cloth are smart materials for this design.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1673-B is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15 and 17. Corresponding bust measurements 29, 31, 33 and 35. Size 13 (31) requires 1 1-4 yards of 54-inch material for the long-sleeved jacket; and 1 yard for the short-sleeved jacket. 2 1-2 yards for the skirt; 1-3 yard for the hood.

Send for Barbara Bell's Spring Pattern Book! Make your own smart new frocks for street, daytime and afternoon, with these simple, carefully planned designs! It's chic, it's easy, it's economical, to sew your own. Each pattern includes a step-by-step sew chart to guide beginners.

Price of Pattern, 15c. Price of Pattern Book, 15c. Do not send stamps.

Grandma

wore a Polonaise in the Seventies

It took twenty yards or more to make grandmother's bustle dress (1870-1880), with close-fitting bodice and draped-up skirt (polonaise) over the second skirt. She selected over the piece goods counter tarlatan, merino, grosgrain, moire antique, taffeta, jaconet and many old-fashioned summer cottons.

Then huge balloon sleeves eclipsed the bustle and the hour glass silhouette was born. Followed the princess silhouette, the Gibson girl, the new straight line, hobble skirt, the boyish silhouette, the short skirt, pencil slimness, and now, the return to femininity in tiny waists and full skirts.

Townley-Smathers Plans Announced

Enlisting wide interest is the announcement made today of the wedding plans of Miss Rosemary Townley, daughter of Mrs. John Madison Townley, and George Armstead Smathers, of Miami, Florida.

The wedding will take place on March 10 at 5 o'clock in the afternoon at St. Stephens' church, in Coconut Grove, Fla. Father Soper will perform the ceremony in the presence of only the immediate families and a few close friends of the bridal couple. Frank Bishop, organist, of New York city, will present a musical program.

The bride-elect will be given in marriage by her brother, James R. Townley, of Miami.

Mrs. C. Larimore Perry, of Miami, sister of the bride-elect, will be her matron of honor and only attendant.

The groom-elect has chosen as his best man his brother, Frank Smathers, also of Miami.

Ushers will be Dr. C. Larimore Perry, of Miami, and Senator William Smathers, of New Jersey.

Immediately after the ceremony Mrs. John Madison Townley, mother of the bride-elect, will entertain at a reception at the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. Larimore Perry on East DiLido Island, on Miami Beach.

Guests at the affair will be limited to members of the wedding party, immediate families and a few close friends.

Phi Beta Kappa At Emory Elects

Election of six students, two alumni, and one honorary faculty member to Phi Beta Kappa scholarship fraternity at Emory University was announced yesterday by Dr. Homer L. Blincoe, president of the Emory chapter.

Charles Uhl, 1063 East Clifton road, is the only Atlantan among the six students. Others are James Humber, Clarksdale, Miss.; Ed Brannen, Millen, Ga.; C. Baxter Jones, Macon; Loren Dickerson, Moultrie, and Thomas Shealy, Dothan, Ala.

Dr. J. M. Steadman Jr., professor of English, is one of only three honorary members ever named by the Emory chapter since its establishment in 1929. A noted grammarian, Dr. Steadman has written several widely-used textbooks on rhetoric.

Elected alumni members for outstanding service in their fields were Dr. William H. Jones, associate professor of chemistry and member of the Emory class of 1924, and Dr. John D. Martin, prominent Atlanta physician, who graduated from the Emory Medical school in 1926.

Election to the honorary society is based, according to its by-laws, on general breadth of culture, scholastic attainments, general promise, and character.

This brilliant basque blouse turns in a brilliant performance. Vivid print . . . with red, purple, grey, or black background.

Set the stage for this sheer chiffon . . . shirred at the waist and sleeves with lastex. White, Limetree green, fuchsia and rose.

For the more mature . . . a pure silk blouse, softly draped, that comes in blue, rose, and white.

A "little girl" blouse, tucked within an inch of its life. White batiste, or white, pink, blue, lime, or violet chiffon.

Utterly feminine . . . fastidiously pleated . . . this chiffon in chartreuse, American beauty, saddle tan, pink, or blue makes its bid for fame.

Blouses are in the limelight. They're playing feminine, romantic roles this Spring, supporting our favorite stars . . . suits. According to all reviews, they're a hit, and headed for a long run. Plaudits to the comeback of the irresistible shirtwaist, to the rising young players: cyclamen and lime, and to the ingenues: pink and blue. The critics are unanimous in their praise, so all together now . . . Bravo!

A frothy net creation for your tailleur that comes in chartreuse, pink, or white.

Young Artist Club of University To Give Program Here Saturday

The Young Artist Club of Atlanta will present the Young Artist Club of the University of Georgia, Athens, in a musicale at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hodgson, on West Pace's Ferry road, at 8:30 o'clock Saturday evening.

This is the first of two "exchange" programs between the clubs. The Atlanta club will present a program in Athens on March 23. Elizabeth Jackson is president of the Atlanta club, and Robert Harrison is president of the Athens club.

The program tomorrow evening will open with Hilda Edwards, flutist, playing "Sonata, No. 5" by Handel, and "Andante," by Gluck. Robert Harrison, violinist, will play "Sonata in G Minor," by Tartini. This will be followed by a talk on current musical happenings by Susan Dillingham, vice president of the Athens club.

Michael McDowell, pianist, who is a member of the faculty of the music department of the university, will play Bach's "English Suite in G Minor." Frank Sule, tenor, will sing "Spirit Flower," Campbell-Tipton; "Amarillis," by Caccini, and "Shoes," by Manning. Edith Brawner will play his accompaniments.

The program will close with Mildred Campbell, 'cellist; Robert Harrison, violinist, and Hugh Hodgson, head of the music department of the university, playing Mendelssohn's "Trio in C minor."

Presiding at the silver coffee services in the dining room will be Mrs. William Vernon Skiles and Mrs. George Sparks.

Guests will include a large number of friends of the hosts.

Mrs. Trotter and Mrs. Raymond's friendship began several years ago when the latter was a delegate to the international P.-T. A. conference in Geneva, and Mr. and Mrs. Trotter were sojourning in Europe. Judge Raymond is a federal judge in Michigan.

Ball Will Honor Temple Potentate

A ball in honor of the newly elected potentate, Noble Wilbur E. Glenn, will be given this evening at 9 o'clock at the Atlanta Athletic Club, under sponsorship of the dance, reception and refreshment committees of Yaarab temple.

An annual event in all Shrine temples, the potentate's ball is the outstanding social event of each year and arrangements have been perfected by the committees in charge to make this evening's affair a highly enjoyable occasion.

The potentate, elective divan and their guests will receive and dancing will follow. The entertainment committee will provide interludes between dances.

Nobles are urged to wear the fez, but strict evening dress is optional. Admission will be by the 1939 Shrine card.

LOVE COMES LAST

Laura Tells Nina of Her Decision To Accept Ford's New York Offer

By JULIA ANNE MOORE.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

Life has been very kind to her, Laura Wiley thinks, especially the last two years since Andy Cooper came into it. She likes her work as announcer at BRY and her salary, with her earnings from fiction writing, have enabled her to take care of her younger sister, Nina, now 21, who is rebellious because heart trouble bars her from many of the activities of boys and girls of her age. So Laura is disturbed when Andy tells her that Bartley Ford, top-rank New York advertising man, wants to take over the Cooper agency in Newbury and make Andy an important executive. She does not want to leave Newbury and with Andy gone her whole existence would be changed. She believes also that Andy would be doing himself an injustice as his agency is doing well and he would bury his identity in a large organization. She tells him this when they are driving out to the lake with Nina. As they talk on the shore, Nina swims out to a float, there is a cry for help and Andy reaches her almost as soon as a lifeguard. He and Laura hurry her home and to bed, badly worried because of her heart, but she is little the worse for her experience. As Laura is preparing lunch, Nina tells Andy she suddenly wanted to keep on living as he carried her ashore in his arms. He thinks she is suffering from shock but when he leaves she tells Laura she loves Andy. Laura thinks it is only a passing fancy. Andy arranges a dinner party with Ford, Laura and Nina. Nina goes to Andy's office, throws her arms around his neck and says "I love you!" just as Laura enters.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY—

INSTALLMENT X.

"All men are funny," Laura replied lightly. "You shouldn't try to understand them."

Laura was about to say goodbye when her brain played one of its little tricks. She said, "I'll tell you a little secret, Nina. I'm dickering for a radio job in New York and—"

"Laurie—not really! How grand!" To Nina New York was everything. "When do we go—if you get it?"

"I don't know," Laura said. "Only if I do get it, I'll have to leave you here for a little while. Perhaps a month or a little longer." Feeling confident Andy would accept Ford's terms, Laura had decided in her own mind that Andy would require at least a month to clean up his affairs in Newbury before he could open an office for Ford in Bridgehaven. A month, she believed, was enough. Perhaps the whole scheme was as fantastic and futile as it had seemed when she first awoke this morning and remembered that she had planned it. But as yet she had been able to think of nothing better. She said, "As soon as I knew it would be more or less permanent and had found a place to live, I'd send for you."

"A month wouldn't be bad," Nina granted. "When will you know?"

"I may be able to tell you definitely one way or the other when I come home tonight. If I do, we'll find a good housekeeper to look after you, so don't worry about it. I'll come home as early as I can."

"Good luck, darling. If I'm not here when you come, you'll know Andy turned up."

Something pressed against Laura's heart as she pushed the phone away. Andy, she knew, wouldn't turn up.

"May I come in, Laurie?"

Laura laughed, trying to cover her confusion. "You don't usually require an invitation," she said. "I go on the air in five minutes, but those five minutes are yours."

He came in and sat down. "Five minutes is more than I need," he said. "In fact, you can go right on with your work and pretend I'm not around because—I just want to sit here and look at you."

"Sweet," she smiled, and waited for him to go on from there. But Andy said nothing more and presently the silence began to pull at her nerves. She said, abruptly, "You're making it all very difficult for me, Andy. Why are you behaving like this?"

"Laurie. . . ." He leaned forward and rested his arms on the leaf of the desk. "Honey, you can't get away with this. Because I won't let you. I don't have to tell you it doesn't even make sense to me, do I?" He went on before she could answer, "Devotion and sacrifice I can understand; but devotion without honesty and sacrifice without purpose are the sort of contradictions that only a warped mind would try to justify. I'm not trying to be disagreeable, Laurie," he said quickly, seeing the color rising in her face. "I'm trying to make you see the truth before you've gone too far with this madness to turn back."

Laurie thought: He's right—but what can I do! I can't kill my own sister. . . .!

She might have been thinking aloud, for Andy said in that same even, quiet voice, "You know, Laurie, Nina's heart condition has gotten to be an obsession with you. You've thought about it so much and lived in fear for so long because of it that you're no longer capable of rational thinking where she's concerned. You've persuaded yourself that any serious emotional shock will prove fatal."

She was afraid of that, too, of course; but a greater fear had its foundation in her conviction that Nina, hurled back into one of her dark moods by a serious disappointment, would deliberately end her life. But she could not tell him that—could not, in fact, offer any comment whatever which would recognize the truth of what he said. For to concede any single point of his argument was to confess that she was still in love with him and that the painfully difficult part she was playing was inspired by the hope that by some means she might force him into a conspiracy to give Nina what she wanted.

"In the first place," said Andy, earnestly, "Nina is not the invalid you make her out. She belongs to a generation that takes its shocks on the padded side and comes up smiling and eager for another try. But there's something else about Nina you haven't considered. She's a girl of surface emotions. I've never seen anything hit her very hard and I can tell you now that this business of being in love will be ancient history with Nina before the summer's out."

There was angry denial of that in Laura's eyes, but she kept her lips tightly closed.

"I tell you, it's just another mood," Andy declared with feeling, "and it will pass like all the others. I'm not asking you if you believe that. Very likely you don't. But it's true. I know it's true." Something almost imperceptible happened to his face then and a new, challenging note was in his voice when he said, "I'm so sure of it that I've come here to tell you I'm going to play your insane little game, Laurie—the way you want it played." He reached out and pulled the telephone to him and began to dial, slowly; and against her will, Laura spoke.

"What are you doing, Andy?" sharply.

"Starting now, this minute," Andy said, quietly. "I'm going to be the ardent lover to the kid sister of the girl I love." His gaze came up briefly. "And God help us if she doesn't snap out of it before all our lives are ruined," he finished flatly.

Angry and ashamed and sickened, Laura thought, frantically: I won't let him do it . . . I won't let him make a fool of Nina!

But this was what she had wanted, this was what she had been going to no end of pains to bring about. Only—

Andy was no longer looking at her. He was bent over the telephone and as Laura moved blindly toward the door, his voice, soft and convincingly sweet, followed her and became a steady, insidious hissing in her ears as she faced the microphone:

"Nina? . . . Hello, darling. I've been tied up all day, but I'm free at last. Get your glad rags on, honey; we're going places."

Right at first Nina was a little disappointed with herself because she missed Laura hardly at all. Laura had gone and while there were moments when she thought of her and wondered about her, she was much too occupied with her own new exhilarating life to be seriously concerned about anything or any one outside of her immediate experience.

Mrs. Leeds, the plump, middle-aged housekeeper, was occupying Laura's room. She was a cheery person, an energetic and efficient home manager. She provided the meals when and as Nina wanted them. Regardless of the time, she never went to bed until Nina came in, and she invariably served Nina her breakfast in bed—which was usually when the rest of Newbury was preparing to sit down to lunch.

These were luxuries Nina had not known before, luxuries that Laura's money made possible. But Nina never considered that. Substantially all her mental energy was consumed by two subjects, herself—and Andy. Everything else was unimportant.

When she did think of Laura, it was usually because Andy reminded her. Once she said to him, "You shouldn't mention Laura so often, darling. I'm a jealous little beast and I haven't lost sight of the fact that you and Laura were friends long before little Nina took over the show. I couldn't share you with any one, Andy . . . not even my own sister."

Andy, poor devil, hadn't said anything. All he could do just then was wonder how he had gotten himself into this unholy mess. He knew, of course, he had done it partly out of anger, partly because he thought Laura would break under the strain of watching such a spectacle as he proposed.

He hadn't known that Laura was about to be offered an executive desk in Bartley Ford's New York office and therefore would not be here to share his misery. Laura herself had yet to learn of that.

Nina suspecting nothing. If Andy was not the gay, demonstrative lover talking airy nonsense that he had been that first week when Laura was still here, that was to be expected, Nina assured herself. For Andy was not the gay, demonstrative sort.

Certainly Andy was not neglecting her in any sense. Once having committed himself, he was too completely under the domination of his New England conscience to go back on his word. Though he suspected Laura had deliberately planned it like this, running off to New York where she would not have to see him in his disgusting role and leaving Nina on his hands, he blamed only himself and gave Nina no cause for uneasiness.

They went everywhere. Nina preferred dancing above everything else and they became familiar figures in all the better class clubs and hotel dance rooms. They attended a musical given under the auspices of the D. A. R., an exhibition of amateur art at the Historical Society gallery and a horse show at Tylertown eight miles away. Twice the first week and three times the second they took in a movie, and, though Nina cared little about the game, Wednesday and Saturday afternoons regularly found them in the grandstand at the baseball park.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Another heavy load of gold headed for American vaults today as ships landed here bringing more than $32,000,000 of the yellow metal.

A good part of the gold was consigned directly to the New York Federal Reserve Bank to be held in reserve for its foreign owners.

The latest shipment supplemented unusually large consignments the last two weeks. Banking quarters estimated as much as $100,000,000 in gold had arrived in the last 10 days.

The foreign exchange market weathered news of an expanded British spending plan with fair success, many analysts seeing the program as laying a foundation for London as a safe haven for capital.

Sterling closed unchanged in terms of the dollar while the French franc dipped .00 1-16 of a cent. The belga was also unchanged and the guilder and Swiss franc each lost .02 of a cent.

Great Britain 4.68 9-16, 60-day bills 4.67⅞; Canada, Montreal in New York 99.46⅞; New York in Montreal 100.53⅛; Belgium 16.87; Czecho-Slovakia 3.42¾; Denmark 20.92; Finland 2.07; France 2.64¾; Germany 40.14, benevolent 20.25, travel 20.25; Greece .86; Hungary 19.85; Italy 5.26¼; Jugoslavia 2.33; Netherlands 53.64; Norway 23.54; Poland 18.93; Portugal 4.26; Rumania .75; Spain unquoted; Sweden 24.13; Switzerland 22.70; Argentine 31.20m; Brazil 5.90n; Mexico City 20.00n; Japan 27.33; Hongkong 29.16; Shanghai 16.00. Rates in spot cables unless otherwise indicated.

Bar silver 42¾, unchanged.

LONDON.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Money ½ per cent. Discount rates: Short and 3-month bills 9-16 per cent.

Bar gold 148s 4½d, up ½ penny. (Equivalent $34.77.)

JAPANESE BLOCK LOAN PAYMENTS

Seizure of Chinese Customs Forces Suspension of Remittances.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Japan's seizure of all China's major seaports, through which more than four-fifths of China's customs revenues normally are derived, has aroused speculation over the future of foreign loans totaling about $256,000,000 secured on customs receipts.

These loans represent two-thirds of China's foreign indebtedness. The war apparently has placed their fate and the whole question of China's financial relatioins with the rest of the world in Japanese hands. Americans hold only a small portion of the loans affected.

Chinese financiers estimate that the customs receipts for 1938 totaled $40,737,200.

But since Japan took over customs collections all receipts have been sequestered. Suspension of all payments due on China's foreign obligations has resulted.

No remittances have been made abroad to cover interest and principal payments of $22,966,934 due in 1939.

Since no customs collectors are operating along the Yangtze, vast amounts of Japanese goods are entering China untaxed.

FRENCH BESIEGED IN HANKOW AREA

SHANGHAI, Feb. 17.—(Friday) (AP)—Reports filtering through from Japanese-held Hankow, 585 miles up the Yangtze river, told today of a tense situation created by a Japanese embargo on food for the French defense force in the French concession.

For some unexplained cause the French prohibited Japanese entrance into the concession several days ago and the Japanese at once laid down a blockade to shut off provisions for the French force.

Persons entering the concession were searched by the Japanese. Some Chinese women believed to have carried food were said to have been mistreated by Japanese sentries.

WORK IS LAUNCHED ON COTTON PROGRAM

Impounding of 10,000,000 Bales of Surplus Is Being Discussed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP)—A house agriculture subcommittee began work today on a program to reduce the nation's 14,500,000 bales of surplus loan cotton to a normal level without disturbing the present production control system.

Representative Fulmer, Democrat, South Carolina, chairman of the subcommittee, said the discussion revolved around a proposal to impound 10,000,000 bales for use for five specific purposes over a three-year period.

The 4,500,000 bales left would represent a "normal surplus," he added.

Fulmer proposed that 2,000,000 bales of the impounded cotton be set aside for each of the following purposes:

1. For relief, to be manufactured into or exchanged for cloth to be made into garments in WPA sewing rooms.

2. For cotton crop insurance, for which he has already introduced a bill.

3. For military needs of the army and navy, in view of the armament expansion program.

4. For sale on the open market in such quantities and at such times as not to interfere with the marketing of new cotton.

5. For subsidizing its use as a substitute for products manufactured from imported fibers such as jute.

Fulmer explained the proceeds from marketing 2,000,000 bales could be added to the already-allotted $86,000,000 for payments to cotton farmers co-operating under the 1939 control program.

Fulmer estimated this would increase benefits to approximately $130,000,000, the amount available last year.

Fulmer estimated 2,358,000 bales of American cotton could be consumed in this country annually by replacement of jute and other hard fibers.

Position of Treasury.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The position of the treasury, February 14: Receipts $6,489,740.23; expenditures $10,541,337.53; net balance $3,142,566,579.76, including $2,494,590,077.31 working balance; customs receipts for the month $11,036,364.19.

Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1) $3,533,944,754.69; expenditures $5,601,752,743.02, including $1,892,460,940.26 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures $2,067,807,988.33; gross debt $39,762,944,997.34, an increase of $484,561,97 above the previous day; gold assets $14,767,076,103.76.

PAID-FOR INSURANCE GAINS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—(AP)—New paid-for life insurance written by 40 companies last month totaled $729,954,000 compared with $589,165,000 in January, 1938, the Association of Life Insurance Presidents reported today.

Ex-Theater Manager Dies

JOHN M. M'MILLAN, THEATER MAN, DIES

One-Time Manager of Bijou Theater; Last Rites Rites Sunday.

John M. (Buddy) McMillan, 58, of 761 Edgewood avenue, long prominent in show business here, died unexpectedly yesterday morning at a private hospital after a brief illness.

A native of Athens, Mr. McMillan moved to Atlanta as a boy and had been connected with various theatrical enterprises since. His first post was with the old Lyceum theater on Edgewood avenue, and later he served for four years as manager of the old Bijou theater, on the site now occupied by the Palmer building.

Mr. McMillan was a veteran state manager and mechanic and was a member of Local No. 1. I. A. T. S. E. He was the son of the late Rev. and Mrs. John F. McMillan.

Surviving are his wife; a son, John M. McMillan Jr.; two sisters, Miss Hattie McMillan and Mrs. Helen Talley, and a brother, Julius T. McMillan, all of Atlanta.

Funeral services wiill be conducted at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon in the chapel of Sam R. Greenberg & Company by the Rev. Charles Richardson. Burial will be in Crest Lawn cemetery.

NAZI ENVOY PAYS TRIBUTE TO POPE

Reminds Cardinals of Responsibility in Electing Successor.

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 16.—(UP)—Dr. Diego von Bergen, German envoy to the Vatican, today reminded the Sacred College of Cardinals of their great responsibility in electing a worthy successor to Pope Pius XI because of the present political situation.

Bergen, dean of the Papal diplomatic corps, paid tribute to the late Pontiff as one who "always guarded the centuries-old rights of the church with the interests of peace and harmony always in mind."

"Everyone hopes this evolution will be carried out peacefully," he said with respect to the political aspects of the election of a new pope.

He spoke on behalf of the diplomats when they were received by the College of Cardinals, 40 of whom are here for the election conclave with the other 22 en route to Rome from all parts of the world.

Bergen's remarks were considered unusually significant because of the strained relations between his country and the Vatican.

He praised Pope Pius for a courageous defense of the church at all times, and for his statesmanship as exemplified by negotiation of the Lateran Accord.

Cemetery Owners Insure Buyers—for Protection

DALLAS, Tex., Feb. 16.—(AP)—Texas cemetery owners take out life insurance on their customers. They insure persons who buy lots on installment because they want protection in case the customers die before they finish their payments.

MORTUARY

REV. W. C. BAXLEY.

Funeral services for the Rev. W. C. Baxley, 68, retired Baptist minister, who died Wednesday night at his home, 1259 Simpson road, N. W., will be conducted at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Spring Hill by the Rev. Happy White and Rev. W. Tilman Gardner. Burial will be in Rehoboth cemetery under direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

JIMMY RICHARD WALKER.

Jimmy Richard Walker, eight-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Walker, of College Park, died yesterday morning at a private hospital. Also surviving are his grandmothers, Mrs. J. W. Crowe and Mrs. Mat Walker. Funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Shadnor Baptist church by the Rev. Mr. Roberts. Burial will be in the churchyard under direction of A. C. Hemperley & Sons.

MEMPHIS ACQUIRES UTILITY PROPERTIES

Purchases Facilities for $17,360,000 to Join TVA's Growing System.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 16.—(AP) This city of 250,000 joined Nashville, Chattanooga, Knoxville and scores of smaller cities and rural communities today in the rapidly-growing TVA power fold.

A deal was negotiated whereby the city and TVA will buy almost all of Memphis Power & Light Company's facilities for $17,360,000, TVA to contribute $2,110,000 and Memphis $15,250,000.

Memphis Power & Light retained one large generating plant, high-tension transmission lines leading to Arkansas and Mississippi and more than $4,000,000 of quick assets—securities, cash and receivables.

Actual transfer of the properties is expected in 60 to 90 days. In the meanwhile M. P. & L.'s customers as well as the 6,000-odd in the city system will have the same electric rates—basic TVA charges plus a 15 per cent surcharge. The company cut its charges to this level last December when it appeared no trade was possible.

ROOF OF CAPITOL HELD DANGEROUS

But Economy-Minded House Members Refuse $585,000 for Reconstruction.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—(AP)—The economy-minded appropriations committee decided today to take a chance that the 85-year-old roofs over the senate and house wings of the capitol would not collapse—for a while at least—rather than spend $585,000

All in the GAME

by Jack Troy

Dewey Williams dropped by yesterday to say "hallo" and "so long."

Dewey, reserve catcher for the Crackers, is through work for the winter and he and Larry Miller and possibly Johnny Hill, the Irish-Indian from Douglasville, are departing today on an extended fishing trip around Umatilla, Fla.

They plan to get back around the time for reporting for spring training. Dewey and Larry will join the Cracker vanguard at Savannah, while Hill, of Powder Springs and Douglasville, will don the uniform of the Boston Bees at Bradenton, Florida.

Williams looked rather trim after a winter of work and said he hoped to catch a lot of games, which he probably will. He was leading the Southern league in batting before being forced out by appendicitis last season, and after he returned to the club he had an attack of ptomaine poisoning.

DEWEY WILLIAMS

The Durham, N. C., boy is a great catching prospect. Manager Paul Richards has said that he is confident Williams will be a major leaguer be-

'NIG' LIPSCOMB MAY BE LEFT IN GREENWOOD, RICHARDS SAYS

Ex-Second Baseman Is Due to Catch; Crackers' School Reaches Forty Mark.

GREENWOOD, Miss., Feb. 16.—Enrollment in the baseball school being conducted here by Paul Richards, Atlanta Cracker manager, has increased to 40 with the arrival of additional youngsters.

Richards is putting his boys through their paces daily and he announced that practice games will begin next week. Batting, fielding practice and limbering up exercises have taken most of the time so far, but Richards and his staff of assistants started today working the prospective pitchers.

Some of the promising rookie hurlers are George McCollum, of Lavonia, Ga.; Frank Ray, Merrill Scherer and Lawrence Frey, of New Orleans; Ray Herrin, of Smyrna, Ga.; Elwood Lawson, of Westwege, La., and Jesse Feaster and Royce Mills, of Waxahachie, Texas.

Manager Richards said today that he is still planning to convert Nig Lipscomb, Cracker second baseman, into a catcher and that Lipscomb may remain with the Greenwood club this season.

Sports Questions And the Answers

Q. What is the world's trotting record for one mile?

A. One minute 55 and one-quarter seconds, by Greyhound, at Lexington, Ky., September 29, 1938.

Q. In non-championship fights, how is each boxer's share of the receipts determined?

A. The question of which fighter gets the larger share depends entirely upon the astuteness of the respective managers, and the comparative standing and past records of the participants. Sometimes they get equal shares. Sometimes one fighter will demand a guarantee while the other will work on a percentage basis. In the old days fighters sometimes worked on a winner-take-all basis.

Q. When and where will the 1939 All-Star major league game be played?

A. In the Yankee stadium, New York city, on July 11.

Q. When and from whom did Jack Delaney win the light heavyweight boxing championship?

A. He won it from Paul Berlenbach on a decision in 15 rounds, at Brooklyn, N. Y., July 26, 1926.

Q. How many times did Gene Tunney fight Harry Greb?

A. Five, as follows: May 23, 1922, New York city—Greb won decision, 15 rounds; Feb. 23, 1923, New York city—Tunney won decision, 15 rounds; December 10, 1923, New York city—Tunney won decision, 15 rounds; September 17, 1924, Cleveland, Ohio—no decision, 10 rounds; March 27, 1925, St. Paul, Minn.—no decision, 10 rounds.

Young Harris Cagers Beat Epworth Twice

EPWORTH, Ga., Feb. 16.—In a game which saw the lead change hands almost every time a field goal was made, the Young Harris Girls' team defeated Epworth High school by the score of 18-15. The game was featured throughout by the defensive play of the Epworth guards.

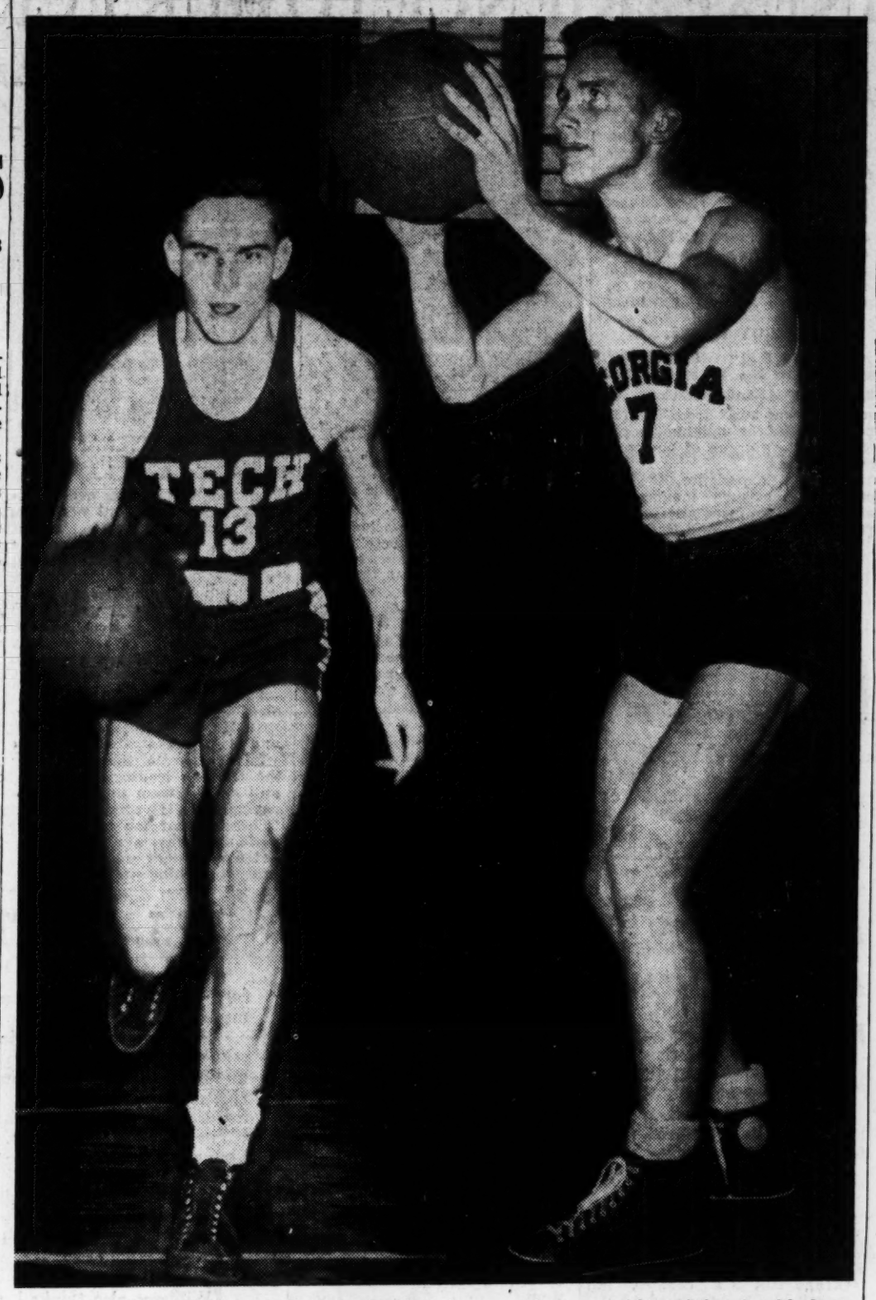

The Young Harris College boys had no trouble in defeating the Epworth Athletic Club decisively by a score of 43-30.

TECH, GEORGIA READY FOR BATTLE SATURDAY

Georgia Picked Over Tech

Feller Will Win Twenty, Vitt Thinks

Tribe Pilot Also Says Heath Is Best Hitter of All.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Oscar Vitt, a 175-pound charge of Cleveland baseball dynamite, fired a double-barreled salute to the American league today.

HEATH.

He flatly stated Bob Feller would win 20 games this season, predicted the young fireball pitcher would string together 30 victories for one year in the near future and declared he was the manager of the greatest hitter in the league, bar none.

Although Jeff Heath finished second in American league batting last year, Vitt described the youthful outfielder as "the best hitter of them all."

Vit hastened to disclaim he was predicting a pennant for Cleveland.

Of Feller, the Indians' pilot said: "After seeing him perform last year, I am convinced he will win 30 games for us before long. He'll knock over 20 this season without drawing a deep breath. The boy is only 20 years old now, is improving his control; is nursing his arm more carefully and obeys orders. He has a great future."

Vitt contends Heath should have led the league by 20 points last season, instead of finishing second to Jimmy Foxx, of the Red Sox. "He had so many line drives caught on him that should have gone for extra base hits that I get a headache every time I think of it."

Amateur Managers To Meet Friday

There will be a meeting of all amateur baseball managers at Trammell Scott's store Friday night. Two more baseball leagues will be organized at this meeting. The Scott league and Atlanta Textile league have already been formed, and the managers of teams in these leagues will not need to be present.

Representatives should come prepared to sign on the dotted line if they want to get into a league this year. There are only a limited number of diamonds available in the city and they will be given to the teams that are members of leagues in preference to independent teams.

JACKETS LOSE TWO PLAYERS

Hughes, Munford Out; Bulldogs Have Better Season Record.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

First glance at the composite box scores of Tech and Georgia's games this season would indicate the Bulldogs are both stronger offensively and defensively than the Jackets.

But reading between the lines and taking into consideration the strength of teams played, one finds the Techs haven't been doing so badly themselves.

Against 13 opponents, Georgia has scored 473 points or an average of a little over 36.4 points a game. The Bulldog foes have managed to ring up 375 points for an average of 28.9 points.

On the other hand, the Jackets have scored 315 points as compared to 330 for opponents in 10 games. Tech's average is 31.5, the opponents', 33 per battle.

THREE MUTUAL FOES.

The two teams have met only three mutual foes, South Carolina, Alabama and Florida. Georgia defeated the Gamecocks twice in easy games. Tech whipped the South Carolinas by four points in their only meeting.

The Bulldogs took three of four from Florida. The Jackets lost their only game with the Bulldogs. Georgia beat Alabama. Tech lost to the Tide. And there you have it.

Whatnhell's use of playing the game? Give it to Georgia by about eight or nine points and save a lot of wear and tear on the Tech students' lungs.

But there is another side. Mercer is the only team to hold a victory over Tech on her home court. The Jackets' have been the more consistent team. Their top score for the season is 42 points against Vanderbilt in Nashville.

66 POINTS.

Georgia's largest score is 66 points against Chattanooga. The smallest was 15 in the first Florida game.

Then, too, it is doubtful that Clemson, Alabama and Auburn, the three strongest Bulldog opponents, measure up to the comparative strength of Alabama, L. S. U. and Vanderbilt, Tech's toughest foes.

This could go on and on. And still get nowhere. But there is a new rule which says "keep copy short."

The expected toss-up game has suddenly developed into a Georgia-favorite affair as Jim Hughes and Dillard Munford are definitely out. Hughes has a broken

Ben Brown Facing Finest Opportunity Of Boxing Career

Taylor, Philly Promoter, and Mike Jacobs Ready to Bid Spiritedly for Services of Atlanta Boy If He Wins Title.

By JACK TROY.

Ben Brown is fighting for a crack at the middleweight championship of the world this coming Wednesday night at Miami, Fla. And there is a lot of significance attached to it since Atlanta's only prize fight champion was a middleweight.

The only champion, at any weight, Atlanta has ever had was Tiger Flowers, the unorthodox colored fighter who won the title from Harry Greb in 1926. Greb tried to regain his title the same year but failed.

A fighting man, Flowers defended his title against Mickey Walker in the same year—1926—and lost on what generally was regarded as a fluke decision. A few months later Flowers underwent an operation on one of his eyes and died under the knife.

Lone Par-Cracking Round, Dudley's 70, Leads Pro Golfers

Stiff Winds Send Scores Soaring As Winter Field Fails To Break 70 for First Time; Three Card 72's.

By KENNETH GREGORY.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 16.—(AP)—A chilly wind blew strong all day to handicap the nation's professionals, but tall, broad-shouldered Ed Dudley, of Philadelphia, had a putter performing hotter than hot and tonight had stepped out to lead the field in the scramble for top money in the $10,000 Crescent City open golf tournament.

While scores ran well over par as the stiff winds played havoc with drives and approaches, Dudley finished late in the afternoon with a neatly-patterned 70, the lone par-cracking exhibition of a day of play that saw favorites for the most part drop far behind.

"I never putted so well," remarked Dudley as he finished.

Dudley, 36 years old and veteran of the United States Ryder cup forces, negotiated the outgoing nine in 36 blows, one under par, and clipped a stroke from regulation figures down the stretch with a 34. His two-under-par 70 gave him a two-stroke lead over the field after the opening round of the 72-hole skirmishing for top prize of $2,000.

Three of the field of more than 160 in the scramble for the $10,000 distribution of Mayor Robert S. Maestri's personally advanced cash, equalled the course's par 72 in a day of firing that saw most of 1939's leading money winners drop back. It was the first time on the winter trail that 70 had not been broken.

Deadlocked in second place with par 72s were Ralph Guldahl, of Madison, N. J., national open champion for the last two years; Zell Eaton, a young professional from Oklahoma City, Okla., and Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa.

INEXPERIENCE TO HURT CRACKERS

Fans Decry Lack of Dependable 'A' Hurlers

Editor's Note: The Constitution's roving baseball reporter and cameraman found a fine group of baseball fans, who were unanimous in their opinions that the Atlanta Crackers would not win the 1939 pennant. They are not against the Crackers, but have good sound reasons why Atlanta will not be the No. 1 team in the Southern league this season.

By ROY WHITE.

Atlanta is a great sporting town and we are No. 1 baseball fans, but those Atlanta Crackers are several paces away from the 1939 pennant, was the unanimous opinion of today's group of outspoken baseball fans.

"Lack of experience, too fast company for such inexperience and loss of three dependable pitchers is against the Crackers," said W. L. Whisenant, one of Atlanta's ranking bowlers.

EMMIE SMITH
"Too Many Rookies."

W. L. WHISENANT
Bemoans Lack of Veterans.

RUSSELL CHANDLER
"We Lost Too Many."

"I have followed baseball for a long time and competed in a number of bowling tournaments and have always found that experience counts and without experience the odds are heavily against you. That's what the Crackers are up against. Only six class men and one of those a pitcher, Bobby Durham, used mostly as relief last year, certainly is no veteran team," Whisenant concluded.

Emmie Jewel Smith is another ardent baseball fan who doesn't think Atlanta will win again, although she refused to name a No. 1 team.

"Too many rookies and you can never tell what a rookie will do when the going gets toughest. Loss of Johnny Hill, Tom Sunkel, Leo Moon and Bill Beckman, dependable class players, will not help. The law of averages, three out of four first places, is against the team this year. And six class men are not enough to steady a rookie team pennant bound," she added.

Russell Chandler, would not predict the team to beat Atlanta, but gave several fine reasons why the Crackers will not finish in first place.

"You can't take away such stars as Johnny Hill, Bill Beckman, Buster Chatham, Leo Moon and Tom Sunkel, three pitchers who won most of the games and the league's leading hitter and still have a team to be rated a champion," Chandler said. "There appear too many inexperienced players and there is not a consistent winner on the present pitching staff," Chandler added.

John Blick, veteran athletic competitor, was another who cannot rate the Crackers in the No. 1 spot at present.

"The law of averages, loss of Johnny Hill, the league leading hitter, and departure of Beckman, Moon and Sunkel, three ace pitchers, are enough alone to keep Atlanta out of first place," Blick said.

"I have respect for President Mann and Manager Paul Richards as great baseball leaders and I will be the first to congratulate them on winning a pennant, but lack of experience will hurt most," Blick said. "The Crackers are to be congratulated for attempting to string along with only six class men and the others untried rookies. That's building for the future, but right now they must not be given the pennant," Blick concluded.

Pin Meet Is Popular

With 12 bowlers already having filed their entries and 20 more expected to sign before the entry list closes at game time, 2 o'clock this Saturday afternoon, the first annual Metropolitan Atlanta Individual Duckpin championships for men is scheduled for a successful staging under the sponsorship of the Atlanta Duckpin Association.

The tournament will open at the uptown Lucky Strike alleys, on the first floor drives, at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. At 4 o'clock the bowlers move to the second floor drives at Lucky Strike for the second block of five games in this 15-game event.

The final block, in which the winner will be determined, will be rolled on the downtown drives beginning at 7:30 o'clock the same evening.

A first prize of $50 is guaranteed the winner, with other prizes being added as the entry warrants. The entry fee of $5 includes the cost of the 15 games to be rolled.

The Metropolitan Atlanta event will be the first that has been staged in Atlanta or the "deep south" on rotating alleys and this type of contest is expected to be a popular one with bowlers and spectators. It is certainly the type of event that tends to get bowlers used to bowling on more than one group of alleys, affords fast tournament competition and produces maximum scores.

Among those who are already signed are Earl Quillian, Jack Pearce, P. E. Hooton, Bill Roux, Charles Wynne, George H. Tyler, George W. McKay, A. J. Sossong, Walter E. Lawson, L. B. Outler, Bill Pelot and W. F. Lowry.

Entries may be filed at either the uptown or downtown alleys, where the tournament is scheduled.

'Y' TRIANGLES WIN.

The Y. M. C. A. Triangles defeated Forest Park High yesterday afternoon, 32 to 31, on the "Y" court in a thrilling game. Harold Estes, member of the Forest Park five, had 17 points to his credit.

Reds Buy Mucho Lyons, Ex-Yellow Jacket Star

Big Catcher Returns From Country-Wide Tour With House of David Five.

By ROY WHITE.

Russell (Mucho) Lyons, former Georgia Tech athlete, returned home Thursday from a tour of every state in the union except California while playing basketball with the House of David team.

Lyons left last night for Ball Ground, Ga., to spend a vacation at home before leaving in early March for spring baseball practice.

Mucho was full of interesting tales of his career since leaving Tech, where he became prominent for ambidexterous pitching against Florida back in the early 30's. He was and still is a catcher, but Coach Bobby Dodd needed a hurler, and Lyons pitched 'em both ways, and won the game.

The former Jacket was more concerned about his baseball contract than basketball. He hit .330 for Bassett in the Bi-State league last year and was one of the circuit's leading catchers.

A letter from his roommate, Wesley Livengood, ace pitcher of the league, revealed that the battery, together with an infielder, had been sold to the Cincinnati Reds. Lyons didn't know anything about it, traveling from city to city as he has been since November 19, and was anxious to know just where he will go next year, though he figured Durham, N. C., a Red farm, was the best bet since he has been in professional baseball only three years.

In his basketball tour, Lyons competed in 175 games, winning 150 and losing 25. The tour started in Ontario and ended Monday in New Mexico.

The David team played five games last Monday in New Mexico, starting at 10 o'clock in the morning and ending at 9 o'clock at night. A morning double-header was played at Montement, with afternoon and night games at Eunice and Seminole. "We didn't take off our uniforms during the day and it was the toughest day of the entire trip," he said. "We beat the Shamrocks in Missouri."

"I hope Cincinnati will send me to Durham and then give me a chance in the big show, for I am tired of globe-trotting," Mucho said.

Mucho was proud of a letter from Wally Novak, the Bassett manager, who wrote that Lyons could play for him wherever he went.

"I am glad to be sold to the Reds, for they are soon going to need a good hard-hitting catcher like me to replace Lombardi, and I am just what they need," the confident Mucho said.

BROWN FACING FINE CHANCE

dium, Miami, and it marks the big chance of his fistic career.

Brown already is ear-marked for big time. And if he wins the fight from Kreiger, Mike Jacobs, promoter for the Twentieth Century Sporting Club in New York, and Herman Taylor, the boxing impresario of Philadelphia, will bid spiritedly for his services in the east.

Boxing experts are impressed by Brown's earnest training program and his desire to win the championship, and they give him about a 50-50 chance to take Kreiger in their non-title bout.

Brown never has been knocked out and always has managed to beat any fighter who decisioned him in a return setto.

Atlanta fight fans are extremely hopeful that fistic lightning will strike twice in the same place. That is, give Atlanta another world's champion.

If he should win, Brown also would be the first southern white boy ever to beat a major title holder. There is a lot at stake for Ben, the Bomber.

For a world's title chance will give him entree, at long last, in the choice spots up east.

RUSSELL HIGH WINS.

Russell High, defending its N. G. I. C. championship, defeated Fulton High, 37 to 25, Thursday afternoon in a practice game preparatory to the annual tournament.

fore he becomes a class man. This gives him two more years to make it.

Williams, 23, said he felt like a veteran on the current Cracker club. Which is about right. Any player of 25 on the club well can feel that he has attained a ripe old age.

So Richards and Bob Durham, who are 30, really are misfits. They have too much age. In order to qualify for the club they ought to pay close attention to their daily shaving. Pink-cheeked youth is the order.

Dewey Williams was talking about baseball, strangely enough, and he said it wouldn't surprise him to see Bob Durham turn in about 18 victories. "I guess he'll be used as a starter for a while. I honestly believe he has the best curve ball in baseball."

Williams also thinks Luman Harris, who has picked up greatly in weight, and Larry Miller will have fine records. As he sees it, the pitching staff will be strong enough.

Never one to speak with reticence, Dewey dipped into the angle of team speed and allowed the Crackers may run some of the other managers crazy.

"It's really going to be a running ball club and you know how that upsets the other team. It keeps the infielders in what you might call a dither."

And it's probably just as well that our Crackers of 1939 are going to keep opponents in a lather. For you see they're hardly old enough to shave.

CAN THEY HIT?

A question that will not be answered until the season gets well under way concerns the batting prowess of the Cracker nine. They can run all right, but can they hit?

Really, there are only three proven .300 hitters in the Southern league remaining on the club. They are Richards, Mailho and Bolling.

Rucker hit well at Macon and Anderson starred at New Bern. But they haven't faced the Southern league pitching. Rubeling hasn't been tested against the Southern brand. And, while Fritz Oetting caught the fans' eyes with his long-distance wallops, he batted only .161. Marshall Mauldin was well under .300 last year, although he was first in runs scored and second in runs batted in.

In looking over the Cracker prospects in regard to another pennant, it may be well to bear in mind that the hitters, for the most part, must prove themselves, and that, also, there is no assurance that the youthful pitching staff will be able to hold up when the July sun starts bearing down.

It would not be surprising to see Bolling lead the league in batting, but what some of the others will do when the cagey Southern hurlers begin curving them remains to be seen.

I do not mean this as critical. Prospects look good. But if Manager Richards wins a pennant with this ball club, it will be a far greater achievement than last year. He had a bit more experience and a pitcher like Tom Sunkel then.

It may be recalled, however, that there was not a great deal of fuss made over Sunkel until after the season started. He was a question mark. And it may be that out of the current list of young pitchers, Richards will come up with another Sunkel.

Luman Harris seems the logical choice to take Bill Beckman's place. A good winter book bet is that he will win between 15 and 20 games if he keeps his health. Harris is that kind of a pitcher.

LOSS HURTS.

The elongated pivot man was hurt the first part of the Alabama game Wednesday night and may be unable to play in the Southeastern conference tournament in March.

The injuries are just another bit of bad luck to Coach Roy Mundorff, who has already had more than his share this season. First, Jim Williams sprained his ankle and then Junior Anderson turned up with a chipped bone in his leg.

Williams has just returned and Anderson is back in fairly good shape—but now Hughes and Munford are out.

Off-Shades in Worsted In New Spring Suits

At the left above is the double-breasted blade model jacket in the group-stripe worsted. Note the easy hang of this jacket from the shoulders and chest and the trimness of the hips.

At the right is shown the three-button single-breasted covert cloth suit, also in the full-chested blade model with trim hips. Note that the two upper buttons are buttoned.

Bluish-Green, Rather Than Either Blue or Green—Three-Button S. B. Is a Leader—Blade Model Is Extended Drape.

By ROBERT FAIRCHILD
Editor Men's Fashions

When you set out to look over the racks in the search for a new spring suit, you would do well to concentrate your attention upon the fabric—not that there is no style interest in models, but only that the developments in suitings are strictly new while those in models represent enlargements and extensions of styles that started toward popularity last season.

The chief fabric developments are the off-shades, so to speak, in worsted. By off-shades I mean the introduction of color without its explosion. Thus, a suit will not be green, but bluish-green—in other words the possible garishness of green will be obviated by an admixture of a blue tone. Similar combinations will be grayish-green, grayish-blue and grayish-brown (which might be called cinnamon and then again might be called grayish-brown). Another new tone is marine blue, which is a shade lighter than navy and has a distinctly fresh appearance.

Stripes will be the dominating pattern this season, whether group stripes, heather stripes, or simple chalk stripes in alternating colors. The new idea is the combination of stripes with the classic sharkskin background.

You have heard a good deal about covert cloth and it has been highly touted as a style leader. I have been among those thus highly touting it, as a matter of fact. I don't intend to retreat from that position, but I do want to point out that it is a young man's style, a university style, and no man who is accustomed to wearing worsteds need feel out of step because he continues that preference and passes up the covert. However, as I have said, it is a big style for young men. Olive tan is the leading color, with gray-green and blue-gray also in the running. In the same breath with covert may be mentioned gabardine, which is still one of our favorite fabrics in this country. The blue-gray tone is destined, I believe, to be more popular than ever this summer, and so will gray-green. Natural tan will probably be numerically the leader.

A few words about models: The three-button single-breasted is on its way to top popularity. I think the correct way to wear this would be with the top two buttons buttoned, but many men prefer to button only the center button and that is, of course, their business. The other important style trend is the blade model, which may be either single or double-breasted. This technique consists of extending the drape from the front of the jacket to the back so that there is fullness over the shoulder blades as well as over the chest. The advantage of this feature, as well as its being the leading style, is that it provides greater comfort and a more masculine athletic appearance to the shoulders. Incidentally, the blade idea can be combined very successfully with the three-button single-breasted.

SEABISCUIT LEG, NO LONGER SORE, WILL BE TESTED THIS SATURDAY

Owner Charles Howard Says 6-Year-Old Showed Marked Improvement in Walking.

SANTA ANITA PARK, Cal., Feb. 16.—(UP)—Charles S. Howard announced tonight that the soreness had disappeared from Seabiscuit's left ankle and that the 1938 handicap champion will be tried out Saturday to determine whether he can be started in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap on March 4.

Howard said that the six-year-old was walked several times today and showed marked improvement, but insisted that a final decision cannot be made until the 'Biscuit tests the injured limb in the workout.

He reiterated that if the horse recovers he will be pointed for just one more winning effort so he can pass the Sun Beau mark and then will be retired. Seabiscuit will remain on the Pacific coast for the rest of his life, regardless of the outcome.

Most trainers at the track still counted Seabiscuit out of the big handicap. They said there is not sufficient time remaining—17 days—to bring the horse back into training.

Future book odds on the Howard ace remained at 10-1, jumping Sharply from 3-1 after he was injured while running second to Neil McCarthy's Today in a mile race Tuesday.

BEN BROWN JOGS FOR FOUR MILES

Atlantan Rounding Into Razor-Edge Sharpness for Krieger Bout.

By TED WARD.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 16.—Ben Brown, black-haired Atlantan, who rules all southern middleweights, confined his training routine to a four-mile jog today in preparation for his 10-round non-title bout against Solly Krieger, National Boxing Association champion, next Wednesday.

Brown, who has been drilling for the past month, is rapidly rounding into razor-edge condition. He is not quite ready to enter the ring, but within two or three days he will probably reach his peak, and he hopes to stay that way until Wednesday.

The amiable Georgian seriously believes he has an even chance of whipping the champion, and this attitude has been reflected in his workouts. His boxing has been exceptional. He has been hitting harder with his right, and his footwork is near perfect. He feints more like a veteran than a youngster just moving into the select circle of pugilism.

He is not lackadaisical—much different from the happy-go-lucky fighter of a year ago who lost to several inferior gladiators. His non-title bout against Krieger undoubtedly caused that transformation. He has displayed a spirit in his training that has surprised his friends.

Wrestling Match Off Till Monday

The regular weekly wrestling match scheduled for tonight at Warren's Arena has been postponed until Monday night.

The same lineup, featuring Red Devil and Jack McAdams, will be presented Monday night.

The semi-final round of the Georgia basketball tournament will be played on the Warren arena court tonight, which necessitates moving the wrestling to Monday instead.

Finals in the basketball tournament will be played Sunday afternoon.

Broadwater's Dot Captures 1st Place In Newnan Trials

Tom Glover's Princess Second in First Annual Coweta Sportsman's Club's Puppy Stake; Two Share Third Honors.

By TOM McRAE.

NEWNAN, Ga., Feb. 16.—Broadwater's Dot, brown and white female pointer owned by J. H. Broadwater, won first place in Coweta Sportsman's Club's first annual puppy stakes held on I. W. Brooks' farm, near here.

Runner-up position went to Princess, pointer owned by Tom Glover and handled by Ben Davis. Walter Sanders' setter, Fred, and Hall's Tweet, setter, owned by Hall Arnold and handled by Robert Arnold, tied for third place. Roscoe Moody's six-month-old pointer, King, the youngest dog competing, turned in such a fine exhibition it was given honorable mention.

Raymond Carter and D. B. Lasseter, judges, both of Atlanta, described Broadwater's Dot's bird work as excellent and praised the 8-month-old winner for running a "searching heat."

GRAY IN CHARGE.

Wallace Gray, well known in field trial circles, was in charge of the event for the Coweta Sportsman's Club and did a splendid job.

Today's stake was a "feeler" to see if interest was sufficient to run off open field trials successfully. Despite the fact entries were limited only to Coweta dog owners, 20 puppies were entered. More than 150 attended.

Next year, besides the puppy stake, there will also be derby and all-age events. Both amateurs and professionals will compete.

SANDERS IS HOST.

After it was all over, Sanders, senator from the 36th district, was host at a goose supper. Goose may have been the piece de resistance, but oyster dressing and giblet gravy got a lot of attention.

Officers of the Coweta Sportsman Club are Dick Cumbee, president; A. P. Mann, secretary, and Gray, public relations chairman.

Mishap Occurs While Big Punting Star Is Ttackling Dummy.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Hawk Cavette, big kicking star of the Tech football team, became the season's first major injury yesterday when he broke his right arm while tackling a dummy in spring practice.

Trainer Claude Bond examined the fracture, then took Cavette to a hospital where an X-ray showed the right ulner bone was broken.

Cavette was shifted to tackle last fall and was being tried out at guard when the mishap occurred.

He is the best punter on the Jacket squad, his kicks creating a big sensation last year while playing as a sophomore.

Cavette will be out for the remainder of spring practice and will also be lost to Bobby Dodd's baseball nine. He was probably the best pitcher available.

The husky junior's injury leaves the Tech guard problem more acute than ever. Coach Bill Alexander has already shifted several players in an effort to strengthen the post and other changes may be forthcoming.

Coach Alex continued to stress fundamentals to his squad of 85 men in yesterday's practice.

Ace Kicker Will Be Out Rest of Spring Training, Baseball.

State Mat Tourney Set at 'Y' Saturday

The state open wrestling championship tournament will open at the Central Y. M. C. A. Saturday. Preliminaries will be held at 10 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. Finals are slated for 8 p. m.

All contestants must weigh in at the "Y" at 9 a. m. Saturday. Teams and individuals are expected from Young Harris College, West Georgia College, Columbus "Y," Augusta "Y," Athens "Y," Tech High, Atlanta "Y," West Point and LaGrange.

No admission will be charged at the morning session and a small fee will be charged to cover expenses at the 2:30 and 8 o'clock sessions.

Lombard, Hammond Win Blind Bogey

P. G. Lombard and W. P. Hammond were winners of the regular midweekly blind bogey tournament yesterday afternoon at the East Lake Country Club. The winning number was 70.

W. S. Smith had a 71; Travis Johnson, a 73, J. R. Wham and Robert Ingram, 74's, and A. J. Vance, Claude Grizzard and J. H. Irwin, 75's.

If Boston bulls could blush, "Skippy," the unwilling subject above, would be a bright red. Named "World's Most Modest Dog," he was photographed only after a long chase, and much stealth on the part of Constitution Staff Photographer Henis Clayton. Skippy will be honored publicly not only for modesty, but for heroic action, over a national hook-up Sunday afternoon.

Skippy, World's Most Modest Dog, Dodges Hero Publicity on Radio

Saves Dr. Eubanks' Family From Fire, Then Runs Away for Awhile; Broadcast Planned to Honor Him, and He Runs Away Again.

To the long list of honors and titles that have come to Atlanta was added yesterday a title to end all titles: "World's Most Modest Dog!"

"Skippy," 3-year-old Boston bull, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ewing, of 244 Peachtree Battle avenue, is the undisputed holder of this unique honor.

With his head between his paws, and his eyes half-closed, Skippy received the notice of this latest honor yesterday with not so much as an acknowledging bark. It was this same sober acceptance that won him the honor in the first place.

Everything started when Skippy saved the lives of several neighbors last December 30, by waking up the household of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Eubanks. The smart old Back-bay Bostonian noticed smoke pouring out of the rear of the Eubanks home early in the morning and, when barking produced no results, resorted to seizing the front doorknob between his teeth and shaking it.

Dr. and Mrs. Eubanks heard the noise and woke up in time to have the blaze extinguished.

But photographers who arrived the next morning couldn't find Skippy.

"He's run away, 'cause there's so much fuss about him bein' a hero," a maid explained. After the excitement had subsided, Skippy returned.

Recently Mr. and Mrs. Ewing were informed that a national hookup will honor Skippy at 4:45 o'clock Sunday afternoon. And would the dog be able to appear in New York? Mr. and Mrs. Ewing were willing, but Skippy was not. When the time came to send him off, he disappeared again.

Yesterday, too late to go to New York, he reappeared. So that "Dog Heroes" program will honor Skippy as the bravest dog of the week, but he will not be in New York to appreciate it.

When asked by a Constitution photographer if a picture could be made of Skippy yesterday afternoon, the maid said:

"Yes, but we'll have to surprise him, or he'll run away again sure this time. The radio program is going to name him 'World's Most Modest Dog' too, an' he's awful hard to catch since he heard that."

GOODYEAR UPHELD ON PRICE CUTTING

Trade Commission Overruled by Second Highest U. S. Court.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 16.—(AP)—By a 2-to-1 decision, the sixth United States circuit court of appeals overruled today a Federal Trade Commission order against the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, and held, in effect, that the Akron, Ohio, firm was within its rights in entering price agreements with Sears, Roebuck & Co.

Akron rubber circles said the decision was a major victory for the company in its six-year fight against and FTC accusation that it underpriced tires to the detriment of its own retail outlets.

In a "cease and desist" order April 7, 1936, the commission held Goodyear violated the Clayton anti-trust act by discriminting in the price of tires sold in interstate shipment to the Chicago mail-order house and to other dealers. This, the commission said, had the effect of lessening competition and tended to create a monopoly on tire manufacture and distribution.

Judges Xen Hicks and C. C. Simons wrote in their majority opinion, however, that there was nothing in Section 2 of the Clayton act to prevent discrimination in price between purchasers of commodities "on account of differences in the grade, quality or quantity of the commodity sold."

"We conclude," observed the court, "that the commission had no power to command discontinuance of price differentials reasonably based on quantity, and there is no finding which, properly construed, determines that those here involved are not so based."

In his dissent, Judge Elwood Hamilton wrote that "with all due regard to the legal ability of my associates, I believe they have included in the proviso of the statute a case that lies beyond its direct expression and not within its letter or spirit."

Today's decision marked the second handed down by the nation's second highest tribunal in its consideration of the case.

More than a year ago, it held the question to be moot, upon being advised that a Goodyear contract with Sears-Roebuck involving the alleged offending provisions, had been cancelled, following passage of the Robinson-Patman act. The commission contended that Goodyear gave cash rebates to Sears, enabling the mail-order house to undersell the rubber firm's own dealers.

FRAUD CONVICTIONS UPHELD BY COURT

Two Reversed, However, as Appellate Tribunal Rules on Atlanta Case.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 16.—(UP) All but two of the convictions which the North Georgia district court found against two companies and four men in a gigantic scheme to sell worthless stocks on the installment plan were upheld today by the fifth United States circuit court of appeals.

The appellate court reversed a conviction against Ricebaum and Gould and Company and against Joseph Ricebaum that they conspired with Kopald-Quinn & Co. to sell stocks or that they aided the other company in making sales. The convictions were remanded for further proceedings.

Evidence failed to show, the court ruled, that Ricebaum and Gould and Ricebaum were in conspiracy with the others.

Joseph R. Mendelson, Leonard I. Sutterman and Joseph R. Sherman were convicted of using the mails to defraud in violation of the Securities Exchange Act and on charges of conspiracy to violate both the mail fraud statute and the securities act. The three were sentenced on the first count to five and on the second to three years in the penitentiary, the terms to run concurrently. These sentences were upheld.

Ricebaum, on the conviction reversed, was sentenced to serve three years, and on the conviction upheld to serve three years, the terms to run concurrently. Fines of Kopald-Quinn Company and the four men were of $5,000 on each of the two charges. The Ricebaum-Gould Company was fined $5,000 for each of 11 convictions, 10 of which the court upheld today.

"While we agree," a majority opinion said, "with the appellants that there is no evidence they were in a scheme to raise and then depress the market, so as to buy back the stock, and none that they were making wash sales, or arranging their commission so as to furnish inducements for closing out their customers, we agree with appellee that the proof is overwhelming that all were guilty of fraudulent practices of overloading stocks upon their customers, upon assurances that in the opinion of sellers they were good stocks and of full value, when they knew they were not and that the customers were almost certain to have a loss in them."

In a dissenting opinion, Judge Edwin R. Holmes said that all of the convictions should have been upheld.

Stepson Is Counsel In Suit for Divorce

Mrs. Chambers is being represented in the proceedings by Richard L. Chambers Jr., son of the defendant by a former marriage.

Mr. Chambers is one of Augusta's most colorful political figures, former chairman of the police and fire department civil service commission, he declared Augusta a "wet" town and licensed the sale of liquor, when the remainder of the state was "bone dry."

TARZAN AND THE ELEPHANT MEN No. 107

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan and Valthor were in a hazardous position. Behind them were the Athnean pursuers. Ahead of them were the Cathnean warriors who might loose upon them their fierce lions of war, which were trained to leap upon the backs of elephants and kill the riders.

Tarzan conceived a plan which might save them from this dilemma. He spoke to Tantor. The giant beast came to a stop and wheeled around. Then the Jungle Lord leaped to the ground, motioning Valthor to follow. He spoke a few words into the ear of the elephant.

As the ape-man stepped aside, Tantor's great trunk went up, forward went his ears. Then the mighty beast started back to meet the oncoming elephants. "I think he'll hold them up long enough for us to reach the Cathnean line," the ape-man declared hopefully.

The two men turned and started toward the advancing warriors—toward ranks of gleaming spears and golden helmets and lions of war on golden chains. It was a question whether Tarzan would make himself known to the Cathneans before the lions were loosed.

Today in Atlanta's History

One Year Ago Today, Thursday, Feb. 17, 1938:

Donald Comer, Birmingham textile industrialist, attacking unfair discrimination against the south before the Institute of Citizenship, declared southern industry wants and needs more co-operation from Washington.

Two Years Ago Today, Wednesday, Feb. 17, 1937:

After administration leaders overcame the most serious opposition encountered by a Rivers-sponsored measure, the house of representatives passed a bill creating a state labor department, 107 to 52.

Five Years Ago Today, Saturday, Feb. 17, 1934:

Atlanta Clearing House Association members refused Atlanta credit on the 1934 budget, passed over veto by Mayor Key, F. W. Blalock, vice president of the association, pointing out appropriations were $500,000 in excess of income.

Ten Years Ago Today, Sunday, Feb. 17, 1929:

Frank S. Jones, of Houston, Texas, imperial potentate of the Mystic Order of the Shrine, arrived in Atlanta for an official visit.

Fifteen Years Ago Today, Sunday, Feb. 17, 1924:

Two persons were injured by splintered glass and passengers were thrown into a panic when a West Point-Central train was the target for rocks and pistol shots at a point between College Park and East Point.

Twenty Years Ago Today, Monday, Feb. 17, 1919:

Fulton county commissioners appropriated $205,220 for Atlanta street and other improvements and approved a grant of $25,000 for a nurses' home at Grady hospital.

SCREEN SCOUTS HERE IN SEARCH FOR NEW TALENT

Hollywood Hunting Fresh Faces Among Young Atlantans; Applicants Urged to Rush Names.

By LILLIE MAY ROBINSON.

The search for movie talent goes merrily on!

Bryant Washburn, movie actor, will be in Atlanta early next week to aid in the hunt for new faces and personalities, and to preside at the luncheon on Thursday, when selected applicants will be interviewed and given a real chance to demonstrate their ability.

Interviewed on the talent search, Arthur Willi, chief casting director for RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., said.

"How many times have you looked at a beautiful young waitress or passed a personable young man on the street and had the thought, 'You ought to be in the movies'?

"As commonplace as that experience is with all of us, it would seem no trick at all for any one of the major producing companies to send out a talent scout at any indicated moment and have him come in forthwith with enough new movie talent to stock the studios for many a day.

Unfruitful Business.

"On the contrary, however, this business of talent scouting is one of the most unfruitful and frequently disappointing in the world. In my 23 years as a talent scout, I have traveled more than 250,000 miles up and down this country searching for new faces and talent for the screen. For every Lucille Ball or John Garfield we have come across in recent times, literally thousands of applicants have been interviewed.

"The time when an attractive face and figure on the part of a girl and good looks in a young man provided an open sesame to the Hollywood studios went out with silent pictures and high bicycles. Indeed, it was a rare case even then that one with these qualifications also achieved stardom or remained in that orbit for any length of time."

It was with this in mind that Jesse L. Lasky, famous motion picture producer, conceived the idea of his Gateway to Hollywood Talent Search—the most comprehensive and serious nation-wide hunt ever undertaken. Its virtue lies in the fact that it brings the studio to the prospect, without the necessity of one's quitting a job, leaving family and friends and throwing oneself against the barricaded studio gates in a heartbreaking effort to achieve Hollywood fame and fortune.

Gates Swing Open.

Now the gates swing open to young women between the ages of 17 and 23, and young men between 21 and 27, without expense, to interview studio executives and possibly win a contract.

Be sure to get your application blank today from the Fox theater—fill it in and send together with unretouched photographs showing full and profile views of yourself to the Screen Test Editor of The Constitution right away. That's all you have to do. Then, if your pictures and the data concerning yourself show you to be screen material, you will be called to attend the luncheon next Thursday for a personal interview.

If you prove to be as good material as indicated, you will be introduced from the stage of the Fox theater on the night of February 23, photographed by professional photographers and given a voice test by broadcasting experts from Hollywood.

There will be selected from somewhere, an ingenue leading lady and a juvenile leading man for actual work in an RKO picture, as well as a radio contract. Perhaps you are that young woman, or young man. But unless you send in your application—and do so immediately—it will be too late to find out in Mr. Lasky's search for talent.

Either go or write to the Fox theater of this city today for your blank, and get it to the Screen Test Editor of The Constitution without delay!

JUDGE REFUSES PLEA FOR M'CALL

U. S. Jurist Declares Jurisdiction Is Not His.

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 16.—(AP)—Federal Judge Alexander Akerman late today refused to hear a plea for a writ of habeas corpus for Franklin Pierce McCall, convicted kidnaper-slayer of James Bailey Cash Jr., who is sentenced to die in the electric chair at Raiford prison Monday morning.

Judge Akerman told C. A. Avriett, McCall's attorney that he could not hear the plea because McCall is now in north Florida, out of Judge Akerman's jurisdiction. Avriett's petition was intended to gain time for him to carry McCall's appeal to the United States supreme court.

COL. LELAND S. HOBBS GOES TO WAR COLLEGE

Lieutenant Colonel Leland S. Hobbs, chief of staff of the fourth corps area, has been relieved from duty here and assigned as a student to the Naval War College in Newport, R. I., corps area headquarters announced yesterday. Colonel Hobbs has been stationed here since July, 1935. His transfer is effective next June 30.

Corps area headquarters also reported that Captain John W. Rich, medical corps, will be transferred from Fort McPherson to Hawaii, and that Colonel Allen M. Burdett, a native Atlantan, will be relieved from duty in the judge advocate general's office in Washington on June 29, and assigned to the corps area office here.

MACON NEGRO SLAIN IN CHASE BY POLICE

BARNESVILLE, Ga., Feb. 16.—(AP)—A young negro was shot to death in a running gun battle between Griffin policemen and four negroes near here today.

Sheriff Gordon Morris, of Lamar county said the policemen were chasing an automobile from Griffin as a suspected liquor car. After officers closed in, the negroes abandoned the car.

The negroes exchanged shots with the policemen, the sheriff reported, one of the negroes being killed. One was captured and the other escaped. The auto was seized.

LANIER GETS RETRIAL IN DAUGHTRY SLAYING

By The Associated Press.

Lonnie Lanier, sentenced to life imprisonment in the swamp slaying of Charlie L. Daughtry, was granted a new trial by the state supreme court yesterday.

The ruling said a person cannot be convicted of a crime solely on testimony of an accomplice and without other evidence to corroborate the testimony of the accomplice. The court also ruled irrelevant evidence was admitted at Lanier's trial.

Lanier is one of several persons indicated in the slaying of Daughtry, wealthy Screven county planter and naval stores operator. He received a life sentence under a recommendation of the trial jury.
